A-BLAST WRECKS TYPICAL HOME

MIG Attacks Alaska-Based U. S. Bomber

Red Jet, B-50 Exchange Fire Near Red Base

Appeared To Be No Damage To Either Craft, USAF Reports

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, March 17 (AP)—An Alaska-based United States Air Force plane on a routine weather mission was fired upon by a MIG15 jet fighter Sunday—and shot back—in the third international incident in a week involving Russian-type planes.

The Air Force, disclosing the air fight today, said a long-range B50 was intercepted by two MIGs over international waters 25 miles east of Kamchatka Peninsula, 2,000 miles from its Eielson Air Force Base.

While one of the MIGs hovered overhead, the Air Force said in announcements at Anchorage and in Washington, the other fired upon the American plane.

No Damage Apparent

The B50 "returned fire but there appeared to be no damage to either craft," the Air Force reported. The time of the fight was reported as 12:30 p.m., March 15.

The plane flew from Eielson field near here, the Air Force said. The scene of the action was located as about 100 miles east and slightly north of Petropavlovsk, Russian military base on the southern tip of Kamchatka Peninsula.

At Fairbanks, the officers and crew were not immediately available for interviews.

The Fairbanks Daily News-Miner said, however, that the plane was not a regular member of the 15th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron, which does not fly B50s. The Air Force announcement said the plane was "on a routine weather reconnaissance flight."

Such Flights Routine

Such weather reconnaissance flights over the Arctic and to the North Pole have been made for several years.

The incident followed by only three days the shooting down of a British bomber in flames over Western Germany, with the killing of the bomber's seven crewmen. Two days before, on March 10, fighter planes flying out of Communist Czechoslovakia shot down an American plane on patrol in Western Germany.

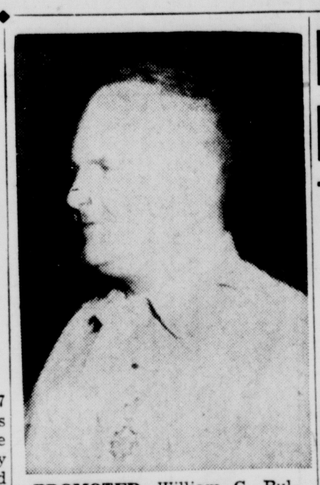

The latest incident was the first time the Air Force has reported any Alaska plane as being fired upon since World War II.

Neither had the Air Force previously reported officially any instance of Alaska-based planes approaching so near to R isrsnu-eta proaching so near to Russian territory.

Air Force Man Dies In Austria Bus Crash

VIENNA, March 17 (AP)—One U. S. Air Force enlisted man was killed and seven were injured today when the bus in which they were riding collided with an Austrian truck.

The soldiers were members of the Air Force show "Flame Out" touring Army installations in Austria. There were 15 enlisted men and an officer in the vehicle which was en route from Linz to Salzburt. The name of the victim was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Yanks Wipe Out Large Red Force In Bitter Battle

SEOUL, Wednesday, March 18 (AP)—U. S. Second Division troops wiped out almost to the last man a 350-man Red Chinese force which burst into the main Allied line Tuesday at Little Gibraltar on the Western Korean Front.

American infantrymen, fighting in their own trenches with flamethrowers, grenades, bayonets, knives, rifle butts and bare-handed killed or wounded 315 of the Red attackers, an Eighth Army briefing officer said.

The 7½-hour battle was the longest and bitterest hand-to-hand action of the year.

There was no announcement of U. S. casualties but AP Correspondent Stan Carter reported from a mobile surgical hospital that four operating tables were busy all day.

Stevenson Near Battle

Adlai Stevenson, 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, wearing an armored vest and steel helmet, witnessed the final phases of the action from a nearby hill with Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Eighth Army commander. Several Red artillery shells landed in the vicinity but did no harm.

The Little Gibraltar fight began at 2 a.m. after 3,000 Communist mortar and artillery shells plowed into the Allied position.

Chinese shock troops kept storming up the slopes, using the bodies of their dead and wounded comrades to bridge their way over Allied barbed wire defenses.

Negro Saves Officer

Twice the Communists attempted to send reinforcements into the battle. Each time Allied mortars and artillery cut them down.

During the fiercest part of the fighting in the trenches the Indianhead Division showed extraordinary heroism, the Eighth Army briefing officer said. He cited the case of an unknown Negro soldier who stood over his wounded battalion commander and killed Chinese right and left with his rifle—at times swinging it like a club. The wounded colonel was brought out but the fate of the Negro soldier was not immediately known.

Grunewald Pleads Guilty To Contempt Of Congress

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—Henry W. (The Dutchman) Grunewald, pleaded guilty today to a charge of contempt of Congress, and was given a chance to lighten his own sentence.

The Washington "mystery man" and wirepuller could receive up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine for his refusal to testify in a congressional investigation of tax scandals.

But before sentence is imposed, Grunewald is scheduled to go before the House tax investigators again for questioning.

His "cooperation or lack of cooperation," U. S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff said, will be considered in fixing sentence.

Attorney William H. Collins said Grunewald is ready to go before the investigators at any time.

Grunewald pleaded guilty to the first count of a 31-count contempt indictment as his trial was about to get under way.

Collins told Judge Holtzoff Grunewald, once described as a character who could "walk into senators' offices with his hat on," wanted to withdraw his previous plea of innocent and plead guilty to the first count.

Assistant U. S. Atty William Hitz agreed. Hitz said each count related to a separate refusal to answer a question or to produce documents, but all the counts amounted to "a continuing offense." He said he would move to dismiss the 30 other counts.

The judge asked whether the House Ways and Means subcommittee still is interested in questioning Grunewald.

"They would like to hear him," Hitz replied. "They have expressed a desire to hear him before sentencing."

Judge Holtzoff said he would impose sentence Friday morning.

Business Man Paid $20,000 To Tax Fixers

Spent Over $150,000 But Failed To Escape Charges Of Evasion

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—A wealthy dye manufacturer who said he "had faith in human beings" testified today he gave more than $20,000 to a group of people who promised—but failed—to fix his tax troubles in Washington.

Counting his lawyers' fees and other costs, Garry D. Iozia told House investigators, he spent about $115,000 in an unsuccessful attempt to escape prosecution.

The net result of this investment, it was brought out at the hearing, was an indictment returned April 20, 1951, charging Iozia with criminal tax evasion. He pleaded guilty about a month ago.

Taken "For Ride"

Iozia lives in East Paterson, N. J., and he is president of the Housatonic Dye Works of Derby, Conn. He related his story to a House ways and means subcommittee which is investigating operations of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

"It looks like a lot of people were taking you for a ride," commented Rep. Boggs (D-La).

"Yes, sir, but I was scared to death," Iozia said. Then he added, "I have faith in human beings."

Under questioning by Chairman Kean (R-NJ), Iozia testified he paid about $21,000 to Joseph Sherman, Mrs. Hope Ridings Miller, Bob Abels and Meyer Meth "for purposes other than legal."

"You paid some $20,000—let's put it frankly—for purposes of trying to fix the case," Kean said.

"Yes," Iozia replied. "We were desperate."

Sherman Linked To Caudle

The witness identified Sherman as a "Southern" newspaperman and said he was told Sherman was a close friend of Lamar Caudle, then assistant attorney general in charge of tax prosecutions for the Justice Department.

He testified that Mrs. Miller was introduced to him as a secretary of Rep. Sam Rayburn, former Democratic speaker of the House from Texas, but that he found out later "she was just a newspaper woman."

There is a Mrs. Hope Ridings Miller who has been a writer and publicist in Washington for many years. Recently she has been doing free lance work. Mrs. Miller could not be reached for comment immediately.

Iozia described Abels as a Paterson, N. J., friend, and said Meth was a first cousin of Meyer Rothwacks, Justice Department tax attorney.

Jackson Calls For Showdown On Velde Ouster

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—Rep. Jackson (R-Calif) declared today "there are Communists in the church" and demanded a showdown on the move to oust Chairman Velde (R-Ill) of the House Un - American Activities Committee over the issue of investigating churchmen.

Velde himself joined in the applause and in urging a showdown. He issued a statement saying he concurs with Jackson and would like to know how members of the House "feel about my fitness" for the chairmanship.

Chairman Allen (R-Ill) of the Rules Committee said he did not know what action would be taken on the ouster resolution.

Jackson, a member of the committee, stood in the well of the House to say there is evidence "the Communist party and the fellow-traveling press" are trying to abolish the committee.

While he was at it, he delivered a free-swinging attack that also took in the Ford Foundation, radio and television, Red educators, and a pair of churchmen by name.

Methodist Bishop Bromley Oxnam of Washington, Jackson said, "has been to the Communist front what Man O' War was to thoroughbred racing."

Jackson's other clergyman target was the Rev. Claude C. Williams of Birmingham. He said Williams is alleged to have said in a public meeting that he is in the church "because I can reach people easier that way and get them organized for communism."

Price Decontrol Is Complete

House Standing After Atomic Blast

Newsmen and civil defense observers look across the desert at a house located 1½ miles from the spot where an atomic explosion took place in Nevada yesterday. The house, about one mile from the camera, remained standing but another 3,500 yards from the explosion was demolished. Radioactivity in the area prevented newsmen and photographers from getting nearer.

Ceilings On Iron, Steel, Machine Tools Removed

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—Price control ended today after two controversy-ridden years.

Six weeks ahead of President Eisenhower's target date for a free economy, the Office of Price Stabilization struck the ceiling from steel, machine tools, cans, and some chemicals and other defense materials—the last controlled commodities.

The controls came off the last consumer goods last week.

OPS figures buyers will pay three billion dollars more a year because of price rises in the items freed since the decontrol drive got underway in February. About one billion is from the consumer's pocket directly. Another big chunk will be in taxes to pay for higher-cost munitions.

Steel Price Rise Unlikely

But today's big decontrol items, iron and steel, are not due to rise generally. OPS and industry spokesmen agree that booming output and growing competition will hold steel products in line.

The OPS order lifted from industry a regulatory harness that was imposed at a peak of panic buying on June 26, 1951. That was after prices had zoomed 8 per cent in two bursts of buying, one when Korea was invaded seven months earlier, and another when Red China joined the assault.

The ceilings—which OPS called "flexible" and critics called "leaky" — helped hold the further rise to about 4 per cent on the consumer price index.

Wage Lids Ended Feb. 6

Gone also are wage ceilings, which ended on Feb. 6, four days after Eisenhower branded price and wage restraints as "unsatisfactory and unworkable"; and controls on consumer and real estate credit, lifted last summer.

OPS Administrator Joseph H. Freehill told reporters today that all but 1,035 OPS workers already have been fired or handed 30-day discharge notices. The agency once employed 12,000.

Because of the early clean-up of controls, OPS will return 1½ million dollars of unused funds to the Treasury, Freehill estimated. The agency will be virtually out of business by April 15 except for enforcement and pre-liquidation activity, he predicted, and will be defunct by June 30.

Soldiers Feel Ground Reel 2 Miles Away

Explosion Causes Quake, Tosses Cars Around Like Toys

ATOM BOMB SITE, Nev., March 17 (AP)—A spectacular, low-altitude explosion of an atom bomb produced a small but sharp man-made earthquake today.

Soldiers and observers, crouched in trenches only two miles from the point where a nuclear gadget blasted, felt the ground shudder and reel.

Scientists seemed surprised at the duration and intensity of the earth shock, which however was not felt by other observers located five miles away.

The combined explosion and quake overwhelmed a typical American home standing 3,500 yards away from the shot tower.

Army Captain Harold G. Kinne, of the Armed Forces Special Weapons Staff, believed the earth shock, reaching the house first, shook and twisted its frame, the following air blast finished the job.

House Almost Flattened

Seen from a distance of about one mile, the house was a tumbled almost flattened ruin. The second story had either been sheared off or had fallin into the lower floor. A wisp of smoke rose up into the all-encompassing dust cloud. Out in the yard near the house two trucks which had been standing there were missing, perhaps burned. Passenger cars had been tossed around like toys, some resting upside down.

The blast was capricious, like all atomic explosions where pressure and heat waves go bouncing across the landscape.

At 1,500 yards observers saw wooden stakes charred by the radiant, flash heat of the explosion. Big cobblestones had been rolled or tossed about.

But close up to the blackened circle marking the edge of the fireball — only 300 yards from "Ground Zero" — An M24 tank stood, with remarkably minor damage. However, a token of the awful power of the explosion was imprinted on the desert floor.

Tank Moved 50 Feet

The 22-ton tank had been shoved 50 feet forward on its tracks.

Back at 1,000 yards there was a pillbox. It looked like any soldiers who would have been inside would have been safe. A peek inside showed everyting intact, although the earth covering had been partially blown away and sandbags were seared by heat.

An amphibious landing craft (with a boat-like body but tractors like a tank) had been torn into shreds and much of it fused or melted into mere scraps of metal. The landing craft had been spotted almost within shadow of the spiery, 300-foot tower which had cradled the atomic device, detonated on split second schedule at 5:20 a.m. The tower itself had disappeared in the twinkling of an eye.

A scheduled flight of a drone plane, the Navy's AD2 jet through the blast area was canceled when controls failed. A piloted AD2 however, reconnoitered on the fringe area of the burst.

House Committee Would Boost FSA To Cabinet Level

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—President Eisenhower's first government reorganization plan, making a new cabinet-level Department of the Federal Security Agency, was approved by the House Government Operations Committee today 17-12.

The close vote came as a surprise but committee members said the 12 Democratic "no" ballots were more of a protest against a speed-up feature than opposition to the reshuffle itself. One Democrat joined the 16 committee Republicans to put the measure through.

Under usual procedure reorganization plans become law 60 days after the White House submits them, unless one house or the other votes disapproval. The device in this case was a resolution for affirmative approval, which would put the plan into effect 10 days after its adoption by both houses. The FSA plan was submitted March 12 and the administration hoped to save most of the two months.

The Rules Committee quickly gave the measure right-of-way in the House. Senate action later would be required to accomplish the speedy shift.

Under the new set-up Federal Security Administrator Oveta Culp Hobby would become secretary of a new department of health, education and welfare.

HST, Ike's Brother Join In Wearing Green Carnations

KANSAS CITY, March 17 (AP)—Harry S. Truman, former president, and Arthur B. Eisenhower, brother of President Eisenhower, joined today in wearing green carnations at a St. Patrick's day luncheon.

They were among 500 members of the Pompano Club's annual reunion.

Eisenhower wore two green carnations, one on each lapel, and Truman wore one. Truman was seated on one side of the room and Eisenhower on the other.

Ammo Supply Of Allies In Europe Called Slim

PARIS, March 17 (AP)—A highly placed American official said today the Allied fighting forces in Western Europe have only an average of three to five days' supply of artillery and antiaircraft ammunition.

The informant said that although U. S. forces keep a 45-day supply of ammunition, some nations have "scarcely any at all," bringing the overall average to the low figure.

The critical shortage in all categories of ammunition will be the biggest headache facing the foreign ministers of the 14 NATO nations when they gather in Paris April 23 for their second meeting in four months.

Matter Of Fact

Warning Spurs Consideration Of Billions More For Defense

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

President Dwight D. Eisenhower is seriously considering an American air defense program estimated to call for $16 to $20 billion of additional defense spending. The matter is being actively discussed on the highest level, in the National Security Council.

The sharp spur of the discussion is a solemn warning contained in studies made for the government by a group of the most highly qualified American scientists. These men have bluntly forecast that before very long, the cities and the industry of the United States will lie open and virtually defenseless against a devastating Soviet air-atomic attack. Two years is the time of grace allowed.

Few if any graver choices have ever confronted an American President. On the one hand, there is the requirement for huge added spending, with all its implications.

If the program is adopted, capital outlays for air defense will of course be spread over more than one year. But the capital outlays will in turn generate huge maintenance and replacement charges. Hope will dim for the process described by Senator Robert A. Taft as "getting defense spending down to a reasonable level." The Eisenhower fiscal policy will probably have to be revolutionized, which will provoke sharp congressional reactions.

On the other hand, unfortunately, there is the scientists warning, not quite certain yet very terrible, of total peril ahead. The source of the warning is such that it cannot be lightly disregarded.

In brief ,it derives from a study of the air defense problem undertaken by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, on an Air Force contract, not long after the beginning of the Korean War. This M. I. T. study, known as Project Lincoln, was originally conceived by former Secretary of the Air Force Thomas Finletter as a sort of Manhattan District for air defense.

Tito Has Lunch With Elizabeth, Meets Churchill

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—President Marshal Tito, wartime Communist guerrilla chieftain turned anti-Soviet dictator, lunched at Buckingham Palace today with Queen Elizabeth II. From that friendly meeting he went into a two-hour cold war strategy session with Prime Minister Churchill tonight.

The Yugoslav's call at Churchill's official residence topped off a day of whirlwind sightseeing, which included a look at the crown jewels, an inspection of the grim Tower of London and a visit to the London County Council, headquarters of the capital's civil administration.

Eden Attends Talks

The Tito-Churchill talks were attended by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Yugoslav Foreign Minister Koca Popovic.

Secrecy surrounded the meetnig, but British sources have made it clear that Tito's five-day visit—his first to a Western nation—will include a full examination of Western defense strategy in the light of Stalin's death and the Kremlin's new set of rulers.

U. S. officials are being kept informed of developments. Informed American sources said the Yugoslav leader may be invited later to visit the United States. The Western powers are anxious to strengthen their political and military links with Tito, who broke with Russia in 1948.

Tito Booed But Once

During the day Tito appeared once in a gray lounge suit, twice in resplendent military uniforms of his marshal's rank, once in diplomatic gray and finally in white tie and tails for a formal dinner late tonight with Eden and his wife at swank Carleton House Terrace.

Hundreds of Londoners turned out in warm sunshine to gape and applaud. Only once — at the gates to Buckingham Palace—did boos mingle with applause.

Tito May Be Invited To Visit United States

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—Informed U. S. sources said tonight President Tito of Yugoslavia may be invited to visit the United States as an outgrowth of his current talks with British government leaders.

These sources said British leaders are expected to keep the U. S. informed of the London discussions which will end on Saturday. American representatives are not taking part in the London talks. Tito has already indicated he would welcome an invitation to visit the U. S. It would give him a chance to press in person his requests for additional military aid.

Retail Food Prices Drop One Per Cent

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—The government today reported that retail food prices dropped about one per cent during February—the month when price controls were scrapped on most food items.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said falling beef prices led the decline in market basket costs.

Meats, poultry and fish dropped an average 2.1 per cent. Eggs also were down, but prices for fresh fruits and vegetables were up slightly.

Food prices had declined about two per cent during January.

Wind It Blew, Flags They Flew For Irish On Parade

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—Ah, the wind it blew and the flags they flew for the Irish on parade, as they followed a line of green sublime along Fifth Avenue.

Excitement grew as New York anew marked St. Patrick's holiday, and a marching throng stepped brisk along 'mid a sea of shamrocks true.

There were Monaghans, Corrigans, Murphys and Doyles, Duggans, Currans, Seahans and Boyles.

The official police estimate of a roaring mass of spectators lined eight deep today along the 52-block line of march was 1,800,000 —one of the greatest ever to pay homage to Erin's patron saint.

The sun was bright as a colleen's smile when the hours long parade started out from 44th Street at 12:04 p.m. (EST into a man-made storm of green confetti. The avenue's center line had a special coat of green paint.

But the brightness vanished as quick as an Irishman's wages as the marchers leaned into a chill 15-mile an hour headwind for the 56-minute hike through the canyon of Fifth Avenue to 96th Street.

Massed bands sent wave upon wave of sound reverberating against the concrete cliffs of the avenue—"The Wearing O' The Green," "Mc Namara's Band," "Harrigan," "Garryowen" and many another tune.

Men, women and children kept time with beating feet, as much against the 47 degree overcast as anything.

All New York turned Irish for a day and the city was a garden of green—green flags, green carnations and shamrocks, green ties, and even green beer where called for.

Weather Forecast
Increasing cloudiness and mild today with rain likely tonight; tomorrow mild with showers.

Newsmen and civil defense observers look across the desert at a house located 1½ miles from the spot where an atomic explosion took place in Nevada yesterday. The house, about one mile from the camera, remained standing but another 3,500 yards from the explosion was demolished. Radioactivity in the area prevented newsmen and photographers from getting nearer.

House Committee Would Boost FSA To Cabinet Level

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—President Eisenhower's first government reorganization plan, making a new cabinet-level Department of the Federal Security Agency, was approved by the House Government Operations Committee today 17-12.

The close vote came as a surprise but committee members said the 12 Democratic "no" ballots were more of a protest against a speed-up feature than opposition to the reshuffle itself. One Democrat joined the 16 committee Republicans to put the measure through.

Under usual procedure reorganization plans become law 60 days after the White House submits them, unless one house or the other votes disapproval. The device in this case was a resolution for affirmative approval, which would put the plan into effect 10 days after its adoption by both houses. The FSA plan was submitted March 12 and the administration hoped to save most of the two months.

The Rules Committee quickly gave the measure right-of-way in the House. Senate action later would be required to accomplish the speedy shift.

Under the new set-up Federal Security Administrator Oveta Culp Hobby would become secretary of a new department of health, education and welfare.

HST, Ike's Brother Join In Wearing Green Carnations

KANSAS CITY, March 17 (AP)—Harry S. Truman, former president, and Arthur B. Eisenhower, brother of President Eisenhower, joined today in wearing green carnations at a St. Patrick's day luncheon.

They were among 500 members of the Pompano Club's annual reunion.

Eisenhower wore two green carnations, one on each lapel, and Truman wore one. Truman was seated on one side of the room and Eisenhower on the other.

Ammo Supply Of Allies In Europe Called Slim

PARIS, March 17 (AP)—A highly placed American official said today the Allied fighting forces in Western Europe have only an average of three to five days' supply of artillery and antiaircraft ammunition.

The informant said that although U. S. forces keep a 45-day supply of ammunition, some nations have "scarcely any at all," bringing the overall average to the low figure.

The critical shortage in all categories of ammunition will be the biggest headache facing the foreign ministers of the 14 NATO nations when they gather in Paris April 23 for their second meeting in four months.

Tito Has Lunch With Elizabeth, Meets Churchill

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—President Marshal Tito, wartime Communist guerrilla chieftain turned anti-Soviet dictator, lunched at Buckingham Palace today with Queen Elizabeth II. From that friendly meeting he went into a two-hour cold war strategy session with Prime Minister Churchill tonight.

The Yugoslav's call at Churchill's official residence topped off a day of whirlwind sightseeing, which included a look at the crown jewels, an inspection of the grim Tower of London and a visit to the London County Council, headquarters of the capital's civil administration.

Eden Attends Talks

The Tito-Churchill talks were attended by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Yugoslav Foreign Minister Koca Popovic.

Secrecy surrounded the meetnig, but British sources have made it clear that Tito's five-day visit—his first to a Western nation—will include a full examination of Western defense strategy in the light of Stalin's death and the Kremlin's new set of rulers.

U. S. officials are being kept informed of developments. Informed American sources said the Yugoslav leader may be invited later to visit the United States. The Western powers are anxious to strengthen their political and military links with Tito, who broke with Russia in 1948.

Tito Booed But Once

During the day Tito appeared once in a gray lounge suit, twice in resplendent military uniforms of his marshal's rank, once in diplomatic gray and finally in white tie and tails for a formal dinner late tonight with Eden and his wife at swank Carleton House Terrace.

Hundreds of Londoners turned out in warm sunshine to gape and applaud. Only once — at the gates to Buckingham Palace—did boos mingle with applause.

Tito May Be Invited To Visit United States

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—Informed U. S. sources said tonight President Tito of Yugoslavia may be invited to visit the United States as an outgrowth of his current talks with British government leaders.

These sources said British leaders are expected to keep the U. S. informed of the London discussions which will end on Saturday. American representatives are not taking part in the London talks. Tito has already indicated he would welcome an invitation to visit the U. S. It would give him a chance to press in person his requests for additional military aid.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

President Dwight D. Eisenhower is seriously considering an American air defense program estimated to call for $16 to $20 billion of additional defense spending. The matter is being actively discussed on the highest level, in the National Security Council.

The sharp spur of the discussion is a solemn warning contained in studies made for the government by a group of the most highly qualified American scientists. These men have bluntly forecast that before very long, the cities and the industry of the United States will lie open and virtually defenseless against a devastating Soviet air-atomic attack. Two years is the time of grace allowed.

Few if any graver choices have ever confronted an American President. On the one hand, there is the requirement for huge added spending, with all its implications.

If the program is adopted, capital outlays for air defense will of course be spread over more than one year. But the capital outlays will in turn generate huge maintenance and replacement charges. Hope will dim for the process described by Senator Robert A. Taft as "getting defense spending down to a reasonable level." The Eisenhower fiscal policy will probably have to be revolutionized, which will provoke sharp congressional reactions.

On the other hand, unfortunately, there is the scientists warning, not quite certain yet very terrible, of total peril ahead. The source of the warning is such that it cannot be lightly disregarded.

In brief ,it derives from a study of the air defense problem undertaken by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, on an Air Force contract, not long after the beginning of the Korean War. This M. I. T. study, known as Project Lincoln, was originally conceived by former Secretary of the Air Force Thomas Finletter as a sort of Manhattan District for air defense.

Ceilings On Iron, Steel, Machine Tools Removed

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—Price control ended today after two controversy-ridden years.

Six weeks ahead of President Eisenhower's target date for a free economy, the Office of Price Stabilization struck the ceiling from steel, machine tools, cans, and some chemicals and other defense materials—the last controlled commodities.

The controls came off the last consumer goods last week.

OPS figures buyers will pay three billion dollars more a year because of price rises in the items freed since the decontrol drive got underway in February. About one billion is from the consumer's pocket directly. Another big chunk will be in taxes to pay for higher-cost munitions.

Steel Price Rise Unlikely

But today's big decontrol items, iron and steel, are not due to rise generally. OPS and industry spokesmen agree that booming output and growing competition will hold steel products in line.

The OPS order lifted from industry a regulatory harness that was imposed at a peak of panic buying on June 26, 1951. That was after prices had zoomed 8 per cent in two bursts of buying, one when Korea was invaded seven months earlier, and another when Red China joined the assault.

The ceilings—which OPS called "flexible" and critics called "leaky" — helped hold the further rise to about 4 per cent on the consumer price index.

Wage Lids Ended Feb. 6

Gone also are wage ceilings, which ended on Feb. 6, four days after Eisenhower branded price and wage restraints as "unsatisfactory and unworkable"; and controls on consumer and real estate credit, lifted last summer.

OPS Administrator Joseph H. Freehill told reporters today that all but 1,035 OPS workers already have been fired or handed 30-day discharge notices. The agency once employed 12,000.

Because of the early clean-up of controls, OPS will return 1½ million dollars of unused funds to the Treasury, Freehill estimated. The agency will be virtually out of business by April 15 except for enforcement and pre-liquidation activity, he predicted, and will be defunct by June 30.

Retail Food Prices Drop One Per Cent

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—The government today reported that retail food prices dropped about one per cent during February—the month when price controls were scrapped on most food items.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said falling beef prices led the decline in market basket costs.

Meats, poultry and fish dropped an average 2.1 per cent. Eggs also were down, but prices for fresh fruits and vegetables were up slightly.

Explosion Causes Quake, Tosses Cars Around Like Toys

ATOM BOMB SITE, Nev., March 17 (AP)—A spectacular, low-altitude explosion of an atom bomb produced a small but sharp man-made earthquake today.

Soldiers and observers, crouched in trenches only two miles from the point where a nuclear gadget blasted, felt the ground shudder and reel.

Scientists seemed surprised at the duration and intensity of the earth shock, which however was not felt by other observers located five miles away.

The combined explosion and quake overwhelmed a typical American home standing 3,500 yards away from the shot tower.

Army Captain Harold G. Kinne, of the Armed Forces Special Weapons Staff, believed the earth shock, reaching the house first, shook and twisted its frame, the following air blast finished the job.

House Almost Flattened

Seen from a distance of about one mile, the house was a tumbled almost flattened ruin. The second story had either been sheared off or had fallin into the lower floor. A wisp of smoke rose up into the all-encompassing dust cloud. Out in the yard near the house two trucks which had been standing there were missing, perhaps burned. Passenger cars had been tossed around like toys, some resting upside down.

The blast was capricious, like all atomic explosions where pressure and heat waves go bouncing across the landscape.

At 1,500 yards observers saw wooden stakes charred by the radiant, flash heat of the explosion. Big cobblestones had been rolled or tossed about.

But close up to the blackened circle marking the edge of the fireball — only 300 yards from "Ground Zero" — An M24 tank stood, with remarkably minor damage. However, a token of the awful power of the explosion was imprinted on the desert floor.

Tank Moved 50 Feet

The 22-ton tank had been shoved 50 feet forward on its tracks.

Back at 1,000 yards there was a pillbox. It looked like any soldiers who would have been inside would have been safe. A peek inside showed everyting intact, although the earth covering had been partially blown away and sandbags were seared by heat.

An amphibious landing craft (with a boat-like body but tractors like a tank) had been torn into shreds and much of it fused or melted into mere scraps of metal. The landing craft had been spotted almost within shadow of the spiery, 300-foot tower which had cradled the atomic device, detonated on split second schedule at 5:20 a.m. The tower itself had disappeared in the twinkling of an eye.

A scheduled flight of a drone plane, the Navy's AD2 jet through the blast area was canceled when controls failed. A piloted AD2 however, reconnoitered on the fringe area of the burst.

Vishinsky To Return

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., March 17. (INS)—A Soviet U. N. spokesman said tonight that former Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky is expected to return to U. N. headquarters on March 26.

Wind It Blew, Flags They Flew For Irish On Parade

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—Ah, the wind it blew and the flags they flew for the Irish on parade, as they followed a line of green sublime along Fifth Avenue.

Excitement grew as New York anew marked St. Patrick's holiday, and a marching throng stepped brisk along 'mid a sea of shamrocks true.

There were Monaghans, Corrigans, Murphys and Doyles, Duggans, Currans, Seahans and Boyles.

The official police estimate of a roaring mass of spectators lined eight deep today along the 52-block line of march was 1,800,000 —one of the greatest ever to pay homage to Erin's patron saint.

The sun was bright as a colleen's smile when the hours long parade started out from 44th Street at 12:04 p.m. (EST into a man-made storm of green confetti. The avenue's center line had a special coat of green paint.

But the brightness vanished as quick as an Irishman's wages as the marchers leaned into a chill 15-mile an hour headwind for the 56-minute hike through the canyon of Fifth Avenue to 96th Street.

Massed bands sent wave upon wave of sound reverberating against the concrete cliffs of the avenue—"The Wearing O' The Green," "Mc Namara's Band," "Harrigan," "Garryowen" and many another tune.

Men, women and children kept time with beating feet, as much against the 47 degree overcast as anything.

All New York turned Irish for a day and the city was a garden of green—green flags, green carnations and shamrocks, green ties, and even green beer where called for.

Churchill Spurns Briton-For-Red Exchange Offer

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill grimly rejected today Red Hungary's offer to barter Englishman Edgar Sanders for a Chinese Communist girl terrorist imprisoned in Malaya.

Churchill announced Britain's decision to turn down the Communist proposal to swap the 48-year-old businessman imprisoned on espionage charges for guerrilla leader Lee Meng in a terse statement to the House of Commons.

Churchill promised the government will "continue to persevere" by other means to get Sanders out of his Hungarian prison.

Sanders' wife, Winifred, when informed of Churchill's decision, told newsmen:

"I am bitterly disappointed and so will be my three daughters. Naturally we have been hoping for my husband's release. Beyond that, what is there I can say?"

Mrs. Sanders has fought three years for stiff government action to force her husband's release.

Churchill pointed out pressure has already been placed on Hungary to get Sanders freed through curtailment of trade with the Soviet satellite. Britons believe the Hungarian offer was made at the suggestion of the Kremlin.

Sanders, a cousin of Hollywood star George Sanders, was convicted of espionage by a Red court three years ago and sentenced to a 13-year term. Robert Vogeler, an American business associate jailed with him, was later released following U. S. concessions to Hungary.

CD LEADERS WATCH ATOM TEST—Civil defense leaders from throughout the nation and newsmen are lighted by the flash glare of the atomic bomb as they watched the awesome test in the Nevada desert pre-dawn darkness yesterday. U.S. Demands Hungary, Russia Pay For Plane

WASHINGTON, March 17 (INS)—The United States demanded today the payment of $1,275,788 from the Soviet Union and Communist Hungary for damages sustained when an American plane was forced down in Hungary in November 1951.

In formal notes to Russia and its satellite nation, the U. S. asked for $637,894 from each country on the ground that both nations were equally at fault.

The plane was never returned by Hungary.

POW Demonstration Quelled With Gas

PUSAN, March 18 (Wednesday) (INS)—The United Nations prisoner of war command announced today that a "major demonstration" by 2,000 North Korean Communist POWs on Yoncho Island was quelled Monday without injury to either Allied guards or prisoners.

The demonstration was put down solely by the use of what the announcement called "non-toxic irritants," a type of tear gas which also causes nausea.

In a bloody outbreak of violence on Yoncho ten days ago, 23 North Korean POWs were killed and 42 others wounded when Allied guards opened fire to prevent a "mass outbreak."

A-Blast Confuses CD Administrator

ATOM BOMB SITE, Nev., March 17 (AP)—Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson returned by helicopter from a foxhole approximately two miles from today's atomic blast to concede that "I'm a little confused and I think I'm entitled to be."

His confusion came when he started to tell newsmen that he was "2,000 feet" from the blast. He quickly corrected the distance.

"I was on my hands and knees," Peterson said. "My eyes were partly open but I had my back to the light."

"The light burst was tremendous, of course, and the dust, dirt and debris was terrific. But I had no sensation of blast or suction and felt no pressure.

"It's hard to say whether I was conscious of hearing the noise. My ears did not seem to suffer."

Peterson, former governor of Nebraska who heads the Federal Civil Defense Administration, said "I'm certain of one thing—I'd want to find the best shelter I could in case of atomic attack. I wouldn't want to be above ground when one hit."

Peterson said he wore a field helmet and three or four layers of Army clothing "and I wish I had had my winter underwear, too—it was colder than the devil."

New Textile Minimum Wage Hearing April 22

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Durkin today announced today that a new public hearing will be held on the question of minimum wages in woolen and worsted mills working on government contracts.

Former Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin, as his last official act in January, proposed boosting the minimum wage under the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act from $1.05 an hour to $1.20 for three principal branches of the industry: broad woven goods, yarn and thread.

Tobin's proposal was not final and today, after a special request from 105 woolen and worsted firms, Durkin announced another public hearing will be held April 22.

Grammer was convicted of beating his wife to death, then sending her body down a hill near the outskirts of Baltimore to mislead police into thinking she died in an automobile accident.

German Building Program Is Cut

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—House investigators reported today the State Department has ordered, voluntarily, a 2½ million dollar cut in the 20 million dollar U. S. building program in Germany.

This, the House government operations subcommittee said, "is a short step in the right direction."

The subcommittee began looking into the German building program after members complained some of the plans were too pretentious and that luxury apartments were to be built for U. S. diplomatic staffers in Germany.

The House group recommended that in the future all foreign construction programs, regardless of how they are financed, be submitted for detailed review by the Budget Bureau and Congress.

In its formal report, the subcommittee, headed by Rep. Miller (R-NY), said the State Department voluntarily has ordered a 25 per cent cut in the unit cost of staff apartments in Germany, and a reduction in the number and cost of other buildings.

The total saving, it said, would be $2,477,240. The program is being financed from German currency in the hands of the State Department.

House Endorses Closed Season On Bay Fishing

ANNAPOLIS, March 17 (AP)—Sportsmen won a hard fight tonight on a measure to ban all fishing in Chesapeake Bay during January and February.

They won adoption in the House of a favorable report over the solid opposition of the Eastern Shore delegates, 61-37.

The opponents argued it would hurt their economy by idling commerical watermen for the two months.

The proponents claimed it was a conservation move.

The House Chesapeake Bay Committee see-sawed before emerging with a favorable report. The first time it voted last week it was favorable. Before the committee ended, another vote was taken and it was unfavorable. Proponents succeeded in obtaining another vote and gained approval this afternoon.

Del. Blades (D-Caroline) called it "the most asinine thing ever before this House." He claimed it was sponsored by "outside pressure coming from Washington" which he identified as the Izaak Walton League, the organization for sports fishermen.

Russia Hints Indians Would Be Acceptable

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., March 17 (INS)—Russia hinted in the United Nations tonight that Madame V. I. Pandit or Sir Benegal N. Rau of India would be acceptable to the Soviet Union as U. N. secretary general to succeed Trygvie Lie.

The hint was conveyed at a meeting of the Arab-Asian bloc in conversation with one of the Russian delegates.

The move came on the eve of an informal meeting of the Big Five powers tomorrow on the question of finding a successor to Lie.

Bill Would Eliminate Local Liquor Taxes

ANNAPOLIS, March 17 (AP)—The bill to eliminate local taxation on liquor by raising the state's levy and returning some of it to the subdivisions was introduced tonight.

The bill is the result of an extension for two years asked by Baltimore City and County of their special taxing privilege.

Members of the House Alcoholic Beverages Committee objected to continuation of the local tax, but agreed to it for two more years. The bills have passed the House and now are in the Senate.

Two Loose Truck Wheels Play Havoc

BALTIMORE, March 17 (AP)—Wheels tore off two big trucks and played havoc yesterday.

One bounced into a parked car driven by Dr. Charles Skowrin of Lancaster, Pa., and then into Mrs. Skowrin, who was just getting into the car. She was treated at a hospital for a scalp laceration and bruises.

The second smashed into two parked cars, then into a mail box and a fire alarm box.

Four fire trucks answered the alarm and police rounded up the scattered mail.

WASHINGTON, March 17. (AP)—The White House indicated today that President Eisenhower will go to Augusta, Ga., about the middle of April for another golfing vacation.

Sharpsburg, Md., Man Charged With Murder

HAGERSTOWN, March 17 (AP)—Robert L. Benner, 40, of Sharpsburg, was charged formally with murder today in the shotgun shooting of his mother's boarder, Thomas W. Brashears.

Deputy Sheriff Miachel Farrie said Benner fired two blasts into the 69-year-old Brashear's neck, then walked to a nearby tavern, where he asked that the sheriff be notified that:

"I just fixed the s-- o-- b----."

Benner's mother, Mrs. Alice Benner, told officers that Benner ordered Brashears, a retired railroad employe who boarded at the Benner home, to leave the house. Brashears refused.

Benner got his shotgun, his mother continued, fired once at Brashears at close range, and when Brashears didn't fall, reloaded and fired again. Brashears fell.

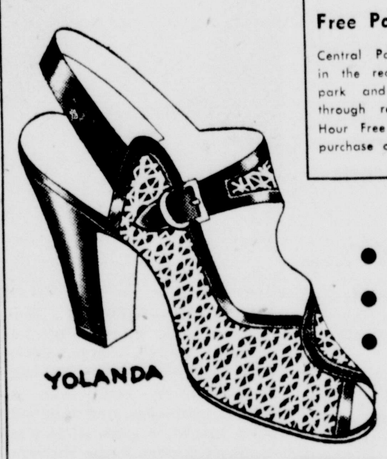

Speedy Sabre Jets Patrol German Skies

FUERSTENFELDBRUCK, Germany, March 17 (AP)—A detachment of U. S. F86 Sabre-jet fighters which have proved more than a match for the Soviet-built MIG15s—took up patrol of the skies along West Germany's border with Communist Czechoslovakia today.

Their first missions passed without incident. But their assignment to the U. S. Air Force base here emphasized a warning to the Communists that American fighters will shoot back if they are again attacked by MIG15s flying across the Iron Curtain.

The Sabres, their number still an official secret, were moved to Germany from a U. S. base in Britain to bolster the outmoded F84 Thunderjets which five of the six U. S. fighter wings in Europe are still flying.

The Supreme Bench of Baltimore yesterday turned down a request for a new trial for the New York office manager.

Grammer was convicted of beating his wife to death, then sending her body down a hill near the outskirts of Baltimore to mislead police into thinking she died in an automobile accident.

German Building Program Is Cut

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—House investigators reported today the State Department has ordered, voluntarily, a 2½ million dollar cut in the 20 million dollar U. S. building program in Germany.

This, the House government operations subcommittee said, "is a short step in the right direction."

The subcommittee began looking into the German building program after members complained some of the plans were too pretentious and that luxury apartments were to be built for U. S. diplomatic staffers in Germany.

The House group recommended that in the future all foreign construction programs, regardless of how they are financed, be submitted for detailed review by the Budget Bureau and Congress.

In its formal report, the subcommittee, headed by Rep. Miller (R-NY), said the State Department voluntarily has ordered a 25 per cent cut in the unit cost of staff apartments in Germany, and a reduction in the number and cost of other buildings.

The total saving, it said, would be $2,477,240. The program is being financed from German currency in the hands of the State Department.

House Endorses Closed Season On Bay Fishing

ANNAPOLIS, March 17 (AP)—Sportsmen won a hard fight tonight on a measure to ban all fishing in Chesapeake Bay during January and February.

They won adoption in the House of a favorable report over the solid opposition of the Eastern Shore delegates, 61-37.

The opponents argued it would hurt their economy by idling commerical watermen for the two months.

The proponents claimed it was a conservation move.

The House Chesapeake Bay Committee see-sawed before emerging with a favorable report. The first time it voted last week it was favorable. Before the committee ended, another vote was taken and it was unfavorable. Proponents succeeded in obtaining another vote and gained approval this afternoon.

Del. Blades (D-Caroline) called it "the most asinine thing ever before this House." He claimed it was sponsored by "outside pressure coming from Washington" which he identified as the Izaak Walton League, the organization for sports fishermen.

Russia Hints Indians Would Be Acceptable

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., March 17 (INS)—Russia hinted in the United Nations tonight that Madame V. I. Pandit or Sir Benegal N. Rau of India would be acceptable to the Soviet Union as U. N. secretary general to succeed Trygvie Lie.

The hint was conveyed at a meeting of the Arab-Asian bloc in conversation with one of the Russian delegates.

The move came on the eve of an informal meeting of the Big Five powers tomorrow on the question of finding a successor to Lie.

Bill Would Eliminate Local Liquor Taxes

ANNAPOLIS, March 17 (AP)—The bill to eliminate local taxation on liquor by raising the state's levy and returning some of it to the subdivisions was introduced tonight.

The bill is the result of an extension for two years asked by Baltimore City and County of their special taxing privilege.

Members of the House Alcoholic Beverages Committee objected to continuation of the local tax, but agreed to it for two more years. The bills have passed the House and now are in the Senate.

SAVES BROTHER—Thanks to his Boy Scout training, Richard M. O'Briant, 11, St. Louis, was able to save the life of his little brother, Michael. Only a few weeks ago, Richard was given instructions in artificial respiration procedure. When Michael threatened to stop breathing during an influenza attack, Richard came to the child's rescue.

Two Loose Truck Wheels Play Havoc

BALTIMORE, March 17 (AP)—Wheels tore off two big trucks and played havoc yesterday.

One bounced into a parked car driven by Dr. Charles Skowrin of Lancaster, Pa., and then into Mrs. Skowrin, who was just getting into the car. She was treated at a hospital for a scalp laceration and bruises.

The second smashed into two parked cars, then into a mail box and a fire alarm box.

Four fire trucks answered the alarm and police rounded up the scattered mail.

Ike Plans Golf Vacation

WASHINGTON, March 17. (AP)—The White House indicated today that President Eisenhower will go to Augusta, Ga., about the middle of April for another golfing vacation.

Sharpsburg, Md., Man Charged With Murder

HAGERSTOWN, March 17 (AP)—Robert L. Benner, 40, of Sharpsburg, was charged formally with murder today in the shotgun shooting of his mother's boarder, Thomas W. Brashears.

Deputy Sheriff Miachel Farrie said Benner fired two blasts into the 69-year-old Brashear's neck, then walked to a nearby tavern, where he asked that the sheriff be notified that:

"I just fixed the s-- o-- b----."

Benner's mother, Mrs. Alice Benner, told officers that Benner ordered Brashears, a retired railroad employe who boarded at the Benner home, to leave the house. Brashears refused.

Benner got his shotgun, his mother continued, fired once at Brashears at close range, and when Brashears didn't fall, reloaded and fired again. Brashears fell.

Speedy Sabre Jets Patrol German Skies

FUERSTENFELDBRUCK, Germany, March 17 (AP)—A detachment of U. S. F86 Sabre-jet fighters which have proved more than a match for the Soviet-built MIG15s—took up patrol of the skies along West Germany's border with Communist Czechoslovakia today.

Their first missions passed without incident. But their assignment to the U. S. Air Force base here emphasized a warning to the Communists that American fighters will shoot back if they are again attacked by MIG15s flying across the Iron Curtain.

The Sabres, their number still an official secret, were moved to Germany from a U. S. base in Britain to bolster the outmoded F84 Thunderjets which five of the six U. S. fighter wings in Europe are still flying.

Warning Spurs Consideration Of Billions More For Defense

Although considerable work has been done on new equipments, Project Lincoln has not assumed the proportions of the Manhattan District. Yet it has long absorbed the lion's share of M. I. T.'s remarkable scientific and technical resources, constituting such a heavy burden, in deed, that M. I. T. President James R. Killian Jr., has repeatedly but vainly sought relief from it.

Among the Lincoln leaders were Dr. Killian himself, Dr. Albert G. Hill, who served as project director, and Drs. Jerrold Zacharias, and Lloyd V. Berkner. Consultants from the initiation of the project were such men as Drs. Charles Lauritsen, I. I. Rabi, J. Robert Oppenheimer and Vannevar Bush. Finally, last spring, when the time to reach conclusions was nearing, an immense and imposing array of physicists, mathematicians, engineers and other leading men was brought in from other American universities and scientific institutions.

The expanded working party, known as the Summer Study Group, added to the scientific constellation such figures as Drs. Leland Haworth, of the Brookhaven Laboratory, Winfield Salisbury of the University of California, and Emmanuel Piore, civilian chief of the Office of Naval Research. The Summer Study Group reached its conclusions after long and intensive review of all relevant data, technical, mathematical and theoretical. The Project Lincoln-Summer Study Group findings, plus the supporting facts, were then transmitted to Washington, where the problem was at once taken to the National Security Council and the White House.

When confronted by the same choice that now confronts President Eisenhower, President Harry S. Truman understandably preferred to leave the final decision to his successor. In this manner, President Eisenhower inherited his present dilemma as the took office.

The source of the dilemma, of course, is the explosion of the first people's democratic atomic bomb in September, 1949. It is now three and a half years since that crucial event; yet Project Lincoln represents the first really comprehensive, officially sponsored scientific effort to assess the meaning of the atomic bomb in Soviet hands.

To find out this meaning, the first question to be answered was whether the Kremlin possessed or was acquiring the means to deliver decisive quantities of atomic bombs to American targets. The answer was in the affirmative.

Leaving on one side such special means as bombs secretly introduced into our ports by visiting ships, and guided missiles launched from enemy submarines, it was found that the Soviet strategic air force in itself possessed impressive capabilities.

As of today, the Soviet strategic air force is known to comprise above 700 TU-4s. This aircraft, comparable to our own B-50, lacks intercontinental round-trip range. But it may be air-refueled. It can of course be flown on one way missions. It is able to carry fast Soviet jet-fighters under its wings. If this device is adopted, the jet-fighters, bomb-loaded of course, can be released from the TU-4s just off our coasts, and will then drive to their targets at speeds equal to the speeds of planes composing our small interceptor force.

In addition, it is possible, and is even thought of by many to be probable, that the Soviets are now producing bigger, faster bombers of full intercontinental range, suitable for round-trip attacks. It is further thought that these new Soviet heavy bombers may be equipped with turbo-prop engines, to permit speedy flight at low altitudes for hedge-hoping target approach. In any case, the means of delivering atomic bombs to American targets must be credited to the Kremlin.

The second question the scientists had to answer was whether the Kremlin would have enough bombs, and if so, when. It was this question, mainly, which introduced the time factor, leading the scientists to allow a time of grace before the time of total peril. Even so, their calculations cannot be said to be cheerful.

For obvious reasons, the figures used by Project Lincoln are not precisely known. But a rough idea of them can no doubt be obtained from estimates of Soviet atomic production that were in official American use until not too long ago. These estimates would give the Soviets between 130 and 155 bombs of fifty kiloton power as of January 1, this year; between 205 and 250 bombs as of January 1, 1954; and between 275 and 360 bombs as of January 1, 1955.

At any rate, the Project Lincoln-Summer Study Group scientists concluded that the Kremlin would have an atomic stockpile large enough seriously to cripple, or even to devastate this country within two years 'time. Their forward estimates of course included reasonable margins for bombs-not-on-target and for reserve stocks.

"Cripple" and "devastate" are here used, it should be added, as words of art, which they have recently become. "Crippling" has the ordinary dictionary meaning of "devastation," being atomic damage sufficient to hamstring this country in a war, but not to end all powers of resistance. "Devastation" in turn means the degree of destruction needed to knock out this country as a military opponent, beyond hope of comeback.

The quantities of atomic bombs-on-target needed to "cripple" and to "devastate" the United States have been accurately calculated. This bleak work is understood to have been done by Project East River, a scientific group studying civil defense under another government contract, which was rather closely coordinated with Project Lincoln.

It should also be remarked that certain competent authorities in the Pentagon think the Project Lincoln-Summer Study Group conclusions are a bit pessimistic. These men say it will be at least three years, and maybe four, before the Kremlin possesses a "devastating" atomic stockpile. The reprieve is not for long, and the comfort is diminished by the nature of the answer to the scientists' third question.

This was the question, whether our existing and presently projected air defense system promised this country any sort of security against Soviet air-atomic attack. The existing air defense system was found, unhappily, to have only one virtue. The post-Korean improvements of the warning net (the "radar fence," so grossly overpainted to the public) will give warning of an oncoming attack to our Strategic Air Command. Thus the planes of General Curtis LeMay's retaliatory striking force will at least be able to take evasive action.

Yet the interval of warning will be woefully short. The weapons to bring down the attackers are woefully few and poor. And the kill rate of attacking aircraft will be woefully low. General Hoyt S. Vandenberg has claimed a potential kill rate between 20 and 30 per cent, which in itself is far too low against attackers carrying atomic bombs. The scientific analysts believe that a kill rate below 10 per cent is infinitely more likely.

Such low kill rates against atomic attackers really amount to no air defense at all. If the foregoing calculations are correct, our cities, our industry and our military installations, conspicuously including the vital bases of the Strategic Air Command, will all be doomed in the event of large scale air-atomic attacks strongly pressed home. The usefulness of the Strategic Air Command air fleet after the destruction of its bases and most of the rest of the country is a question closely disputed. Certainly hurting the enemy would hardly console a "devastated" America.

In this remorselessly somber, picture, there is a single ray of light. Our air defense is in a sorry state today, because it was not technically possible, until very recently, to contrive anything much better. More money might have been spent, but without proportional result. But the Project Lincoln-Summer Study Group scientists have given an affirmative answer to their final question, whether it is possible to build a truly effective air defense at this time. In fact their central finding is that America can achieve reasonable security against air-atomic attack, if America wants to pay for it.

The scientific advances which hold out this hope cannot be discussed in the present report. The novel weapons and improved warning devices that promise a measure of safety against the worst of all perils have no bearing on the great, central issue of national policy. The important point is that the scientists think the job can be done.

Much of the equipment needed is still in the design and theory stage. It is not certain that every part in the system conceived by Project Lincoln and the Summer Study Group will work as expected. There are even certain reported gaps in the concept—the warning system is understood to be much further perfected than the system of weapons that much respond to the warning. The estimates of expenditure, originally given as $10 to $16 billion and lately increased to $16 to $20 billion, are staggering.

The question is, in short, whether to gamble these vast sums (and perhaps the health of the economy) on the scientists being right, or to gamble the survival of America on the scientists being wrong. Such is the best short description of the two horns of the dilemma, between which President Eisenhower must shortly choose.

According to authentic report, the dilemma has thus far evoked mixed responses at the top level of the Administration. Among the members of the National Security Council, Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey and Budget Director Joseph Dodge are known to advocate a go-slow approach.

This is natural. Maintenance of all existing taxes—further tax rises to achieve near-balance of the budget—an increase in the existing national debt limit of $275 billion—further inflation—further distortion of the economy by unduly high tax levels—these are the specters which inevitably haunt Dodge and Humphrey. By the very nature of their offices, they must incline to the often-repeated theory that the Soviets are "trying to destroy the United States by undermining the American economy."

Meanwhile another strong faction points out that economic impairment by inflation and high taxation is not a form of destruction that can be weighed in the balance against the physical and final destruction of this republic. President Eisenhower himself seems to lean towards this view.

At any rate, on February 19, the President took the significant step of giving more than an inkling of his dilemma to the Republican and Democratic congressional leaders. This was the bi-partisan White House briefing on defense problems which was rather palely characterized as "grim" by Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire. At this meeting, the President, who could sleep soundly the night before the Normandy landing, confessed to the assembled senators and representatives that his dilemma was giving him sleepless nights.

As might be expected, one of the governmental responses to the dilemma has been that of a man who hopefully consults other doctors, seeking a pleasanter verdict, when his own physician orders him to have a painful and dangerous operation.

Even before the Eisenhower in-

Harassed Berlin

Berlin continues to be the focal center in Europe of the cold war between East and West. During recent months, the city has suffered steadily increasing Soviet harassment, which makes life difficult for all Berliners and is further isolating the section still functioning under free institutions.

Whether the changes at Moscow following the death of Stalin will lead to relaxation of the tension in Berlin is a matter of conjecture. But should the new masters of the Kremlin precipitate a shooting war in Europe by some reckless action, Berlin would be the first victim because of its unique front-line position.

Since 1945, Berlin has been a multinational "island" 110 miles inside Soviet-controlled East Germany. It has maintained links with West Germany and with surrounding areas of East Germany, but the Russians always have been in position to cut those links. Since the breakdown of joint occupational control in 1948, the "opposing but physically-joined halves" of the city have been ruled by two rival municipal governments.

The Western half of Berlin now is both a haven of freedom inside the Communist police empire and a valuable observation post for the West. This sizeable hole in the Iron Curtain is a source of irritation to the Kremlin and makes consolidation of East Germany as a Soviet satellite virtually impossible. At the same time, West Berlin's vulnerable position affords a lever for use in Soviet efforts to pry the West German republic out of its affiliations with the free nations.

The new series of Soviet moves against West Berlin got under way last May after the Bonn government had signed the peace contract and the related European army treaty with the Western powers. The Russians then embarked on a program of sealing off East Germany from the West. They converted the zonal boundary between East and West Germany into what amounts to an international frontier and created a three-mile prohibited strip along its entire length.

Step by step, they have been building up barriers to intercourse between West Berlin and the surrounding Red-controlled countryside. West Berliners must have "special passes" to travel into East German territory. Most roads leading from West Berlin into Red suburbs have been barricaded at the city limits.

Within the city itself, movement between the Soviet sector and West Berlin continued relatively unimpeded until quite recently. But West Berliners now are forbidden to shop in East Berlin, and vehicles crossing the sector line are subjected to Red police inspection. In January, the Reds split the streetcar system so the lines end at each side of the boundary. In February, they began experimenting with ways to carry out police checks on key elevated and subway lines.

Mayor Reuter of West Berlin doubts that the Russians will completely sever East Berlin from the Western sectors, but he expects them to make travel more arduous. Some 40,000 West Berliners still commute to work in East Berlin daily and an equal number commute from East to West. As the Reds have stepped up efforts to seal off and sovietize East Germany, droves of refugees have been fleeing through East Berlin to the Western sectors.

Soviet zone refugees reporting to West Berlin authorities rose from 4,000 last April to 15,000 in August. In January 1953, the refugee figure reached 25,000 and in February roughly 40,000. Reuter says that only 1½ per cent of the refugees are too old to work and that this heavy loss of manpower must be seriously worrying the Russians But the rising tide of refugees also has created serious problems for West Berlin authorities, Allied officials, and the Bonn government.

The Soviets, in their new campaign against West Berlin, have so far made no move to cut the city's land-water connections with West Germany as they did in 1948. James B. Conant, new U. S. high commissioner for Germany, served notice February 18 that the United States will take forceful measures to overcome any new blockade because it is "pledged" to help the city remain "an unshaken outpost of the Western world."

Frozen Assets

During the final months of World War II the Navy felt it had a good thing in Alaska. Geologists noted plenty of oil-bearing formations along the ice-locked coast above Point Barrow and inland under the tundra. The Navy obtained a congressional appropriation to do some wildcatting—far above the Arctic Circle.

Since 1945 approximately $50,000,000 has gone into the Pet Four Project, as the Navy called it, and nary a word has been heard about a drop of oil. A great deal of seismic prospecting went on during the short summer months, and during that time the amphibious branch of the blue water service had a chance to put its theories on Arctic landings into practice.

In the few days in July each year that the polar ice pack retreated from the shore, landing craft would race against time and weather to put ashore the food, fuel, shoes, sealing wax and the hundred and one other items a snowbound expedition needs to sustain life and sanity during the long winter months.

Recently the Navy quietly asked Congress to strike a $9,700,000 item from its appropriation. The money had been earmarked for another year's Arctic exploration. Equipment and personnel will be withdrawn sometime this summer, and that will be that.

Whether the Navy figures that the products of the Oak Ridge, Hanford and Arco atomic plants will be sufficient to propel its future ships isn't stated. Nor is it clear whether the Navy found out what it wanted to know. It may be that the Navy actually brought in some wells and capped them, as sort of frozen assets, for future use. Then again, all holes may have been whatever they call a "duster" in Alaska.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Reducing Sweating

Some individuals perspire more freely than others. Their hands and feet are moist most of the time and the use of underarm antiperspirants seldom is successful, even in the winter time. It makes no difference whether the persons are sitting quietly or exerting themselves, the sweat glands continue to work overtime. But something can be done, especially for those who are bothered to such an extent that the abnormal secretion is annoying.

These super-sweaters generally are otherwise healthy and differ from the remainder of us only in possessing an overly active autonomic (sympathetic) nervous system which constantly stimulates the sweat glands to produce at top speed. These individuals have no conscious control over the mechanism any more than they can govern the rate of the heart beat or the digestion of food. Variations along this line are apparent even in the same family. Of two sisters sleeping in the same bed under the same covers, for example, one may awaken drenched in perspiration whereas the skin of the other is relatively dry. The sweating apparatus of the shyper-reactors is stepped up greatly whenever they are confronted with conditions that normally induce sweating. In periods of excitement, anxiety, nervousness, and in a warm room the sweat glands go on a rampage.

The anti-cholinergic drugs such as Banthine are the best internal remedies. This type of product made headlines several years ago as a peptic ulcer remedy and it was noted at that time that it also affected the amount of sweating. This is understandable because the same group of nerves that stimulates the acid secretions of the stomach also stimulate the sweat glands. As a result, when the nerves going to the stomach are deadened, the effect on the nerves going to the skin is similar.

A 25 year old woman was given this treatment at one of our large southeastern clinics, with gratifying results. This woman had been bothered with excessive perspiration of her hands and feet for more than a year. The condition had become so uncomfortable she was unable to hold a telephone or stenographer's note pad without getting them wet. According to reports, the secretion also flowed freely from her arms even when she was calm and the temperature of the environment was moderate. When the young woman was under tension, the sweat dripped from her skin and fell to the floor. If she had been a traveling salesman, it would have been embarrassing for her to do the usual handshaking job.

In less than an hour after a large test dose of Banthine her hands, feet, and axillae became dry. The effect lasted for more than 12 hours. Later, various dosages were tried and it was found that by taking the compound several times a day she was able to suppress sweating. But in time a single dose was found to be better whenever strenuous work was anticipated and before she dressed for a date in the evening. Some side reactions were noted, including dilation of the pupils and dryness of the mouth but these symptoms she considered less troublesome than excessive sweating.

There are other causes of overabundant perspiration. It is common in the obese perhaps because of the insulating effect of the layers of blubber and the additional work of the body induced by the added poundage. The manifestation also occurs in illnesses that produce fever, such as tuberculosis and malaria. Those with goiter or high blood pressure perspire freely. When sweating is associated with eczema or contact dermatitis it may interfere with treatment and it is here that the anticholinergic drugs are being used, along with the usual ointments.

PLANTAR WART

T. W. writes: If you could imagine the pain caused by an ingrown corn on the bottom of the foot you would help me to get relief.

REPLY

I don't have to imagine it because I have gone thru this experience with a plantar wart. Have the lesion removed or have pads insterted into the shoes to relieve pressure in the affected area. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on plantar wart.

ARTHRITIS TYPES

C. V. writes: How can a person know whether his joint pains are caused by rheumatoid arthritis or osteoarthritis?

REPLY

He can't unless he has had medical training. On the other hand, osteoarthritis usually develops in older persons and is prone to attack the weight bearing joints. Rheumatoid arthritis affects younger individuals and is associated with more pain, swelling, and stiffness.

STONY

Mrs. Z. writes: How did I ever get 300 stones in my gall bladder that I just had removed?

REPLY

You cannot accuse your gall bladder of being a piker. But you can consider yourself lucky that the surgeon does not base his fee on the number of stones found.

Defense Cuts Should Include Super Airplane Carriers; Carrier Planes Made Poor Showing In Korea; Small Carriers Needed For Submarine Warfare

ED. Note—Here is another of Drew Pearson's columns on government waste and how to balance the budget.)

WASHINGTON. — The Joint Chiefs of Staff are sitting most of this week in a difficult hassle over the $4,250,000,000 budget cut handed them out of the blue by Secretary of Defense Wilson. The most important and immediate saving they can accomplish will also be the most controversial—super airplane carriers.

The question of carriers has created storms in Congress and helped bring the resignation of one Defense secretary — Louey Johnson. Nevertheless, it remains a fact that the defense budget cannot be cut by trimming down every item a little bit; it must be cut by drastically trimming the least-needed weapons of defense a lot.

All the secret studies show that the supercarrier is in this category. Not only is it least-needed, but many military experts consider it a liability. It takes too many other vessels to protect it. This was the report of the British Joint Chiefs of Staff following NATO naval maneuvers in the Baltic.

Though the report was held up in Europe by the office of Vice Adm. Arthur D. Davis, it can be revealed that the British claimed it would be "suicidal" to throw naval aircraft against Russia's superior land-based planes, and that carriers are needed "mainly to protect shipping."

On top of this, the U. S. Navy has suppressed vitally important facts about the poor showing of carrier planes in Korea. By stamping all embarrassing statistics "top secret," the Navy has been able to conceal the facts not only from the public but from Congress, and perhaps even from Secretary Wilson's budget pruners.

However, this column, after deleting details which might aid the enemy, is now able to report the score on Navy planes vs. Air Force planes from the Korean outbreak until Jan. 1, 1953:

1. Slightly under 75 per cent of our combat aircraft were land-based. Yet these land-based planes flew 83 per cent of the total offensive missions. The remaining 25 per cent of the planes based on carriers flew only 17 per cent of the missions.

2. The Navy's few land-based planes did not measure up to the Air Force. Of all the combat planes based on land, the Navy operated four per cent. Yet it flew only one-tenth of one per cent of the missions. The Air Force, with less than 60 per cent of the land-based planes, flew 67 per cent of the missions. The Marines, with 12 per cent, flew 15 per cent of the missions. The remaining 18 per cent were flown by our UN allies.

3. The Navy has assigned seven carriers to the Korean War, yet the average number of carriers actually on duty has been less than four. The others have been ferrying back and forth or tied up at Pacific bases for repairs. Even the four carriers in the battle zone must interrupt flight operations about half the time in order to take on supplies and make shipboard repairs.

4. One-fourth of the Navy's "combat sorties" have been restricted to circling over the carriers as protective cover. In other words, the Navy's seven carriers assigned to the Korean War have been in the battle zone only half the time, have kept their planes on deck half of this time, then have sent only three-fourths of their planes against the enemy. The balance have been used to protect the carriers.

5. Of the 615 MIG fighters shot down over Korea, the Navy has bagged only seven. This is no reflection on Navy pilots who are actually better trained than Air Force pilots. The real reason is that the Navy has inferior planes, and has ordered its pilots to avoid tangling with the MIGs.

6. When the build-up of Russian planes behind the Yalu became a genuine menace about a year ago, the three services were asked what they would do in case of a Communist air attack on South Korea. The Navy replied that this "could well result in redeployment southward — meaning in nonmilitary language — a Navy withdrawal. This didn't mean the Navy's carrier task forces would run for cover out of fear, but the blunt truth is that they are vulnerable to an air blitz.

What makes these facts even more shocking is that a carrier force costs seven times more money, takes nine times more manpower and uses up 13 times more fuel than an equivalent group of Air Force bombers. This comparison, incidentally, takes into account the Air Force base with all its facilities and defenses.

Not even the most economy-minded experts, however, are arguing that carriers should be abolished. Small carriers are vitally needed to hunt down and destroy enemy submarines.

The Navy has acknowledged that its primary mission is to keep the sea lanes open and guard our coast against submarines. Despite this, the Navy gave up eight other vessels, including three anti-submarine and three anti-mine vessels, in order to build the second super-carrier. Not only are the supercarriers too big to fight submarines economically, but they can't even squeeze through the Panama or Suez Canals. This means they must take the long way around South America and Africa to get from ocean to ocean.

The Navy has frankly advertised its supercarriers as floating air bases to launch offensive strikes against an enemy. Inside fact, however, is that all Russia's strategic targets have been moved deep inland—out of range of the Navy's longest-range bombers. The Navy couldn't get close enough to hit the nearest important target, Moscow, except by sending bombers on one-way suicide missions, with no thought of returning.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

A Mixed-Up Book

For a year or more I have been planning to write about a mixed-up book, "The Iron Curtain over America," by Professor John Beaty, but I never got around to it, what with one thing or another. This book is having a widespread circulation, some organization sending out free copies of which I got several.

I received from James W. Fifield Jr., pastor of the First Congregational Church of Los Angeles and founder of Spiritual Mobilization, a pamphlet attacking this book, written by V. Orval Watts for the publication, "Faith and Freedom."

It is impossible to read Professor John Beaty's book without reaching the conclusion that the professor seeks to prove that communism is a Jewish movement. He develops a theory about "Judaized Khazars" for which there is no historical basis. The Khazars were a Turkish people, small in number, who were converted to Judaism in the Ninth Century and who were absorbed among the Jewish, Turkish and Russian peoples and disappeared from history by the end of the Eleventh Century.

Mr. Watts calls attention to Professor Beaty's carelessness in citing his authorities. He says:

"At the outset a critical reader may note that the author sometimes gives references for trifling details, while he makes many highly important allegations without a scrap of supporting evidence or documentation."

Professor Beaty makes a violent attack on the Babylonian Talmud, which is an encyclopedia of huge dimensions that has only recently appeared in full English translation. I have found, over the years, that many who quote from it have never read it either in the original or in translation but have seen some excerpts. It is a difficult task to read the Talmud because it is prepared in a scholastic manner, giving the pros and cons on many questions, the wrong point of view being set up with the object of having it knocked down.

The Talmud also contains history, science, genealogy, anthropology, myths, fiction, folklore and adages. One can find in it both sides of most questions and some arguments to uphold each side. Such persons as John Beaty and Elizabeth Dilling issue pronouncements on this great work without proper preparation.

After the fall of the temple in Jerusalem in 70 A. D., many Jewish scholars and rabbis settled in Babylonia where academies already existed for the study of the law. The academies at Sura and Pumbedita achieved the greatest distinction.

Professor George Foot Moore, at one time professor of the history of religion in Harvard University, who, although a Christian, was, in his day, one of the world's greatest authorities on the Jews, wrote:

"It is proper to say that the Talmud is one of the books of which even the best translation is in large part to be understood only with the aid of the original and of the Hebrew commentaries."

With regard to the Jews, Professor Moore wrote:

"Of all the religions which at the beginning of the Christian era flourished in the Roman and Parthian empires Judaism alone has survived, and it survived because it succeeded in achieving a unity of belief and observance among Jews in all their wide dispersion then and since . . ."

It was because of the existence of the Talmud that such uniformity could be achieved. Professor Moore has stated the essence of the Jewish faith in one concise paragraph which I quote herewith:

"The foundation of Judaism is the belief that religion is revealed. What man is to believe concerning God and what duty God requires of man, he has made known in one form or another by revelation. Specific commandments had been given to Adam, Noah, Abraham, and Jacob; to Moses the complete revelation was given once for all. The prophets who came after him repeated, explained, emphasized, applied, what was revealed to Moses; they added nothing to it. The revelation to Moses was in part embodied in writing in the Pentateuch, in part transmitted orally from generation to generation in unbroken succession down to the schools of the Law in which tradition was defined, formulated, and systematized. The whole of religion was revealed — 'nothing was kept back in heaven'— and the whole content of revelation was religion."

In the present confusion in this world of ours, we need to try to find some clarity, particularly in defining our terms. Otherwise, we strengthen the enemy of all of us.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Congress has only scratched the surface of the ammunition scandal of the Truman administration and, despite the "buck passing" and the attempts to cover up, the truth is bound to come out.

Today this correspondent presents a copy of a telegram just sent by Lieut. Gen. Edward M. Almond to Gen. James A. Van Fleet backing up the latter's charges.

General Almond, who retired on February 1 and is, therefore, in a position now to speak freely, was commander of the 10th Army Corps in Korea from the time of the Inchon landing on September 15, 1950, until July 1951. Since General Van Fleet took command on April 14, 1951, and General Almond left Korea on July 15, 1951, their terms of service overlapped for several months. Here is the text of the telegram to General Van Fleet from General Almond:

Praised By Almond

"Hearty congratulations on your magnificent testimony, as reported in the press, before Congress on the military situation in Korea. Your honest and correct interpretations of conditions there have served to enlighten the people of our country and to confound and to deflate the generalizations and equivocations made by those who have tried to discredit your statements. I know the facts to be as you have stated them from the beginning of the Korean conflict until the time I left you in July 1951. Since my departure, my interpretation of information corroborates your testimony. Public statements made by me since my retirement support your views 100 per cent and I am ready at any time to substantially support your position. Your service to our nation has been magnificent and your statements in Congress add emphasis to your loyalty and patriotism. My best wishes to you always as a comrade in arms."

But perhaps the most significant piece of information comes from Tracy S. Voorhees, undersecretary of the Army in the last administration. In a copyrighted interview in "U. S. News & World Report" this week, Mr. Voorhees says:

"We have gone into this Korean War, for instance, without either any budgetary or production plan for it. It was assumed budgetwise, and therefore productionwise, that the Korean War would end by July 1, 1951. But the war got rather obstinate and terperamental and declined to end, so they extended its life to July 1, 1952. The war was still stubborn, so its lease of life was extended by the U. S. planners until July 1, 1953. That was, I believe, one reason for this cutback which was made in U. S. production announced early last December. The net result has been that the Korean War remains alive and hungry for military equipment and supplies, and that we have just kept taking things that were produced for Europe and have shipped them to Korea.

"And nobody can criticize our military people for doing that when our fighting men in Korea were short of these arms. But we can criticize the failure to plan to carry on a war we are already in, so that our men will have the equipment and supplies to fight it. There is certainly high support for such a statement since President Eisenhower came back from Korea and made a general reference to shortages of some supplies over there that would have to be corrected. But the shortage, it seems to me, was not due to the Army's failure to buy what was needed, but to the Budget Bureau's decision not to let the Army budget and procure on a scale which would see the Korean War through without diverting to Korea equipment and supplies produced for our allies in Europe . . ."

"Whose responsibility was that—secretary of Defense? chief of staff?" Mr. Voorhees was asked.

Basic Policy Wrong

"No, I think it was a basic government policy that was wrong," he replied. "A policy of partial, restricted, limited effort which went right straight through our government. The Budget Bureau, which presumably had the President's approval, took this position about not budgeting for a possible or probable continuance of the Korean War. Then it was unpopular to deprive the American consumer public of anything, so we went right on manufacturing automobiles, refrigerators and everything else, instead of manufacturing these things we needed to fight with in Korea and to create a real defense in Europe.

"As I see it, it is the policy of 'too little and too late' that was wrong. The point is that we have been at war for two and a half years and have this big Russian military threat hanging over Europe, and so threatening us also. And we are the one country in the world that can certainly succeed in production, but we just haven't done it fast enough."

What do the GI's think of all this?

In a letter to this correspondent received today, a lady writes about her brother's boy who had come home from Korea covered with medals and Purple Heart decorations:

"Now that he is at home and in college, his only bitterness is when he gets talking about how all his buddies got killed right before his eyes and how they wouldn't have been if they only had some ammunition . . .

"My younger son is on an ammunition ship plying up and down both coasts of Korea rearming the carriers and battleships.

"The day your article came out, we got a letter from him saying his ship went into some little town to give a load of ammunition to some Army unit that had gotten stranded there with absolutely nothing."

The point is that the soldiers in Korea have for many months been writing home about the shortage of ammunition in Korea. They knew it. The enemy probably knew it—because attacks were sporadic. But the American people haven't known the truth—and if it were not for the sometimes condemned system of congressional investigations, they wouldn't know about it yet.

Inside Washington

WASHINGTON — The Navy has found it necessary to build the first atomic-powered submarine considerably larger than it had expected.

The hull being built at Groton, Conn., is only 300 feet long—60 feet shorter than the conventional submarine—but the nuclear giant must be extremely thick to accommodate all the gear and protective devices against radiation which are an integral part of its construction.

The atom sub is three stories high in landlubber terminology. This, needless to say, is a boon to the crew in terms of living space. Conventional submarines, by the same measurements, are only one and one-half stories high. Fortunately, the additional space will not cut down the atom sub's speed.

The A-sub is efficient and fast for underwater travel because its nose is blunt and it slopes a little toward the rear. It is an old seagoing principle that a cone-shaped object can be more easily propelled underwater if its blunt end blazes the trail. A so-called "dead water" area forms then around the balance of the cone and there is no friction except that of water on water.

Although the A-sub will be comparatively slow and clumsy on the surface, it will cut through the water with the greatest of ease. In this it will resemble two seagoing specimens which have operated successfully in the same way for a number of years—the whale and the porpoise. Their engineering is constructed along the same lines.

Air Forts

Allied air force officers are happy about a Russian MIG-15 falling into Western hands. The plane was allegedly piloted into Allied hands by an escaping Polish pilot disillusioned by Soviet methods and thinking.

The Allies need just such a plane to test their theories on the performance of Russian jets as opposed to those manufactured by the Western Powers.

The nearest thing to an intact MIG so far in Allied hands is one that was fished out of the water off the coast of North Korea after it had been shot down. This plane was quickly brought to the United States and various static tests were made but the results were a little unsatisfactory.

The MIG-15 that was piloted by the fugitive Polish officer was said at last reports to be in the hands of Danish officials. Since Denmark is a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization the United States Air Force is hopeful that it will get a crack at testing the ace Russian jet plane.

Economy

Senator Alexander Wiley (R), Wisconsin, as he strode down a Capitol corridor the other day, was heard to repeat over and over again in conversation: "Economy is here; economy is here."

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman had just returned at the time from an early morning conference with the President.

He told inquiring newsmen that the group of congressional conferees was given a White House "breakfast" of orange juice and coffee—and nothing else.

This is easily understandable since the Eisenhower administration has set early working hours for government employes and the chief executive himself is hard at work by 8 o'clock in the morning.

Wiley, who had breakfasted at home before going to the executive mansion, was pleased with the early morning conference which enabled him to get on with his senatorial duties at an early hour. Senator Robert A. Taft (R), Ohio, an early riser, also was pleased with the conference time.

A number of other senators, however, would prefer to start their day closer to noon and openly grumbled about the lack of bacon and eggs, biscuits and other eye-openers at their White House meeting.

As far as Taft and Wiley are concerned, however, time is money and their major aim is to save both. Both GOP leaders were unimpressed by complaints of their lazier colleagues.

Harassed Berlin

Berlin continues to be the focal center in Europe of the cold war between East and West. During recent months, the city has suffered steadily increasing Soviet harassment, which makes life difficult for all Berliners and is further isolating the section still functioning under free institutions.

Whether the changes at Moscow following the death of Stalin will lead to relaxation of the tension in Berlin is a matter of conjecture. But should the new masters of the Kremlin precipitate a shooting war in Europe by some reckless action, Berlin would be the first victim because of its unique front-line position.

Since 1945, Berlin has been a multinational "island" 110 miles inside Soviet-controlled East Germany. It has maintained links with West Germany and with surrounding areas of East Germany, but the Russians always have been in position to cut those links. Since the breakdown of joint occupational control in 1948, the "opposing but physically-joined halves" of the city have been ruled by two rival municipal governments.

The Western half of Berlin now is both a haven of freedom inside the Communist police empire and a valuable observation post for the West. This sizeable hole in the Iron Curtain is a source of irritation to the Kremlin and makes consolidation of East Germany as a Soviet satellite virtually impossible. At the same time, West Berlin's vulnerable position affords a lever for use in Soviet efforts to pry the West German republic out of its affiliations with the free nations.

The new series of Soviet moves against West Berlin got under way last May after the Bonn government had signed the peace contract and the related European army treaty with the Western powers. The Russians then embarked on a program of sealing off East Germany from the West. They converted the zonal boundary between East and West Germany into what amounts to an international frontier and created a three-mile prohibited strip along its entire length.

Step by step, they have been building up barriers to intercourse between West Berlin and the surrounding Red-controlled countryside. West Berliners must have "special passes" to travel into East German territory. Most roads leading from West Berlin into Red suburbs have been barricaded at the city limits.

Within the city itself, movement between the Soviet sector and West Berlin continued relatively unimpeded until quite recently. But West Berliners now are forbidden to shop in East Berlin, and vehicles crossing the sector line are subjected to Red police inspection. In January, the Reds split the streetcar system so the lines end at each side of the boundary. In February, they began experimenting with ways to carry out police checks on key elevated and subway lines.

Mayor Reuter of West Berlin doubts that the Russians will completely sever East Berlin from the Western sectors, but he expects them to make travel more arduous. Some 40,000 West Berliners still commute to work in East Berlin daily and an equal number commute from East to West. As the Reds have stepped up efforts to seal off and sovietize East Germany, droves of refugees have been fleeing through East Berlin to the Western sectors.

Soviet zone refugees reporting to West Berlin authorities rose from 4,000 last April to 15,000 in August. In January 1953, the refugee figure reached 25,000 and in February roughly 40,000. Reuter says that only 1½ per cent of the refugees are too old to work and that this heavy loss of manpower must be seriously worrying the Russians But the rising tide of refugees also has created serious problems for West Berlin authorities, Allied officials, and the Bonn government.

The Soviets, in their new campaign against West Berlin, have so far made no move to cut the city's land-water connections with West Germany as they did in 1948. James B. Conant, new U. S. high commissioner for Germany, served notice February 18 that the United States will take forceful measures to overcome any new blockade because it is "pledged" to help the city remain "an unshaken outpost of the Western world."

Frozen Assets

During the final months of World War II the Navy felt it had a good thing in Alaska. Geologists noted plenty of oil-bearing formations along the ice-locked coast above Point Barrow and inland under the tundra. The Navy obtained a congressional appropriation to do some wildcatting—far above the Arctic Circle.

Since 1945 approximately $50,000,000 has gone into the Pet Four Project, as the Navy called it, and nary a word has been heard about a drop of oil. A great deal of seismic prospecting went on during the short summer months, and during that time the amphibious branch of the blue water service had a chance to put its theories on Arctic landings into practice.

In the few days in July each year that the polar ice pack retreated from the shore, landing craft would race against time and weather to put ashore the food, fuel, shoes, sealing wax and the hundred and one other items a snowbound expedition needs to sustain life and sanity during the long winter months.

Recently the Navy quietly asked Congress to strike a $9,700,000 item from its appropriation. The money had been earmarked for another year's Arctic exploration. Equipment and personnel will be withdrawn sometime this summer, and that will be that.

Whether the Navy figures that the products of the Oak Ridge, Hanford and Arco atomic plants will be sufficient to propel its future ships isn't stated. Nor is it clear whether the Navy found out what it wanted to know. It may be that the Navy actually brought in some wells and capped them, as sort of frozen assets, for future use. Then again, all holes may have been whatever they call a "duster" in Alaska.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Reducing Sweating

Some individuals perspire more freely than others. Their hands and feet are moist most of the time and the use of underarm antiperspirants seldom is successful, even in the winter time. It makes no difference whether the persons are sitting quietly or exerting themselves, the sweat glands continue to work overtime. But something can be done, especially for those who are bothered to such an extent that the abnormal secretion is annoying.

These super-sweaters generally are otherwise healthy and differ from the remainder of us only in possessing an overly active autonomic (sympathetic) nervous system which constantly stimulates the sweat glands to produce at top speed. These individuals have no conscious control over the mechanism any more than they can govern the rate of the heart beat or the digestion of food. Variations along this line are apparent even in the same family. Of two sisters sleeping in the same bed under the same covers, for example, one may awaken drenched in perspiration whereas the skin of the other is relatively dry. The sweating apparatus of the shyper-reactors is stepped up greatly whenever they are confronted with conditions that normally induce sweating. In periods of excitement, anxiety, nervousness, and in a warm room the sweat glands go on a rampage.

The anti-cholinergic drugs such as Banthine are the best internal remedies. This type of product made headlines several years ago as a peptic ulcer remedy and it was noted at that time that it also affected the amount of sweating. This is understandable because the same group of nerves that stimulates the acid secretions of the stomach also stimulate the sweat glands. As a result, when the nerves going to the stomach are deadened, the effect on the nerves going to the skin is similar.

A 25 year old woman was given this treatment at one of our large southeastern clinics, with gratifying results. This woman had been bothered with excessive perspiration of her hands and feet for more than a year. The condition had become so uncomfortable she was unable to hold a telephone or stenographer's note pad without getting them wet. According to reports, the secretion also flowed freely from her arms even when she was calm and the temperature of the environment was moderate. When the young woman was under tension, the sweat dripped from her skin and fell to the floor. If she had been a traveling salesman, it would have been embarrassing for her to do the usual handshaking job.

In less than an hour after a large test dose of Banthine her hands, feet, and axillae became dry. The effect lasted for more than 12 hours. Later, various dosages were tried and it was found that by taking the compound several times a day she was able to suppress sweating. But in time a single dose was found to be better whenever strenuous work was anticipated and before she dressed for a date in the evening. Some side reactions were noted, including dilation of the pupils and dryness of the mouth but these symptoms she considered less troublesome than excessive sweating.

There are other causes of overabundant perspiration. It is common in the obese perhaps because of the insulating effect of the layers of blubber and the additional work of the body induced by the added poundage. The manifestation also occurs in illnesses that produce fever, such as tuberculosis and malaria. Those with goiter or high blood pressure perspire freely. When sweating is associated with eczema or contact dermatitis it may interfere with treatment and it is here that the anticholinergic drugs are being used, along with the usual ointments.

PLANTAR WART

T. W. writes: If you could imagine the pain caused by an ingrown corn on the bottom of the foot you would help me to get relief.

REPLY

I don't have to imagine it because I have gone thru this experience with a plantar wart. Have the lesion removed or have pads insterted into the shoes to relieve pressure in the affected area. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on plantar wart.

ARTHRITIS TYPES

C. V. writes: How can a person know whether his joint pains are caused by rheumatoid arthritis or osteoarthritis?

REPLY

He can't unless he has had medical training. On the other hand, osteoarthritis usually develops in older persons and is prone to attack the weight bearing joints. Rheumatoid arthritis affects younger individuals and is associated with more pain, swelling, and stiffness.

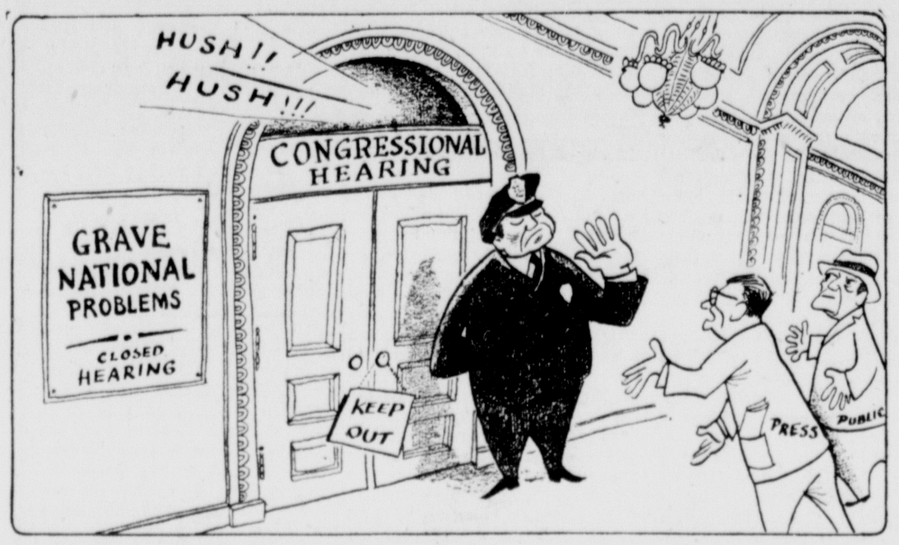

STONY

Mrs. Z. writes: How did I ever get 300 stones in my gall bladder that I just had removed?

REPLY

You cannot accuse your gall bladder of being a piker. But you can consider yourself lucky that the surgeon does not base his fee on the number of stones found.

Defense Cuts Should Include Super Airplane Carriers; Carrier Planes Made Poor Showing In Korea; Small Carriers Needed For Submarine Warfare

ED. Note—Here is another of Drew Pearson's columns on government waste and how to balance the budget.)

WASHINGTON. — The Joint Chiefs of Staff are sitting most of this week in a difficult hassle over the $4,250,000,000 budget cut handed them out of the blue by Secretary of Defense Wilson. The most important and immediate saving they can accomplish will also be the most controversial—super airplane carriers.

The question of carriers has created storms in Congress and helped bring the resignation of one Defense secretary — Louey Johnson. Nevertheless, it remains a fact that the defense budget cannot be cut by trimming down every item a little bit; it must be cut by drastically trimming the least-needed weapons of defense a lot.

All the secret studies show that the supercarrier is in this category. Not only is it least-needed, but many military experts consider it a liability. It takes too many other vessels to protect it. This was the report of the British Joint Chiefs of Staff following NATO naval maneuvers in the Baltic.

Though the report was held up in Europe by the office of Vice Adm. Arthur D. Davis, it can be revealed that the British claimed it would be "suicidal" to throw naval aircraft against Russia's superior land-based planes, and that carriers are needed "mainly to protect shipping."

On top of this, the U. S. Navy has suppressed vitally important facts about the poor showing of carrier planes in Korea. By stamping all embarrassing statistics "top secret," the Navy has been able to conceal the facts not only from the public but from Congress, and perhaps even from Secretary Wilson's budget pruners.

However, this column, after deleting details which might aid the enemy, is now able to report the score on Navy planes vs. Air Force planes from the Korean outbreak until Jan. 1, 1953:

1. Slightly under 75 per cent of our combat aircraft were land-based. Yet these land-based planes flew 83 per cent of the total offensive missions. The remaining 25 per cent of the planes based on carriers flew only 17 per cent of the missions.

2. The Navy's few land-based planes did not measure up to the Air Force. Of all the combat planes based on land, the Navy operated four per cent. Yet it flew only one-tenth of one per cent of the missions. The Air Force, with less than 60 per cent of the land-based planes, flew 67 per cent of the missions. The Marines, with 12 per cent, flew 15 per cent of the missions. The remaining 18 per cent were flown by our UN allies.

3. The Navy has assigned seven carriers to the Korean War, yet the average number of carriers actually on duty has been less than four. The others have been ferrying back and forth or tied up at Pacific bases for repairs. Even the four carriers in the battle zone must interrupt flight operations about half the time in order to take on supplies and make shipboard repairs.

4. One-fourth of the Navy's "combat sorties" have been restricted to circling over the carriers as protective cover. In other words, the Navy's seven carriers assigned to the Korean War have been in the battle zone only half the time, have kept their planes on deck half of this time, then have sent only three-fourths of their planes against the enemy. The balance have been used to protect the carriers.

5. Of the 615 MIG fighters shot down over Korea, the Navy has bagged only seven. This is no reflection on Navy pilots who are actually better trained than Air Force pilots. The real reason is that the Navy has inferior planes, and has ordered its pilots to avoid tangling with the MIGs.

6. When the build-up of Russian planes behind the Yalu became a genuine menace about a year ago, the three services were asked what they would do in case of a Communist air attack on South Korea. The Navy replied that this "could well result in redeployment southward — meaning in nonmilitary language — a Navy withdrawal. This didn't mean the Navy's carrier task forces would run for cover out of fear, but the blunt truth is that they are vulnerable to an air blitz.

What makes these facts even more shocking is that a carrier force costs seven times more money, takes nine times more manpower and uses up 13 times more fuel than an equivalent group of Air Force bombers. This comparison, incidentally, takes into account the Air Force base with all its facilities and defenses.

Not even the most economy-minded experts, however, are arguing that carriers should be abolished. Small carriers are vitally needed to hunt down and destroy enemy submarines.

The Navy has acknowledged that its primary mission is to keep the sea lanes open and guard our coast against submarines. Despite this, the Navy gave up eight other vessels, including three anti-submarine and three anti-mine vessels, in order to build the second super-carrier. Not only are the supercarriers too big to fight submarines economically, but they can't even squeeze through the Panama or Suez Canals. This means they must take the long way around South America and Africa to get from ocean to ocean.

The Navy has frankly advertised its supercarriers as floating air bases to launch offensive strikes against an enemy. Inside fact, however, is that all Russia's strategic targets have been moved deep inland—out of range of the Navy's longest-range bombers. The Navy couldn't get close enough to hit the nearest important target, Moscow, except by sending bombers on one-way suicide missions, with no thought of returning.

These Days

A Mixed-Up Book

For a year or more I have been planning to write about a mixed-up book, "The Iron Curtain over America," by Professor John Beaty, but I never got around to it, what with one thing or another. This book is having a widespread circulation, some organization sending out free copies of which I got several.

I received from James W. Fifield Jr., pastor of the First Congregational Church of Los Angeles and founder of Spiritual Mobilization, a pamphlet attacking this book, written by V. Orval Watts for the publication, "Faith and Freedom."

It is impossible to read Professor John Beaty's book without reaching the conclusion that the professor seeks to prove that communism is a Jewish movement. He develops a theory about "Judaized Khazars" for which there is no historical basis. The Khazars were a Turkish people, small in number, who were converted to Judaism in the Ninth Century and who were absorbed among the Jewish, Turkish and Russian peoples and disappeared from history by the end of the Eleventh Century.

Mr. Watts calls attention to Professor Beaty's carelessness in citing his authorities. He says:

"At the outset a critical reader may note that the author sometimes gives references for trifling details, while he makes many highly important allegations without a scrap of supporting evidence or documentation."

Professor Beaty makes a violent attack on the Babylonian Talmud, which is an encyclopedia of huge dimensions that has only recently appeared in full English translation. I have found, over the years, that many who quote from it have never read it either in the original or in translation but have seen some excerpts. It is a difficult task to read the Talmud because it is prepared in a scholastic manner, giving the pros and cons on many questions, the wrong point of view being set up with the object of having it knocked down.

The Talmud also contains history, science, genealogy, anthropology, myths, fiction, folklore and adages. One can find in it both sides of most questions and some arguments to uphold each side. Such persons as John Beaty and Elizabeth Dilling issue pronouncements on this great work without proper preparation.

After the fall of the temple in Jerusalem in 70 A. D., many Jewish scholars and rabbis settled in Babylonia where academies already existed for the study of the law. The academies at Sura and Pumbedita achieved the greatest distinction.

Professor George Foot Moore, at one time professor of the history of religion in Harvard University, who, although a Christian, was, in his day, one of the world's greatest authorities on the Jews, wrote:

"It is proper to say that the Talmud is one of the books of which even the best translation is in large part to be understood only with the aid of the original and of the Hebrew commentaries."

With regard to the Jews, Professor Moore wrote:

"Of all the religions which at the beginning of the Christian era flourished in the Roman and Parthian empires Judaism alone has survived, and it survived because it succeeded in achieving a unity of belief and observance among Jews in all their wide dispersion then and since . . ."

It was because of the existence of the Talmud that such uniformity could be achieved. Professor Moore has stated the essence of the Jewish faith in one concise paragraph which I quote herewith:

"The foundation of Judaism is the belief that religion is revealed. What man is to believe concerning God and what duty God requires of man, he has made known in one form or another by revelation. Specific commandments had been given to Adam, Noah, Abraham, and Jacob; to Moses the complete revelation was given once for all. The prophets who came after him repeated, explained, emphasized, applied, what was revealed to Moses; they added nothing to it. The revelation to Moses was in part embodied in writing in the Pentateuch, in part transmitted orally from generation to generation in unbroken succession down to the schools of the Law in which tradition was defined, formulated, and systematized. The whole of religion was revealed — 'nothing was kept back in heaven'— and the whole content of revelation was religion."

In the present confusion in this world of ours, we need to try to find some clarity, particularly in defining our terms. Otherwise, we strengthen the enemy of all of us.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Congress has only scratched the surface of the ammunition scandal of the Truman administration and, despite the "buck passing" and the attempts to cover up, the truth is bound to come out.

Today this correspondent presents a copy of a telegram just sent by Lieut. Gen. Edward M. Almond to Gen. James A. Van Fleet backing up the latter's charges.

General Almond, who retired on February 1 and is, therefore, in a position now to speak freely, was commander of the 10th Army Corps in Korea from the time of the Inchon landing on September 15, 1950, until July 1951. Since General Van Fleet took command on April 14, 1951, and General Almond left Korea on July 15, 1951, their terms of service overlapped for several months. Here is the text of the telegram to General Van Fleet from General Almond:

Praised By Almond

"Hearty congratulations on your magnificent testimony, as reported in the press, before Congress on the military situation in Korea. Your honest and correct interpretations of conditions there have served to enlighten the people of our country and to confound and to deflate the generalizations and equivocations made by those who have tried to discredit your statements. I know the facts to be as you have stated them from the beginning of the Korean conflict until the time I left you in July 1951. Since my departure, my interpretation of information corroborates your testimony. Public statements made by me since my retirement support your views 100 per cent and I am ready at any time to substantially support your position. Your service to our nation has been magnificent and your statements in Congress add emphasis to your loyalty and patriotism. My best wishes to you always as a comrade in arms."

But perhaps the most significant piece of information comes from Tracy S. Voorhees, undersecretary of the Army in the last administration. In a copyrighted interview in "U. S. News & World Report" this week, Mr. Voorhees says:

"We have gone into this Korean War, for instance, without either any budgetary or production plan for it. It was assumed budgetwise, and therefore productionwise, that the Korean War would end by July 1, 1951. But the war got rather obstinate and terperamental and declined to end, so they extended its life to July 1, 1952. The war was still stubborn, so its lease of life was extended by the U. S. planners until July 1, 1953. That was, I believe, one reason for this cutback which was made in U. S. production announced early last December. The net result has been that the Korean War remains alive and hungry for military equipment and supplies, and that we have just kept taking things that were produced for Europe and have shipped them to Korea.

"And nobody can criticize our military people for doing that when our fighting men in Korea were short of these arms. But we can criticize the failure to plan to carry on a war we are already in, so that our men will have the equipment and supplies to fight it. There is certainly high support for such a statement since President Eisenhower came back from Korea and made a general reference to shortages of some supplies over there that would have to be corrected. But the shortage, it seems to me, was not due to the Army's failure to buy what was needed, but to the Budget Bureau's decision not to let the Army budget and procure on a scale which would see the Korean War through without diverting to Korea equipment and supplies produced for our allies in Europe . . ."

"Whose responsibility was that—secretary of Defense? chief of staff?" Mr. Voorhees was asked.

Basic Policy Wrong

"No, I think it was a basic government policy that was wrong," he replied. "A policy of partial, restricted, limited effort which went right straight through our government. The Budget Bureau, which presumably had the President's approval, took this position about not budgeting for a possible or probable continuance of the Korean War. Then it was unpopular to deprive the American consumer public of anything, so we went right on manufacturing automobiles, refrigerators and everything else, instead of manufacturing these things we needed to fight with in Korea and to create a real defense in Europe.

"As I see it, it is the policy of 'too little and too late' that was wrong. The point is that we have been at war for two and a half years and have this big Russian military threat hanging over Europe, and so threatening us also. And we are the one country in the world that can certainly succeed in production, but we just haven't done it fast enough."

What do the GI's think of all this?

In a letter to this correspondent received today, a lady writes about her brother's boy who had come home from Korea covered with medals and Purple Heart decorations:

"Now that he is at home and in college, his only bitterness is when he gets talking about how all his buddies got killed right before his eyes and how they wouldn't have been if they only had some ammunition . . .

"My younger son is on an ammunition ship plying up and down both coasts of Korea rearming the carriers and battleships.

"The day your article came out, we got a letter from him saying his ship went into some little town to give a load of ammunition to some Army unit that had gotten stranded there with absolutely nothing."

The point is that the soldiers in Korea have for many months been writing home about the shortage of ammunition in Korea. They knew it. The enemy probably knew it—because attacks were sporadic. But the American people haven't known the truth—and if it were not for the sometimes condemned system of congressional investigations, they wouldn't know about it yet.

Inside Washington

WASHINGTON — The Navy has found it necessary to build the first atomic-powered submarine considerably larger than it had expected.

The hull being built at Groton, Conn., is only 300 feet long—60 feet shorter than the conventional submarine—but the nuclear giant must be extremely thick to accommodate all the gear and protective devices against radiation which are an integral part of its construction.

The atom sub is three stories high in landlubber terminology. This, needless to say, is a boon to the crew in terms of living space. Conventional submarines, by the same measurements, are only one and one-half stories high. Fortunately, the additional space will not cut down the atom sub's speed.

The A-sub is efficient and fast for underwater travel because its nose is blunt and it slopes a little toward the rear. It is an old seagoing principle that a cone-shaped object can be more easily propelled underwater if its blunt end blazes the trail. A so-called "dead water" area forms then around the balance of the cone and there is no friction except that of water on water.

Although the A-sub will be comparatively slow and clumsy on the surface, it will cut through the water with the greatest of ease. In this it will resemble two seagoing specimens which have operated successfully in the same way for a number of years—the whale and the porpoise. Their engineering is constructed along the same lines.

Air Forts

Allied air force officers are happy about a Russian MIG-15 falling into Western hands. The plane was allegedly piloted into Allied hands by an escaping Polish pilot disillusioned by Soviet methods and thinking.

The Allies need just such a plane to test their theories on the performance of Russian jets as opposed to those manufactured by the Western Powers.

The nearest thing to an intact MIG so far in Allied hands is one that was fished out of the water off the coast of North Korea after it had been shot down. This plane was quickly brought to the United States and various static tests were made but the results were a little unsatisfactory.

The MIG-15 that was piloted by the fugitive Polish officer was said at last reports to be in the hands of Danish officials. Since Denmark is a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization the United States Air Force is hopeful that it will get a crack at testing the ace Russian jet plane.

Economy

Senator Alexander Wiley (R), Wisconsin, as he strode down a Capitol corridor the other day, was heard to repeat over and over again in conversation: "Economy is here; economy is here."

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman had just returned at the time from an early morning conference with the President.

He told inquiring newsmen that the group of congressional conferees was given a White House "breakfast" of orange juice and coffee—and nothing else.

This is easily understandable since the Eisenhower administration has set early working hours for government employes and the chief executive himself is hard at work by 8 o'clock in the morning.

Wiley, who had breakfasted at home before going to the executive mansion, was pleased with the early morning conference which enabled him to get on with his senatorial duties at an early hour. Senator Robert A. Taft (R), Ohio, an early riser, also was pleased with the conference time.

A number of other senators, however, would prefer to start their day closer to noon and openly grumbled about the lack of bacon and eggs, biscuits and other eye-openers at their White House meeting.

As far as Taft and Wiley are concerned, however, time is money and their major aim is to save both. Both GOP leaders were unimpressed by complaints of their lazier colleagues.

McKeldin Refers Calvert Countians, Seeking School Funds, To Dr. Pullen

ANNAPOLIS, March 17. (AP)—Calvert Countians lined up two and three deep around Gov. McKeldin's big reception room last night to beg for $400,000 in state funds to replenish their county monies, which they overspent on schools.

After a half-dozen or so county leaders voiced their plea, the governor politely pointed his finger at whom he said was the proper person for them to talk to—State Schools Superintendent Thomas G. Pullen Jr.

"In Maryland we operate with a school board that has almost complete autonomy," McKeldin said. "That's the law. I don't even have any say-so over the school budget. The school board hands it to me—and that's it."

The Calvert County Board of Education recently discovered it had overspent its budget by several hundred thousands of dollars on school construction and improvements. It was brought up so quickly the county had to borrow funds from the State Board of Education to meet its teachers' pay day.

The County Taxpayers Association told the governor that since then the state board has "complete supervision of the Board of Education of Calvert County and by exercising such supervision has assumed control of the actions of the Board of Education."

In brief, the association said, the state should help pay for the mistakes of those directly under its control.

John C. Ward, president of the Calvert County Farm Bureau, put it bluntly.

"Dr. Pullen told us the state was paying four to one for our schools. If we overspent why the devil don't the state pay its share of it—four to one?"

"It's their baby that spent the money."

After these and other statements, McKeldin walked slowly to the center of the soft-carpeted room.

"Of course, I don't have anything to do with this," he said.

"For two years I vetoed a bill for a teachers' pay increase because I didn't understand it. Perhaps those good gentlemen that passed the bill understood it, but I didn't. So I couldn't sign it.

"Apparently in your case somebody signed a lot of things he didn't understand."

McKeldin Refers Calvert Countians, Seeking School Funds, To Dr. Pullen

ANNAPOLIS, March 17. (AP)—Calvert Countians lined up two and three deep around Gov. McKeldin's big reception room last night to beg for $400,000 in state funds to replenish their county monies, which they overspent on schools.

After a half-dozen or so county leaders voiced their plea, the governor politely pointed his finger at whom he said was the proper person for them to talk to—State Schools Superintendent Thomas G. Pullen Jr.

"In Maryland we operate with a school board that has almost complete autonomy," McKeldin said. "That's the law. I don't even have any say-so over the school budget. The school board hands it to me—and that's it."

The Calvert County Board of Education recently discovered it had overspent its budget by several hundred thousands of dollars on school construction and improvements. It was brought up so quickly the county had to borrow funds from the State Board of Education to meet its teachers' pay day.

The County Taxpayers Association told the governor that since then the state board has "complete supervision of the Board of Education of Calvert County and by exercising such supervision has assumed control of the actions of the Board of Education."

In brief, the association said, the state should help pay for the mistakes of those directly under its control.

John C. Ward, president of the Calvert County Farm Bureau, put it bluntly.

"Dr. Pullen told us the state was paying four to one for our schools. If we overspent why the devil don't the state pay its share of it—four to one?"

"It's their baby that spent the money."

After these and other statements, McKeldin walked slowly to the center of the soft-carpeted room.

"Of course, I don't have anything to do with this," he said.

"For two years I vetoed a bill for a teachers' pay increase because I didn't understand it. Perhaps those good gentlemen that passed the bill understood it, but I didn't. So I couldn't sign it.

"Apparently in your case somebody signed a lot of things he didn't understand."

After explaining the matter was out of his jurisdiction, McKeldin suggested they talk with Pullen and the school board.

Father Accused Of Beating Son Because He Ate Slowly

BALTIMORE, March 17 (AP)—Rodman Andrews, 32-year-old truck driver, was held for grand jury action on assault charges yesterday after police accused him of beating up his six-year-old son because the boy would not eat fast enough.

Andrews and his wife have been separated for three years and the accusations against him were made in police court today by Mrs. Catherine Wann, with whom the boy and his father boarded.

"Bobbie is a slow eater and was not finished when the rest of us were," Mrs. Wann testified. "Mr. Andrews kept telling him to hurry up and finally hit him in the face.

"When Bobbie still didn't finish, Mr. Andrews took him from the table and hit him repeatedly in the face."

The incident was Monday night.

"In the morning," Mrs. Wann went on, "he had such bruises on his face that I dared not send him to school. I know the teachers would call the police, so I called them."

Two officers took the boy to a hospital for treatment of the bruises and then turned him over to the Department of Public Welfare, which placed him in a foster home.

Andrews was released on $2,000 bail pending grand jury consideration of the charges.

Men who were elected President of the United States before they were 50 years of age were Theodore Roosevelt, U. S. Grant, James K. Polk and James Garfield.

Factory Worker Shoots Ex-Wife's Mother, Brother

MANSFIELD, O., March 17 (AP)—Mansfield police jailed a 24-year-old factory worker who, they said, terrorized his divorced wife's family in a nightmarish night drive in his car and finally shot her mother and brother.

They accused the worker, Fred W. Fitch of Mansfield, of shooting Mrs. Dora Hall, 43, and her son, Lovell Hall, 17, on a lonely, dark country road near Shenandoah, O., early today. Mrs. Hall was his former mother-in-law.

Police said Fitch broke into the Hall home shortly before midnight, and roused the entire family from their beds — his onetime wife, Shirley, 21, her two children, Judy, 3, and Linda Sue, four months, and her sister Betty, 11, and mother and brother.

Then he forced them all at gunpoint to march one mile to his car—only partially clothed against the cold night air. Then, police continued, he drove to the spot near Shenandoah.

There, he shot young Hall and Mrs. Hall, police said, and threw his .22 caliber pistol into a cornfield.

Mrs. Hall was in critical condition in Mansfield General Hospital today, a bullet wound near the heart, one in the left thigh and one below the knee. Young Hall was shot in the foot and shoulder.

After the shooting, said Sheriff Harry Broome, of neighboring Huron County, the family was forced back into Fitch's car—after he extracted a promise they would all say a hitchhiker did the shooting—and the terrifying ride resumed.

Finally, said Broome, Fitch was persuaded to stop at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sylves N. Clevenger, about a quarter of a mile south of Fitchville, in Huron County. There, his divorced wife got the Clevengers to call the sheriff.

Coyle Slaying Case Heads For Grand Jury

TOWSON, Md., March 17. (AP)—Baltimore County's prosecutor said yesterday he will go before the grand jury next Monday with a murder charge against Wilbur F. Coyle Jr., prominent attorney accused of slaying his wife Feb. 25.

Coyle, 49-year-old chief attorney for the Maryland regional office of the Veterans Administration, still is in a hospital recovering from a bullet wound in the neck.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fallon Coyle, 45-year-old dress buyer for a downtown Baltimore department store, was slain in a violent quarrel with her husband.

The state's chief witness is the couple's 16-year-old son, quoted by investigators as saying he was awakened by the quarrel and heard five shots. He told officers he ran into his parents' bedroom and snatched a .32 revolver from his father, who was on his knees between the twin beds.

Westernport Woman Claims County Pays City's Bills

A letter from a Westernport woman to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners in regard to the school bond controversy resulted in raised eyebrows yesterday at one point during the reading of the missive.

Mrs. M. M. Brundige was the name signed to the letter. She said she was disappointed at the stand the county commissioners had taken in connection with the proposed $6 million mandatory school bond issue.

Members of the board said they preferred that $3 million issue be provided in an enabling act. They contend the proposed $6 million bond issue would wreck the county's credit rating and prove an extremely heavy tax burden on property owners.

Mrs. Brundige commented in her letter that "the people up here are sick and tired of paying Cumberland's way and not getting anything we want." She mentioned the flood control bond issue of $1 million several years ago by the county for use in Cumberland.

The board said at the time the flood control bond issue was passed there was no opposition to the measure and it was generally agreed that what helped Cumberland helped the county.

60 Per Cent Paid Here

It was also pointed out by the commissioners that the county taxes paid in Cumberland and its immediate environs amount to at least 60 per cent of the total county tax revenue.

Members of the board said they will meet with the Allegany County delegates to the General Assembly in Annapolis today along with the Board of Education, in an attempt to iron out differences of opinion in the school bond matter.

They said it is generally agreed there is a need for more school facilities in the county and they will do everything in their power to achieve this but at the same time they do not intend to endanger the county's financial standing or credit.

Johnson Heights PTA Program Is Planned

The Johnson Heights Parent-Teachers Association will meet tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the school to discuss "Recreation for Our Children in Home and Community."

Principal speaker will be Robert L. Lewis, program secretary of Central YMCA. His topic will be "Resources Available." Others slated to talk are:

Mrs. Monroe MacKenzie, "Concerning Girl Scouts;" Mrs. Peter Smith, "News from Bird Club and Nature Camp" and Willis Smith, "Cub Scouting."

Teachers will be in their rooms at 7:30 to meet parents. Refreshments will be served by parents of Third Grade pupils.

Proposed Blinker Light Ordinance Is Due Here

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan said Monday a copy of a proposed ordinance on railroad crossing blinker lights is expected here within a few days.

Finan was asked for a report by Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long at the meeting of the Mayor and Council.

Finan and Western Maryland Railway officials have been working on the ordinance for a couple of weeks. It is the result of several meetings here with the Mayor and Council and railroad officials following protests over the hazard presented by the Virginia Avenue crossing, scene of a fatal accident in January.

Finan also reported briefly to Long on the status of proposals for reorganizing the Police Department which would include giving council right to name the number of officers, heretofore controlled by the legislature.

Council heard a report on a redevelopment bill proposal from Finan and was asked to give some sentiment before the end of the week on the measure which is before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The measure would allow a municipality to undertake slum clearance and among others provides for off-street parking and the right for a city to condemn property in connection with federal programs if and when they are made available.

Since the redevelopment authority measure is subject to referendum, it could not become law before 1954, it was explained.

Compounding PRESCRIPTIONS IS OUR BUSINESS

We're serious about this business of compounding prescriptions . . . that's why we tolerate no half-way measures. Every drug that finds its way upon our shelves has been tested for high efficiency and freshness. Our pharmacists have been trained especially for their work . . . and keep on studying, to stay abreast of new trends and discoveries. Proposed Blinker Light Ordinance Is Due Here

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan said Monday a copy of a proposed ordinance on railroad crossing blinker lights is expected here within a few days.

Finan was asked for a report by Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long at the meeting of the Mayor and Council.

Finan and Western Maryland Railway officials have been working on the ordinance for a couple of weeks. It is the result of several meetings here with the Mayor and Council and railroad officials following protests over the hazard presented by the Virginia Avenue crossing, scene of a fatal accident in January.

Finan also reported briefly to Long on the status of proposals for reorganizing the Police Department which would include giving council right to name the number of officers, heretofore controlled by the legislature.

Council heard a report on a redevelopment bill proposal from Finan and was asked to give some sentiment before the end of the week on the measure which is before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The measure would allow a municipality to undertake slum clearance and among others provides for off-street parking and the right for a city to condemn property in connection with federal programs if and when they are made available.

Since the redevelopment authority measure is subject to referendum, it could not become law before 1954, it was explained.

Inflation, Increased Demand Cause For Gas Rate Increase

C&A Head Speaks To Ridgeley Lions

General inflation and the rise in costs of competitive fuels were given as the basic causes of the recent rise in gas rates in Ridgeley, W. Va., officials of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, which serves the small Mineral County community, told members of the Ridgeley Lions Club at a meeting of the group at the Parabee Lounge.

Charles A. Massa, vice president of the C&A and J. E. Coleman, assistant vice president, both from Pittsburgh attended the meeting along with Carl C. Robbins, district manager of the Cumberland branch of the gas company.

Massa Is Spokesman

Massa, acting as spokesman for the utilities concern, pointed out that an unprecedented demand for gas heat, created by the rise in costs of other fuels, plus the general hike in the cost of living, had caused the gas company to increase its investment almost 236 per cent in the past five years to continue its adequate service to the consumer.

The raise, which was opposed by the Mayor and Council of Ridgeley at recent PSC hearings, was put in effect February 16 by the Public Service Commission of West Virginia and Ridgeley residents received their first bills under the new rate last week.

The general furore created by the sudden sharp lift in the cost of gas plus the lack of general information on the basic causes prompted to the Ridgeley Lions to invite the company officials to the dinner meeting to explain the differences.

Receive Gas From Maryland

Massa explained Ridgeley was now receiving the identical rate at Cumberland as the West Virginia community was getting its gas piped across the state line from Maryland.

This rate was put in effect in Ridgeley despite the fact other communities in Mineral County receive a lesser charge.

When queried about this difference Massa told the group that the West Virginia PSC had divided the state into nine zones previously to differentiate areas close to gas supplies as compared to other areas at a distance from the supply. The rate increased the farther the area from the supply.

When the PSC granted the increase last month, the first Massa noted, in over 25 years, the state was divided into three zones with Ridgeley still receiving its gas from Maryland and thus the rate was adjusted to coincide with Cumberland's rate.

Rate Was Lower

Since the previous Ridgeley gas rate was lower than that of Cumberland the rise in the costs was higher percentage-wise in Ridgeley, Massa went on.

The C&A vice president then told the Lions that Ridgeley's rate was based on $1.25 per 1,000 cubic feet of gas used for the first 1,000 feet. Thereafter the rate lessened to $.74 for each 1,000 cubic feet for the next 2,000, then $.67 for the next 7,000 and finally was leveled off at $.64 per 1,000 for everything over 10,000 cubic feet.

This rate was decidedly less than originally planned by the company, Massa said, adding a compromise was reached with the PSC to lessen the shock of such a huge demand.

The original asking rates by the company were $1.50 for the first 1,000 feet, $.90 for the next 4,000; $.80 for the next 5,000; and $.65 for every 1,000 feet over 10,000.

Massa admitted under questioning that the hike was a stiff one but explained that rising costs of operation and less return on investments had prompted the move.

Investment Up 235 Per Cent

He reported the company's investment January 1, 1947 was $4,537,000 while it now was listed as $15,192,000, an increase of over 235 per cent. The demand for gas went up from 15,420,000 cubic feet per peak day to 45,268,000 cubic feet over the same span.

Homes using gas for heating purposes rose from 1,675 in 1947 to 7,486 in 1952; cost of steel pipe hiked 85 per cent; domestic meters now cost 112 per cent more than in 1944; and wages have more than doubled since 1940.

Massa summed up the report by saying he did not expect the loss of many customers because of the rate hike and when questioned if there was a means to ease the burden of the home heating gas user who pays the bulk of the increase, he replied that the consumer must remember that anytime a man heats his home over 70 degrees it automatically puts 3 per cent more to his bill for each degree over that amount.

Gas Is Cheaper

He said gas was still the cheapest fuel, noting that a comparable amount of gas based on the price of coal would cost $12.80 and the same amount of gas at fuel oil rates would be $1.02. Gas is computed at around 63 cents for heating purposes.

Eighteen members of the Lions Club attended the conference with the gas officials. Melvin M. Heiskell, principal of Ridgeley High School, acted as moderator.

cient votes on his side, but declared that "i personally shall vote against it."

"I guess I'm just old-fashioned —I believe in state's rights. I am not in favor of giving the federal government any more rights to our state lands. If we look at a map of Maryland showing the amount of land already in the hands of the government...well, it gives me fears and apprehensions."

McLaughlin paused, then added: "Some of you will be back here next term. I won't. Please don't let them move the parkway from Hancock to Washington."

Sen. Fraley (R-Garrett) rose to explain that when the parkway first was suggested, he had some doubts about it "and so expressed myself."

But now, he said, "I believe it is a good measure. We'll benefit not only the people of Allegany County but everybody in Western Maryland. It will vastly improve the driving conditions into the area."

House Bill 476 Enacted

Yesterday the House of Delegates concurred in Senate amendments and enacted House Bill 476, introduced by the Garrett County delegation to provide for the transmittal of his balance by the Garrett County Treasurer to his successor.

House Bill 313 Cited

Senator Kimble has asked the Mayor and Council and the citizens of Cumberland for their reaction on Del. Estel Kelley's "Airwick Bill."

House Bill 313 introduced by the local delegate would require the city health officer to prevent and abate stagnation in Wills Creek and the Potomac River within the city limits.

Senator Kimble said the bill has passed the House of Delegates and is before the Senate.

The senator pointed out that the enforcement of the city to "empty and cleanse" Wills Creek might be difficult undertaking.

He also said the completion of flood control here might solve the problem of the odoriferous creek and river during a dry spell.

The use of the Savage River Dam during the past summer kept the Potomac River at an even level in Cumberland together with an even flow and substantially reduced the amount of stagnation.

blame for an increase in taxes. He added it is obvious the city could grant the request if it raises taxes.

Finan pointed out there is a possibility the city may have a surplus at the end of the year from state-shared income which would help finance the plan.

Mrs. Roeder said all members of the council would like to grant the request, but that the city, with the highest tax rate in the state, must consider and protect the taxpayers.

Berry said the plan could be financed by dropping some of the non-essential items from the city's program. He did not enumerate them. He said such items should not force workers to work under conditions existing in the dark ages.

Issue Must Be Settled

Officer Stitcher said the issue must be settled by March 23, which is the deadline for the Association to take its bill to Annapolis. He said the city always says it has no money but finds it readily enough when it adopts any new idea.

At this point, Commissioner Keegan suggested that officials of the departments and the men meet and report back to the Mayor and Council. He later dropped his motion, in favor of one made by Commissioner Long.

Commissioner Long summed up his arguments by saying chiefs estimate it will take eight men in the Police and six in the Fire Department to make the change, that the plan would raise the tax rate 6½ cents and that he does not know where the city is to get the money.

It was at this point that he suggested the meeting on the problem.

Officer Stitcher said the men would be glad to meet but would take bills providing for the shorter work weeks to Annapolis if an agreement is not reached.

SRC To Cut

4. No more than 25 millions in bonds would be out at one time. None could be floated until the commission's construction fund dropped below 25 millions.

Breaks Down Program

Buscher later said the commission regarded the new approach as "three four-year programs" rather than slashing the whole thing off to one highway blueprint for only four years.

"We will still be able to plan ahead and prepare for the complete 12-year program," he said.

The commission's original idea, worked out with an advisory council, called for spending $242,793,000 in the first four years.

It provided for financing road improvements over all 12 years by floating bonds worth 330 millions, hiking the gasoline tax from 5 to 6 cents a gallon, boosting vehicle registration fees and bus taxes.

McKeldin Agreeable

Asked about the commission's new suggestion, Gov. McKeldin said, "If it's all right with them, it's all right with me.

"The program was worked out by the Roads Commission and the advisory council. I have endorsed it. If they are for this, I am."

Striving to bolster the program from attacks already leveled, the commission gave ground on several other points.

Buscher said it would abandon a request for authority at this time to create toll roads in the new construction. That can be taken up next year, he said.

Toll Study Continues

In the meantime consulting engineers will have completed their study of toll possibilities and the commission will have recommendations.

"You can then make up your minds which should be toll roads or allow the Roads Commission to decide," Buscher said.

The commission also retracted its bid for additional authority to designate expressways, Buscher reported. A recent Court of Appeals decision allowing the commission to condemn land well in advance of construction eliminated the need for extra powers, he explained.

McLaughlin paused, then added:

"Some of you will be back here next term. I won't. Please don't let them move the parkway from Hancock to Washington."

Sen. Fraley (R-Garrett) rose to explain that when the parkway first was suggested, he had some doubts about it "and so expressed myself."

But now, he said, "I believe it is a good measure. We'll benefit not only the people of Allegany County but everybody in Western Maryland. It will vastly improve the driving conditions into the area."

House Bill 476 Enacted

Yesterday the House of Delegates concurred in Senate amendments and enacted House Bill 476, introduced by the Garrett County delegation to provide for the transmittal of his balance by the Garrett County Treasurer to his successor.

House Bill 313 Cited

Senator Kimble has asked the Mayor and Council and the citizens of Cumberland for their reaction on Del. Estel Kelley's "Airwick Bill."

House Bill 313 introduced by the local delegate would require the city health officer to prevent and abate stagnation in Wills Creek and the Potomac River within the city limits.

Senator Kimble said the bill has passed the House of Delegates and is before the Senate.

The senator pointed out that the enforcement of the city to "empty and cleanse" Wills Creek might be difficult undertaking.

He also said the completion of flood control here might solve the problem of the odoriferous creek and river during a dry spell.

The use of the Savage River Dam during the past summer kept the Potomac River at an even level in Cumberland together with an even flow and substantially reduced the amount of stagnation.

blame for an increase in taxes. He added it is obvious the city could grant the request if it raises taxes.

Finan pointed out there is a possibility the city may have a surplus at the end of the year from state-shared income which would help finance the plan.

Mrs. Roeder said all members of the council would like to grant the request, but that the city, with the highest tax rate in the state, must consider and protect the taxpayers.

Berry said the plan could be financed by dropping some of the non-essential items from the city's program. He did not enumerate them. He said such items should not force workers to work under conditions existing in the dark ages.

Issue Must Be Settled

Officer Stitcher said the issue must be settled by March 23, which is the deadline for the Association to take its bill to Annapolis. He said the city always says it has no money but finds it readily enough when it adopts any new idea.

At this point, Commissioner Keegan suggested that officials of the departments and the men meet and report back to the Mayor and Council. He later dropped his motion, in favor of one made by Commissioner Long.

Commissioner Long summed up his arguments by saying chiefs estimate it will take eight men in the Police and six in the Fire Department to make the change, that the plan would raise the tax rate 6½ cents and that he does not know where the city is to get the money.

It was at this point that he suggested the meeting on the problem.

Officer Stitcher said the men would be glad to meet but would take bills providing for the shorter work weeks to Annapolis if an agreement is not reached.

4. No more than 25 millions in bonds would be out at one time. None could be floated until the commission's construction fund dropped below 25 millions.

Breaks Down Program

Buscher later said the commission regarded the new approach as "three four-year programs" rather than slashing the whole thing off to one highway blueprint for only four years.

"We will still be able to plan ahead and prepare for the complete 12-year program," he said.

The commission's original idea, worked out with an advisory council, called for spending $242,793,000 in the first four years.

It provided for financing road improvements over all 12 years by floating bonds worth 330 millions, hiking the gasoline tax from 5 to 6 cents a gallon, boosting vehicle registration fees and bus taxes.

McKeldin Agreeable

Asked about the commission's new suggestion, Gov. McKeldin said, "If it's all right with them, it's all right with me.

"The program was worked out by the Roads Commission and the advisory council. I have endorsed it. If they are for this, I am."

Striving to bolster the program from attacks already leveled, the commission gave ground on several other points.

Buscher said it would abandon a request for authority at this time to create toll roads in the new construction. That can be taken up next year, he said.

Toll Study Continues

In the meantime consulting engineers will have completed their study of toll possibilities and the commission will have recommendations.

"You can then make up your minds which should be toll roads or allow the Roads Commission to decide," Buscher said.

The commission also retracted its bid for additional authority to designate expressways, Buscher reported. A recent Court of Appeals decision allowing the commission to condemn land well in advance of construction eliminated the need for extra powers, he explained.

Guthrie Is Placed On Assault Bond

Frederick Guthrie, 27, Rawlings, was ordered held under $2,500 bond Monday in Trial Magistrates Court for action of the April grand jury on a charge of assault with intent to kill his wife.

Guthrie was shot in the chest March 5 by a neighbor, Junior Allen O'Haver, 30, who is free under $5,000. He was released Saturday from Memorial Hospital.

The shooting occurred while Guthrie's wife was in the office of Magistrate William Meagher, Cresaptown, obtaining an assault warrant against him. Guthrie allegedly brandished a knife while threatening his spouse.

Bond was posted for Guthrie late yesterday afternoon after he had spent several hours in the Allegany County Jail.

State Income Tax Is Due April 15.

Maryland state income tax is due on April 15, 1953. All taxpayers subject to the law are required to file before this date, and if a tax is due, a remittance must accompany the return.

The tax laws are substantially the same as last year. A 15 per cent reduction of the total amount of the tax has again been provided by the Legislature. The procedure for deducting this is the same also as last year. The taxpayer will calculate his tax and then subtract 15 per cent.

It is requested that all taxpayers file early.

Koontz On Furlough

Cpl. James W. Koontz, Star Route, Flintstone, is spending a 30-day furlough at his home following his return from Korea. He has been assigned to the 2053rd ASU Reception Center, Fort George G. Meade, pending assignment by the Army.

Woodmen Seek To Settle Claim

Faced with conflicting claims for benefits from a $2,000 insurance policy from the surviving children of a lodge member, Modern Woodmen of America have filed a bill of interpleader in Allegany County Circuit Court asking the court to determine how the $2,000 should be divided.

In its bill, the lodge states that Benjamin W. Rice obtained an insurance policy through the organization in September, 1905, and named his wife, Florence Rice, as beneficiary.

Mrs. Rice died December 25, 1951. Rice in February, 1952, applied for a change in beneficiary and named three of his children. Mrs. Lucille M. Schultz, 44 South Street, was to receive $700; Mrs. Gladys Gannon, Sykesville, $650, and Paul Monroe Rice, 109 Polk Street, $650. Rice died October 15, 1952.

In the bill of interpleader, W. Earle Cobey and C. William Gilchrist, attorneys for Modern Woodmen of America, state that two other sons, Robert W. Rice, 109 North Centre Street, and Clarence Raymond Rice, 469 Baltimore Avenue, have filed claims for $400 each of the $2,000. They say that their father was not mentally capable of making an effective change of beneficiary in February, 1952, and that they each should receive one-fifth of the total. The association wishes to settle the claim but wants the court to direct payment.

Hike In Coffee Price Is Expected

Operators of the two local breweries said yesterday that despite the lifting of controls on beer the price of their product is "not likely to be increased."

The price of coffee is expected to increase from five to 10 cents per pound. Some government sources said the rise may go as high as 12 cents per pound.

Downtown restaurants may increase their price per cup a cent or so. Prices of coffee by the cup already varies in eating places here. Some establishments charge a flat five cents per cup, others are asking 10 cents and one large downtown place has a seven-cent price tag on each cup.

Seniors Arrange Fort Hill Play

All of the fun and gaiety that was found in the music and dancing of pre-Communist Hungary will be in "Seven Sisters," the senior class play, to be presented in the Fort Hill High School Auditorium on Friday, March 20, at 8 p. m.

Starring in the leading roles of Mitzi, and Ferenz Horkey will be Barbara Ann Campbell and Jackie Parker. In other major roles will be Sarah Thomas, Gerald Authur and Delores Fahey.

The cast also includes Arthur Isom, Merle Smith, Melvin Boone, Shirley Knippenburg, Mary Porter, Janet Taschenberger, Joan Schaidt, and Shirley Whiteman.

This play was adapted from the Hungarian of Herczeg by Edith Ellis. The names and customs of Hungary are displayed vividly in the unique construction of the plot.

Mrs. Gyurkovics is just like any other mother who has seven children and is finding it difficult to support them and would like to have them married off to some millionaires. A wager is then made by a man posing to be a cousin of the family. The results prove to be hilarious.

A special Matinee will be presented for grades seven, eight and nine on Thursday at 1:30 p. m.

Miss Kathleen Cumbee is directing the play, which is beautifully and colorfully costumed.

Equity Suits Filed

Three equity suits were filed Monday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Freda Carlotta Brown vs. Claude Brown, Gussie C. McNeal vs. Robert A. McNeal and Betty Jane Noe vs. Roy Pershing Noe.

Fort Hill Home Ec Majors Operate "Play School"

Senior home economics majors at Fort Hill High School this week began their annual "play school" for pre-school children.

Miss Ruth C. McColly, who teaches the senior girls, said that the nine girls are operating the "play school" for children between the ages of two and five who live in the school's neighborhood.

This is considered good training for the home economics majors as prospective future homemakers. It also is a help to the small children who learn how to play together and helps them adjust to a new environment.

The "play school" will operate for six weeks, ending April 23. The 15 or so children will continue to come to the school from 8 a.m. until 10:30 a.m. each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Truckers Are Guilty On Overload Charge

Three area truckers and a Cumberland firm were fined for operating vehicles which State Roads Commission officials found overloaded.

Ross R. Coddington, Friendsville, paid $86.75; Richard Kimble, Cumberland, $29.45; Paul L. Krause, Grantsville, $22.75; and Hout Construction Company, $54.75.

As You Were

Here's an infielder who played with local and out-of-town sandlot teams for 15 years before retiring as an active baseball player in 1934.

He broke in with Frank Molinari's North End Pirates in the City League of 1920 as an outfielder. His brother Earle played with the same club as did Charles "Lefty" Jordan, Johnny Horchler, Joe Leasure and Johnny Brode. Pat King managed the Y.M.I., Frank Birmingham piloted the Western Maryland Railway Club and the B. & O. Y.M.C.A. was in the same circuit which played twilight ball.

In 1921 and 1922 the player pictured here was third sacker for the Liberty Athletic Club which was the big attraction on the Rolling Mill Diamond in those days. In fact, this club outdrew the Colts who were playing their games at South End Park. Other L.A.C. infielders were Joe Buskey, "Buddy" Preaskorn, Irvin "Tommy" Thomas and Walter "Dolly" Bittner.

This fellow played three games with the Cumberland Colts in 1923, the year Mid-City Park was opened on Wineow street and Jimmy McGuire's club was playing independent ball.

Over the years he also has played with the Cumberland B. & O., Keyser, Frostburg Trojans, Bedford Road and Potomac Edison. Several years ago he was on the Goodfellowship Club's softball team.

One of his favorite stunts was to scoop up a ground ball, hold it and defy the runner to beat his throw. Then he'd rifle the pellet across the diamond to gain the decision in a photo finish. He had a powerful arm and threw out many a runner on balls that were hit down the left field line back of the third hassock.

What's this player's name?

He's James W. "Jimmy" Drenning, machinist at the local B. & O. back shop where he has been employed since 1919. His nephew, Earle Drenning, Jr., played minor league ball in more recent years. The photo of "Jimmy" was taken in 1930 when he was with the B. & O. Club.

Walter Cartier Is Disqualified In Turpin Bout

American Ruled Out In 2nd For Holding

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—England's Randy Turpin, the former world's middleweight champion, tonight won on a second round disqualification over Walter Cartier when the referee ruled out the New Yorker for repeated holding.

The scheduled ten-rounder ended in wild scenes with 16 screaming men in the ring and the 18,000 fans in packed Earls Court booing at the top of their lungs.

Only three solid punches—all by Turpin—were struck in the short bout. Referee Tommy Little had warned the 28-year-old Cariter four times for holding in the first round and three times in the second round. Cartier clamped Turpin's arms tightly to his side repeatedly while the rugged Briton tried to jerk himself free.

This touched off a mad melee. Cartier charged like a wild man into the ropes just above the press row screaming, cursing and kicking. Seconds and others poured into the ring and milled around.

Turpin alternated between standing helplessly in the middle of the ring and joining in the attempt to cool off the enraged American.

Cartier's twin brother Vince, a facial double for Walter, ran about appealing to the referee. But his words went unheeded amid the roars of the capacity crowd.

After Cartier had been escorted to his room amid the jeers of the angry crowd, J. Onslow Fane, chairman of the British Boxing Board of Control, said an inquiry would be made and that the American's purse would not be paid until after the hearing.

The amount of his purse was not disclosed but it was believed to be $10,000. Cartier was scheduled to fly back to New York on Saturday.

Merson Is Hero

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17 (AP)—Johnny Merson's double broke up a 14-inning exhibition game and gave the Boston Red Sox a 6-5 victory today—the Red Sox' third of the season over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Al Zarilla walked in the 14th with one out and scored on the two-bagger.

Boston took a 5-4 lead in the 13th but Stan Musial tied the count in the St. Louis half with his third spring home run.

LOS ANGELES, March 17 (AP)—Hank Sauer, the Chicago Cubs home run king, will miss most of the exhibition baseball season because of a fractured finger.

X-rays today showed a fracture of the middle joint of the little finger on Sauer's right hand.

The five players nominated for the award are: William Davis and Ronnie Brenneman, Beall High; Robert Wilson and Gene Biggs, Bruce High; Richard Waddell and William Andrews, Central High; Robert Kirk and Harrison Kyle, Barton High, and Donald Robertson and Robert Wahl, Mt. Savage High.

Isaac Love of Central won the first award in 1950. William Kirk, Barton, won in 1951 and Erwin Berry, Bruce, was named in 1952.

Ties Are Possible As Women's Shuffle Race Ends Tonight

Golden Nugget of Frostburg and the Cumberland V.F.W. will play the final match on the regular schedule of the Allegany County Women's Shuffleboard League tonight at the V.F.W. Home.

The Frostburg team could tie Clingerman's for the runner-up spot by sweeping three games. Two losses for Golden Nugget would drop the Mountain City team into a third place tie with Cresap Tavern while three losses for Golden Nugget would tie that team with the Woodmen of the World for fourth place.

In event of such ties playoffs will be necessary to determine the final standing of the four top clubs.

Browns Whip Giants

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., March 17 (AP)—After the New York Giants had erupted for five runs in the top of the ninth to take the lead, the St. Louis Browns stormed back with six runs in the same inning to win, 9-6, today.

Les Moss homered over the left-field wall with two mates on base and the score tied at 6-6 to produce the deciding margin.

All Brownie runs in the ninth came after two were out, with Righthander Ruben Gomez, who had pitched hitless ball through the previous four frames, the victim.

The defeat was the third straight for the Giants and the fifth in their last six games.

Mike Fornieles, Chicago starter, was battered for five runs in the first inning, including a three-run homer by Lemon, but the Sox came back with four runs in the second and another in the third and went ahead 6-5 in the fifth.

Jim Rivera hit a home run for the Sox.

As You Were

Here's an infielder who played with local and out-of-town sandlot teams for 15 years before retiring as an active baseball player in 1934.

He broke in with Frank Molinari's North End Pirates in the City League of 1920 as an outfielder. His brother Earle played with the same club as did Charles "Lefty" Jordan, Johnny Horchler, Joe Leasure and Johnny Brode. Pat King managed the Y.M.I., Frank Birmingham piloted the Western Maryland Railway Club and the B. & O. Y.M.C.A. was in the same circuit which played twilight ball.

In 1921 and 1922 the player pictured here was third sacker for the Liberty Athletic Club which was the big attraction on the Rolling Mill Diamond in those days. In fact, this club outdrew the Colts who were playing their games at South End Park. Other L.A.C. infielders were Joe Buskey, "Buddy" Preaskorn, Irvin "Tommy" Thomas and Walter "Dolly" Bittner.

This fellow played three games with the Cumberland Colts in 1923, the year Mid-City Park was opened on Wineow street and Jimmy McGuire's club was playing independent ball.

Over the years he also has played with the Cumberland B. & O., Keyser, Frostburg Trojans, Bedford Road and Potomac Edison. Several years ago he was on the Goodfellowship Club's softball team.

One of his favorite stunts was to scoop up a ground ball, hold it and defy the runner to beat his throw. Then he'd rifle the pellet across the diamond to gain the decision in a photo finish. He had a powerful arm and threw out many a runner on balls that were hit down the left field line back of the third hassock.

What's this player's name?

He's James W. "Jimmy" Drenning, machinist at the local B. & O. back shop where he has been employed since 1919. His nephew, Earle Drenning, Jr., played minor league ball in more recent years. The photo of "Jimmy" was taken in 1930 when he was with the B. & O. Club.

Walter Cartier Is Disqualified In Turpin Bout

American Ruled Out In 2nd For Holding

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—England's Randy Turpin, the former world's middleweight champion, tonight won on a second round disqualification over Walter Cartier when the referee ruled out the New Yorker for repeated holding.

The scheduled ten-rounder ended in wild scenes with 16 screaming men in the ring and the 18,000 fans in packed Earls Court booing at the top of their lungs.

Only three solid punches—all by Turpin—were struck in the short bout. Referee Tommy Little had warned the 28-year-old Cariter four times for holding in the first round and three times in the second round. Cartier clamped Turpin's arms tightly to his side repeatedly while the rugged Briton tried to jerk himself free.

This touched off a mad melee. Cartier charged like a wild man into the ropes just above the press row screaming, cursing and kicking. Seconds and others poured into the ring and milled around.

Turpin alternated between standing helplessly in the middle of the ring and joining in the attempt to cool off the enraged American.

Cartier's twin brother Vince, a facial double for Walter, ran about appealing to the referee. But his words went unheeded amid the roars of the capacity crowd.

After Cartier had been escorted to his room amid the jeers of the angry crowd, J. Onslow Fane, chairman of the British Boxing Board of Control, said an inquiry would be made and that the American's purse would not be paid until after the hearing.

The amount of his purse was not disclosed but it was believed to be $10,000. Cartier was scheduled to fly back to New York on Saturday.

Merson Is Hero

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17 (AP)—Johnny Merson's double broke up a 14-inning exhibition game and gave the Boston Red Sox a 6-5 victory today—the Red Sox' third of the season over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Al Zarilla walked in the 14th with one out and scored on the two-bagger.

Boston took a 5-4 lead in the 13th but Stan Musial tied the count in the St. Louis half with his third spring home run.

'CHILDREN'S HOUR' STRIKES FOR DETROIT AS TIGERS SEEK TO FORSAKE LAST PLACE

BY WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Writer

LAKELAND, Fla. — The New Deal went out with Harry Truman on Jan. 20 but the Detroit Tigers are doing an about face—they're introducing a New Deal this year.

There wasn't much else the Bengal management could do, at that, for the 1952 Tigers, bossed for half a season by the dour Red Rolfe and the other half by the former pitcher, Freddie Hutchinson, turned in the worst performance of any Tiger team in history—finishing last.

Trades were made and the Tiger farm system was scoured for talent. The result is that the 1953 Bengals, while not the ferocious pennant contenders of other years, have such a New Deal look that one can hardly realize the Republicans are in office.

Only nine players who started the 1952 campaign are still with the club and, if the one new catcher is behind the plate on opening day, the Motor City lineup will be a completely new one which took the field only to meet disaster last season.

NO ONE, of course, expects too much from the 1953 Tigers, although there is no way to go but up. Hutch is planning on making use of his youngsters, with the few veterans left filling in the key spots when and if. The Tigers could pull some surprise, of course, with their pitching—if it comes through.

Hutch has this to say about his slab corps:

"I'd say our pitching is as good as any in the league. We've got three men who could go out there and win 20 games. They've done it before. The three I mean are Hal Newhouser, Ned Garver and Art Houtteman. I class that Houtteman with the best in the league.

"We've looked good on the mound so far this spring but our pitching was good last year. The defensive play of our club wasn't so hot and I look for a better defense this year with our young players if they can make the leap to the majors.

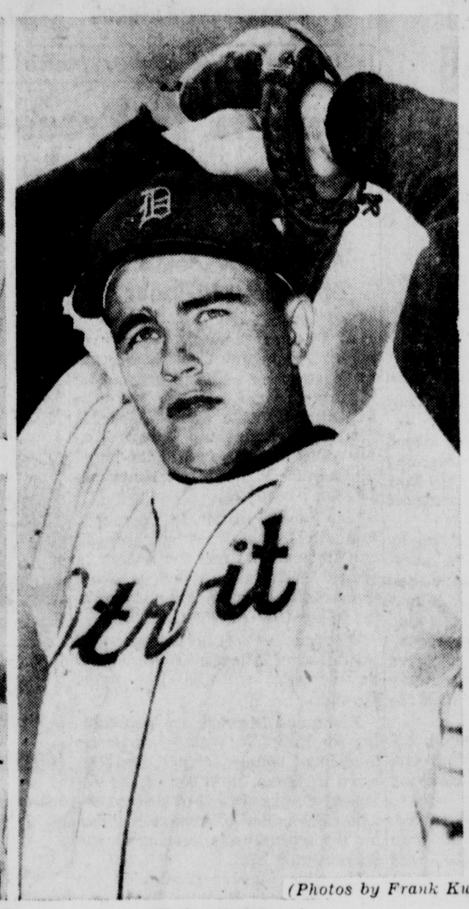

"We have good speed and occasionally we're getting that long ball."

BESIDES the pitchers mentioned the Tigers still have Teddy Gray and Bill Wight as seasoned veterans. Wight, who came to the club last season after starting with the Red Sox, won five and lost nine for the Bengals but has looked especially good this spring.

Then there are Billy Hoeft, the sizzling portsider who came up last year with a strikeout ball background, and Ray Herbert, the returning serviceman who helped the club in 1951. Herbert has an unusual Army status, He's in camp now, and will stay until April 24. Then he has to go back into the service until May 15, when he will be out for good.

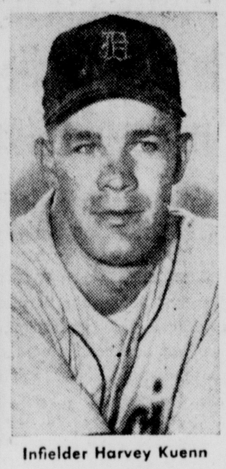

Pitcher Hal Erickson

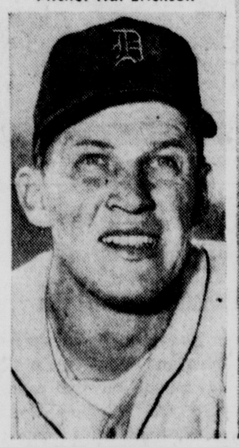

(Photos by Frank Kuchirchuk)

Pitcher Ned Garver

Infielder Harvey Kuenn

Outfielder Bob Nieman

Catcher John Bucha

Among the new pitchers being looked at is Hal Erickson, a right-hander from Dallas, who has fine control and may be used as a reliefer because he can go in there quick without too much warmup. Harold won 20 for Dallas.

Other likely moundsmen are Milt Jordan, who won 12 for Buffalo, and Dick Marlowe, who came up late last year to the Tigers after he had won 10 for Buffalo.

The catching staff is limited to three men now since J. W. Porter, the $65,000 bonus beauty obtained from the Browns in that trade for Virgil Trucks and Johnny Groth last summer, is in the service.

Holdover receivers are Joe Ginsberg and Matt Batts with John Bucha, a .284 hitter with Rochester, giving them a fight for the first-string job.

Big Walt Dropo, the power boy of the club is the first sacker. At second Gerry Priddy is still around but a fight is being waged for the job by Owen Friend, out of the service and procured in a trade with the Browns; Al Federoff, who took over for the injured Priddy last year, and Eddie Kazak, former Red and Cardinal who also plays third base.

At short is one of the club's glamor newcomers, the $55,000 University of Wisconsin athlete, Harvey Kuenn (Keen), who has had one year of minor league ball but is said to be ready.

Johnny Pesky, who reported late because of illness at home, looks good in camp. At third there is Fred Hatfield and Billy Hitchcock and even Priddy can play the sack.

Only outfielders still with the club from the last few seasons are Pat Mullin and Steve Souchok. Bob Nieman, who hit .289 for St. Louis, and Jim Delsing, acquired in a trade with the Browns, probably will be starters.

Seeking recognition here are Russ Sullivan, who came up from Buffalo late last year and hit .327 for the Tigers; Frank Carswell, a .344 hitter for Buffalo; Rufus Crawford, from Scranton; Carl Linhart, another Buffalo importation, and Bill Tuttle, still another gardener from Buffalo.

Also in camp being looked at are Keith Little, a serviceman and outfielder who is on the Buffalo roster, and John Baumgartner, a third sacker, also from Buffalo. Ken Fremming, a righthanded pitcher, will be out of the service May 7 and he will join the club then.

Houtteman has a sore arm at the moment but Hutch says it's a minor thing, caused because Art didn't work out in the north before reporting here.

THE DOPE ON DETROIT—

The Tigers should be an improved club over the 1952 outfit, with the accent on youth. The pitching, however, must come through if the Bengals expect to rise in the league standings.

'CHILDREN'S HOUR' STRIKES FOR DETROIT AS TIGERS SEEK TO FORSAKE LAST PLACE

Central Press Sports Writer

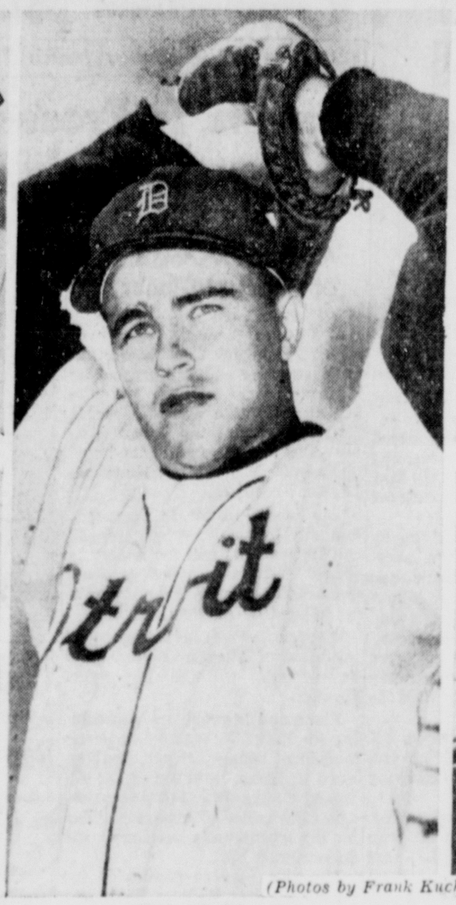

LAKELAND, Fla. — The New Deal went out with Harry Truman on Jan. 20 but the Detroit Tigers are doing an about face—they're introducing a New Deal this year.

There wasn't much else the Bengal management could do, at that, for the 1952 Tigers, bossed for half a season by the dour Red Rolfe and the other half by the former pitcher, Freddie Hutchinson, turned in the worst performance of any Tiger team in history—finishing last.

Trades were made and the Tiger farm system was scoured for talent. The result is that the 1953 Bengals, while not the ferocious pennant contenders of other years, have such a New Deal look that one can hardly realize the Republicans are in office.

Only nine players who started the 1952 campaign are still with the club and, if the one new catcher is behind the plate on opening day, the Motor City lineup will be a completely new one which took the field only to meet disaster last season.

NO ONE, of course, expects too much from the 1953 Tigers, although there is no way to go but up. Hutch is planning on making use of his youngsters, with the few veterans left filling in the key spots when and if. The Tigers could pull some surprise, of course, with their pitching—if it comes through.

Hutch has this to say about his slab corps:

"I'd say our pitching is as good as any in the league. We've got three men who could go out there and win 20 games. They've done it before. The three I mean are Hal Newhouser, Ned Garver and Art Houtteman. I class that Houtteman with the best in the league.

"We've looked good on the mound so far this spring but our pitching was good last year. The defensive play of our club wasn't so hot and I look for a better defense this year with our young players if they can make the leap to the majors.

"We have good speed and occasionally we're getting that long ball."

BESIDES the pitchers mentioned the Tigers still have Teddy Gray and Bill Wight as seasoned veterans. Wight, who came to the club last season after starting with the Red Sox, won five and lost nine for the Bengals but has looked especially good this spring.

Then there are Billy Hoeft, the sizzling portsider who came up last year with a strikeout ball background, and Ray Herbert, the returning serviceman who helped the club in 1951. Herbert has an unusual Army status, He's in camp now, and will stay until April 24. Then he has to go back into the service until May 15, when he will be out for good.

Among the new pitchers being looked at is Hal Erickson, a righthander from Dallas, who has fine control and may be used as a reliefer because he can go in there quick without too much warmup. Harold won 20 for Dallas.

Other likely moundsmen are Milt Jordan, who won 12 for Buffalo, and Dick Marlowe, who came up late last year to the Tigers after he had won 10 for Buffalo.

The catching staff is limited to three men now since J. W. Porter, the $65,000 bonus beauty obtained from the Browns in that trade for Virgil Trucks and Johnny Groth last summer, is in the service.

Holdover receivers are Joe Ginsberg and Matt Batts with John Bucha, a .284 hitter with Rochester, giving them a fight for the first-string job.

Big Walt Dropo, the power boy of the club is the first sacker. At second Gerry Priddy is still around but a fight is being waged for the job by Owen Friend, out of the service and procured in a trade with the Browns; Al Federoff, who took over for the injured Priddy last year, and Eddie Kazak, former Red and Cardinal who also plays third base.

At short is one of the club's glamor newcomers, the $55,000 University of Wisconsin athlete, Harvey Kuenn (Keen), who has had one year of minor league ball but is said to be ready.

Johnny Pesky, who reported late because of illness at home, looks good in camp. At third there is Fred Hatfield and Billy Hitchcock and even Priddy can play the sack.

Only outfielders still with the club from the last few seasons are Pat Mullin and Steve Souchok. Bob Nieman, who hit .289 for St. Louis, and Jim Delsing, acquired in a trade with the Browns, probably will be starters.

Seeking recognition here are Russ Sullivan, who came up from Buffalo late last year and hit .327 for the Tigers; Frank Carswell, a .344 hitter for Buffalo; Rufus Crawford, from Scranton; Carl Linhart, another Buffalo importation, and Bill Tuttle, still another gardener from Buffalo.

Also in camp being looked at are Keith Little, a serviceman and outfielder who is on the Buffalo roster, and John Baumgartner, a third sacker, also from Buffalo. Ken Fremming, a righthanded pitcher, will be out of the service May 7 and he will join the club then.

Houtteman has a sore arm at the moment but Hutch says it's a minor thing, caused because Art didn't work out in the north before reporting here.

THE DOPE ON DETROIT—

The Tigers should be an improved club over the 1952 outfit, with the accent on youth. The pitching, however, must come through if the Bengals expect to rise in the league standings.

Limited Town Home Rule Plan Is Proposed

Local Measures Advance In Assembly

A bill which would give Allegany County municipal corporations limited home rule but which would not diminish the power of the General Assembly has been introduced in the House of Delegates by Del. Horace P. Whitworth Jr.

He explained the measure would not to any great extent increase the powers already held by the Mayor and Council of Cumberland as many of them are already specified in the charter.

Under the bill municipalities could by ordinance regulate the subjects covered. However, the legislature could overrule the ordinances.

The towns of seven counties in the state already have the power proposed by Whitworth but 16 counties, including Allegany, are exempt. Whitworth said he would like comments on the bill which he believes would help some of the towns in the county.

The proposal provides that municipalities could pass ordinances on the following subjects:

Advertising, appropriations, audits, bands, building regulations, cemeteries, community service, health, garbage, franchises, fire department, finances, explosives, curfew, police, pensions, parks, merit system, markets, liens, inspections, property, removals and surplus, salaries, snow and ice, special elections, zoning and fines.

Will Get Raise

Whitworth also reported that Joseph P. McCusker, deputy state comptroller, assured the House Ways and Means Committee this morning that employes in the offices of the clerks of circuit courts in Maryland would get the pay raise to be granted state employes.

Whitworth explained that these workers do not come under the state merit system, but are paid from the state funds they collect.

McCusker said the pay raise will be included in the budget and will become effective in June.

Local Bills Progress

A number of bills affecting Allegany County are moving along in the General Assembly through legislative channels on their way to becoming laws.

House Bill 507, sponsored by the Allegany County Delegation, passed the House. It increases the borrowing power of the Cresaptown special taxing district from $10,000 to $25,000.

Also passing the House was HB 508 which repeals the laws relating to sanitary districts in Allegany County. It was sponsored by the delegates.

The House enacted Senate Bill 4 which would raise from $50 to $100 the minimum damage necessary before provisions of the financial responsibility act apply to a motor vehicle accident and raise from $5,000-$10,000 the insurance which must be carried for bodily injury.

The House passed HB 540 introduced by the Allegany County delegation which would allow the Allegany County Commissioners ot fix the salary of the county investigator who is paid $250 a month.

The House also passed HB 545 which would permit the Cumberland City Council to raise the property tax from 95 cents to $1.25.

Eagles Win Award For Vote Campaign

The Fraternal Order of Eagles, along with 22 other national organizations, has won an award in the 1952 "Register and Vote" competition sponsored by the American Heritage Foundation, according to Herman L. Myers, secretary of Cumberland Aerie 245.

In the months before the 1952 Presidential election, the Eagles conducted an intensive campaign to get members and the public to register and vote. The awards were announced by Charles E. Wilson, former president of General Electric and chairman of the Heritage Foundation's committee of judges.

Hearings were held at the Court House yesterday by the Medical Board of the State Industrial Accident Commission on claims in connection with occupational diseases.

The hearings were held in the auxiliary court room.

Three Licenses Issued By County Board

Three licenses were issued yesterday by the Board of License Commissioners for Allegany County to establishments for the sale of intoxicants.

Clifford B. Sisler Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at Oldtown was granted a beer and wine permit for premises on the Uhl Highway near that community. Licensees are Noah S. Carder and Norval W. Twigg, officers of the VFW.

Roy E. Payne, Carl H. Paul and Dewey G. Wilfong, trustees of the Bowman's Addition Volunteer Fire Company were granted a beer license for the fire hall.

Stanley O. Hamilton, acting chairman of the board, warned the trustees that the place will have to be operated in a peaceful manner and no disturbances allowed during dance nights. He said the board had received a number of complaints on conditions at the fire hall on Saturday nights.

The license issued yesterday merely changes the names on the permit as one trustee had appeared several weeks ago to ask that he be dropped as a licensee.

Richard Joseph Ryan, of Westernport, was granted a Class D beer license for premises at 18 Main Street in Westernport.

Twenty-two other registrants in Board 28 will accompany the draftees for pre-induction physical examniations, according to P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator.

Liberty Trust Will Explain Credit Plan At Dinner Meet

Retail merchants of Cumberland and Allegany County will be guests of the Liberty Trust Company at a dinner meeting at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club Friday, March 27, at 6:30 p. m.

The purpose of the session is to explain in detail a charge account service plan which has been under consideration by the company for the past several months, firm officials stated.

The charge account plan has already been inaugurated in some cities, and the Liberty Trust officials said qualified speakers will explain the details of the plan and answer questions concerning it.

Will Issue Cards

Under the plan, charge account cards are issued to individuals by the bank and these cards may be used to make purchases at any of the stores that are members of the plan.

Since the cards will bear the signature of the purchaser, the signature of the individual on the charge slip will authenticate the purchase.

At the close of the business each day, all of the charge slips are taken to the bank by the merchants and deposited to their respective accounts so that in effect the store owner has a cash sale rather than a charge sale.

Bills Each Month

The bank then has a charge account on its books in the name of the purchaser. Bills are rendered every 30 days and payments for all purchases made during the month by the holder of the card are made at the bank. In other words the customer receives only one bill covering all his charge purchases made during the month. Payments may also be made by mail to the bank.

The system permits local merchants who ordinarily sell for cash to sell their merchandise on department store credit terms to people whose applications for this credit service have been approved by the bank and to whom the bank has issued credit cards, Liberty Trust officers explained. The merchant may thus have available additional purchasing power and capital funds for business expansion.

Termed Desirable

The Board of Directors and officers of the bank have made a study of the operation of the charge account plan and the bank is prepared to offer this service to the merchants and public, a spokesman said.

The advantage to the purchaser is that fact that his credit card is acceptable at any store displaying the charge account emblem issued to cooperating members.

From first hand information gained from other cities, it has been found that the plan is very desirable from the standpoint of the merchant, purchaser and bank. It may revolutionize the credit structure of retail merchants, the bank spokesman said.

Invitations are being mailed this week to retail merchants in Cumberland and county communities, he said.

Limited Town Home Rule Plan Is Proposed

Local Measures Advance In Assembly

A bill which would give Allegany County municipal corporations limited home rule but which would not diminish the power of the General Assembly has been introduced in the House of Delegates by Del. Horace P. Whitworth Jr.

He explained the measure would not to any great extent increase the powers already held by the Mayor and Council of Cumberland as many of them are already specified in the charter.

Under the bill municipalities could by ordinance regulate the subjects covered. However, the legislature could overrule the ordinances.

The towns of seven counties in the state already have the power proposed by Whitworth but 16 counties, including Allegany, are exempt. Whitworth said he would like comments on the bill which he believes would help some of the towns in the county.

The proposal provides that municipalities could pass ordinances on the following subjects:

Advertising, appropriations, audits, bands, building regulations, cemeteries, community service, health, garbage, franchises, fire department, finances, explosives, curfew, police, pensions, parks, merit system, markets, liens, inspections, property, removals and surplus, salaries, snow and ice, special elections, zoning and fines.

Will Get Raise

Whitworth also reported that Joseph P. McCusker, deputy state comptroller, assured the House Ways and Means Committee this morning that employes in the offices of the clerks of circuit courts in Maryland would get the pay raise to be granted state employes.

Whitworth explained that these workers do not come under the state merit system, but are paid from the state funds they collect.

McCusker said the pay raise will be included in the budget and will become effective in June.

Local Bills Progress

A number of bills affecting Allegany County are moving along in the General Assembly through legislative channels on their way to becoming laws.

House Bill 507, sponsored by the Allegany County Delegation, passed the House. It increases the borrowing power of the Cresaptown special taxing district from $10,000 to $25,000.

Also passing the House was HB 508 which repeals the laws relating to sanitary districts in Allegany County. It was sponsored by the delegates.

The House enacted Senate Bill 4 which would raise from $50 to $100 the minimum damage necessary before provisions of the financial responsibility act apply to a motor vehicle accident and raise from $5,000-$10,000 the insurance which must be carried for bodily injury.

The House passed HB 540 introduced by the Allegany County delegation which would allow the Allegany County Commissioners ot fix the salary of the county investigator who is paid $250 a month.

The House also passed HB 545 which would permit the Cumberland City Council to raise the property tax from 95 cents to $1.25.

Three Licenses Issued By County Board

Three licenses were issued yesterday by the Board of License Commissioners for Allegany County to establishments for the sale of intoxicants.

Clifford B. Sisler Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at Oldtown was granted a beer and wine permit for premises on the Uhl Highway near that community. Licensees are Noah S. Carder and Norval W. Twigg, officers of the VFW.

Roy E. Payne, Carl H. Paul and Dewey G. Wilfong, trustees of the Bowman's Addition Volunteer Fire Company were granted a beer license for the fire hall.

Stanley O. Hamilton, acting chairman of the board, warned the trustees that the place will have to be operated in a peaceful manner and no disturbances allowed during dance nights. He said the board had received a number of complaints on conditions at the fire hall on Saturday nights.

The license issued yesterday merely changes the names on the permit as one trustee had appeared several weeks ago to ask that he be dropped as a licensee.

Richard Joseph Ryan, of Westernport, was granted a Class D beer license for premises at 18 Main Street in Westernport.

Liberty Trust Will Explain Credit Plan At Dinner Meet

Retail merchants of Cumberland and Allegany County will be guests of the Liberty Trust Company at a dinner meeting at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club Friday, March 27, at 6:30 p. m.

The purpose of the session is to explain in detail a charge account service plan which has been under consideration by the company for the past several months, firm officials stated.

The charge account plan has already been inaugurated in some cities, and the Liberty Trust officials said qualified speakers will explain the details of the plan and answer questions concerning it.

Will Issue Cards

Under the plan, charge account cards are issued to individuals by the bank and these cards may be used to make purchases at any of the stores that are members of the plan.

Since the cards will bear the signature of the purchaser, the signature of the individual on the charge slip will authenticate the purchase.

At the close of the business each day, all of the charge slips are taken to the bank by the merchants and deposited to their respective accounts so that in effect the store owner has a cash sale rather than a charge sale.

Bills Each Month

The bank then has a charge account on its books in the name of the purchaser. Bills are rendered every 30 days and payments for all purchases made during the month by the holder of the card are made at the bank. In other words the customer receives only one bill covering all his charge purchases made during the month. Payments may also be made by mail to the bank.

The system permits local merchants who ordinarily sell for cash to sell their merchandise on department store credit terms to people whose applications for this credit service have been approved by the bank and to whom the bank has issued credit cards, Liberty Trust officers explained. The merchant may thus have available additional purchasing power and capital funds for business expansion.

Termed Desirable

The Board of Directors and officers of the bank have made a study of the operation of the charge account plan and the bank is prepared to offer this service to the merchants and public, a spokesman said.

The advantage to the purchaser is that fact that his credit card is acceptable at any store displaying the charge account emblem issued to cooperating members.

From first hand information gained from other cities, it has been found that the plan is very desirable from the standpoint of the merchant, purchaser and bank. It may revolutionize the credit structure of retail merchants, the bank spokesman said.

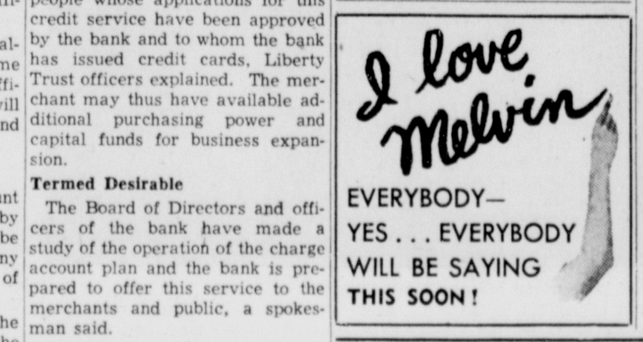

Invitations are being mailed this week to retail merchants in Cumberland and county communities, he said.

Tri-Towns Plan Union Service On Good Friday

WESTERNPORT — Final plans were completed at the meeting of the Tri-Towns Ministerial Association Monday for the union Good Friday service to be held from 12 noon to 3 p. m. April 3 at the Assembly of God Church, of which Rev. E. W. Welford is pastor.

The pastors participating in the service are requested if possible to remain through the entire service.

The annual Easter sunrise service, sponsored by the association, will be held April 5 at 6:30 a. m. at the Piedmont Pentecostal Holiness Church. The speaker will be Rev. J. E. Dettra, pastor of the Church of the Brethren, and the service will run for 45 minutes.

A letter was read at the meeting from the Council of Church of Baltimore, asking for support of House Bill 433, and all pastors were requested to give written support of the bill.

House Bill 433 would place a state-wide ban on the Sunday sale and delivery of alcoholic beverages.

Rev. Raymond M. Campbell was instructed to purchase from the American Bible Society 200 copies of the Gospel according to St. John with special Easter cover for distribution at the Good Friday Union Service. Rev. Clyde W. Ash reported that work is being continued on the activities calendar.

Rev. Robert E. Cassell, host pastor at the meeting, had charge of the devotions which consisted of reading the seventeenth chapter of St. John and prayer. The closing prayer was given by Rev. Rex Coffman.

Other ministers attending were Rev. Andrew Agnew, and Rev. William Wilkinson.

Butler has been cast in the role of Dr. Austin Sloper, father of "The Heiress." His theatrical background has been limited to two one-act plays, both given this year. While a student at Allegany High School, Cumberland, he took the part in "Sweethearts," "The Late Christopher Bean" and "The Day That Lincoln Died."

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 17 (INS)—No retiring for Clarence Brown, who has bowed out of MGM after many many years. Clarence, in conjunction with Charles K. Feldman, has acquired "Bernardine," authored by Mary Chase, who wrote "Harvey."

This story of teen-agers, a delightful comedy, will be directed by Clarence after his vacation in Europe.

In telling me about this purchase, Feldman said that this is a further example that "Bernardine" is in line with his policy of acquiring hits suitable for the clients of his agency, famous artists. This he wants for Irene Dunne and Robert Wagner.

Hollywood won't be seeing Joan Bennett this spring. As soon as she closes her show, "Bell, Book and Candle," she'll leave immediately for Egypt and Italy where she'll star in "Storm Over the Nile" for Marion Gering.

Gering traveled to Philadelphia when Joan was playing there and was so delighted with the way she acted and looked, that he made a deal with her agent, Louis Shurr.

For her own sake and because her reconciliation with Walter Wanger is still very much in the air, I am happy that Joan is not coming back here. I think the longer she stays away the better she'll feel.

George Jessel swears by the great horn spoon and a few other things that Jimmy Durante will star in "Rip Van Winkle, Jr." in July before he appears in "I Gotta Million of 'Em." Seems the script of "I Gotta Million of 'Em" needs a complete rewrite.

George was very excited when he told me that Jimmy will be starred in "Rip Van Winkle, Jr." and that the film will have an RKO release.

"I just talked to Jimmy at the Desert Inn in Las Vegas," said the enthusiastic young man, "and we're all set to go with the script all ready."

I say "young" advisedly because George has more pep and energy than most men half his age.

At the Hernando Courtright cocktail party I said au revoir to Robert Hardy Andrews, the author, who goes to New Delhi to film "The Life of Buddha," which is a most interesting assignment. He said he's going to take his camera staff and use native actors.

"I can't tell you who will release it," said Robert, "but we have a major release."

I asked Robert's pretty wife if she will go with him, and she said she has to stay home and look after the children.

The Courtrights had a house warming in their beautiful new home.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Dorothy and Robert Mitchum had dinner together at Ciro's. They remained for both Pearl Bailey shows, danced together, and it looked like it's a reconciliation.

I saw Lana Turner and Lex Barker at the early show, and Doris Duke, with Joe Castro.

I've never seen such an array of drums in my life as Louis Bellson uses—seven of them. As for Pearl Bailey, she had to take encore after encore.

At mass Sunday William O'Dwyer, former Mexican ambassador, and one time mayor of New York, told me he was here to see his doctor and that he was going to breakfast at the Richard Englishes and take a look at his godchild.

The Gene Markeys gave their first big party since their marriage. Lucille says that she and Gene are going to the Kentucky Derby, but she doesn't expect to have any winners from the famed Calumet Farms.

Among the guests who stayed on and on (they had such a good time) were Neil McCarthy who was with Mrs. Jeff Parsons.

Mary Pickford, who looks sensational these days, and Buddy Rogers, Princess Conchita Pignatelli, Jimmy McHugh, the Victor Ford Collins all remained on way past invitation time.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Protruding hip bones can be masked with the right skirt detail. But the right exercise corrects them!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

The slimness that is such an asset in wearing the new skirts actually becomes a liability when it reaches such a degree that the hip bone sticks out like two eye-catching protuberances.

In lieu of natural padding, you can resort to camouflage techniques that are immediately effective. The first one is the acquisition of a light-weight, elasticized girdle with emphasis on the horizontal stretch. This contributes a rounder look pronto and over a period of time actually coaxes real curves into existence.

Camouflaging Boniness

The next step is to select skirts that are cleverly fashioned to screen off the problem. Designed especially for this purpose are those with large patch pockets, drapes, peplums and gathers that fall over the hip bones. On occasions when the style is appropriate, the full, petticoat-supported skirt is, of course, ideal.

At all times, be strict with yourself about your posture. Be sure that your hips are tucked in and your pelvis tilted upward. Basically, posture is often the secondary cause of protruding hip bones. For the most exact instructions on achieving a correct and graceful stance, send for our booklet, "Your Posture." (For directions, see below).

For More Rounded Lines

The lasting cure for your problem is proper exercise. Here is a routine that will build up your abdominal wall so that eventually the now empty cavities around your tuberosities will fill in and be flush with the abdomen. Ready for the try? Let's go:

Lie on your back on the floor. Raise both legs so that they are perpendicular to the floor, knees straight. Now, slowly and rythmically criss-cross your legs, keeping the movement within a two-foot span. Repeat ten times and increase gradually to thirty times daily.

Be faithful as a boy scout to this regimen and three months from now you'll be wearing slickly fitted clothes with new aplomb—even the plastered-to-the-figure swim suits that fashion has in store!

YOUR POSTURE

To achieve grace of the highest degree—to make yours the posture ideal — to improve stance, figure, health and the appearance of your clothes as well, read the informative, easy-to-follow booklet "YOUR POSTURE". For a copy write to Secrets of Charm in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10c (in coin).

Tomorrow: Listen—to your child.

Bout Is Postponed

PHILADELPHIA, March 17 (AP)—The scheduled 10 rounder between Welterweights Gil Turner and Joey Giardello has been postponed from March 24 to April 7, Promoter Herman Taylor announced today.

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—I had a brief talk the other morning with a tired little girl who at 20 has put girlhood and privacy behind her. Girls at 20 still should be allowed to goof off occasionally or laze around during the summers or date the boy next door. You know, be aimless and farefree for a while longer.

The tired little girl's name was Joanne Gilbert, whose name shortly will be familiar to one and all because a big studio has signed her to make movies. Sophisticates in Manhattan and Hollywood know her already, because in a few swift months she has become a supper club headliner, but when she is starred in her first film, "The Red Garters," and later when she becomes Donald O'Connor's partner in a few pictures, as is planned, the dry cleaner in Dubuque and the butcher in Goose Creek will know her, too.

Joanne's a slim, dark child whose song style is sharply reminiscent of Lena Horne's (she even does one of Lena's pet songs) and whose father, a courteous bearded gent named Ray Gilbert, is one of America's top songwriters ("Zipadee Doo Dah," which won him a movie Oscar) and singing coaches. What she and I were talking about was the contrast between this trip to New York and her first trip, a year or so ago.

She was one of the top California models. "I was at the point where I didn't have to call the photographers; they called me," she said. However, she also was one of those restless, intelligent souls who knows that you have to make New York sit up and notice you before you can claim to be successful. Pop bought a plane ticket and sent her east with his blessing.

She was here two and a half months. During that time she confirmed one of her suspicions—that a pretty girl in New York is like a glass of beer in Milwaukee. There are so many of them here, some of them naturally pretty and others made fascinating with the help of pancake make-up and eyebrow tweezers, that trying to make it here on your looks alone is almost a hopeless cause.

Joanne Gilbert didn't know New York—but more to the point, New York didn't know Joanne Gilbert was alive. A top model from California has the prestige here of a man who can open clams with one hand. Virtually none, that is. No red carpets were unrolled, no newspapermen turned up breathlessly to interview her.

Joanne wasn't an out-and-out flop, but she did have to start all over again as a model. She got work—but after a couple of months of bucking the waves, she got homesick. She got back on a plane and returned to California and it looked as if Manhattan had pinned back the ears of one more ambitious girl.

When she came back, a couple of weeks ago, she could have been pardoned for thumbing her nose at New York, which she isn't the kind of a girl to do. There were red carpets everywhere. Every press agent in America seemed to be thumping the tubs for her. For last summer and autumn she and Pop dreamed up a night club act for her (she had just 14 hours' work on it before she opened at the Mocambo) and the studio signed her to a contract. It was the most overnight of overnight successes. When she blew into New York this second time to open an engagement at Gogi's Larue, everybody in town knew about it.

Maybe it all has come a little too soon. Ray told me it might have; he said they had plenty of work to do before her cafe act was the way it should be. Practice, guest appearances, two shows a night, interviews — they've all made an enormously tired little girl out of Joanne Gilbert.

"It's what I wanted," she told me and yet all the time we were talking I couldn't help wonder if she didn't want just for an afternoon to throw over the whole thing and go swimming or rollerskating with a gang of kids and sit in the last row of a movie with a UCLA sophomore. Them days, alas, is gone for ever.

Herr Krupp hasn't snapped a bon-bon in eight years and his period of probation is over.

So big-heartful Uncle Sam just gave him his war nursery back.

Whereupon Von Krupp will baby-sit for Big Bertha. The gun would shoot 60 miles. And then throw rocks at you.

Like all ladies, Big Bertha was a dame that had a habit of shooting off her mouth at nobody in particular.

Back in Essen in 1876 the Krupps employed 11,000 men exclusive of 5,000 miners and others. But it has been a quiet family. Since Maxim invented the silencer.

The kickback figures around $150,000,000. Looks like a nice hauling job for one of Brink's self-dumping pie wagons.

Battlefield Injured

MIAMI, March 17 (AP)—George D. Widener's Battlefield suffered a broken bone in his left front leg during Saturday's $50,000 Gulfstream Park Handicap and may never race again, Trainer W. F. Mulholland reported today.

Mulholland said the injury was discovered yesterday.

Battlefield was the second highest money winning horse racing this season with total earnings of $474,727.

China Woos Japan With Human Lives

TOKYO, March 17 (AP) — Communist China is wooing Japan's masses with piecemeal gifts of the world's most precious bargaining commodity — human lives.

Four large Japanese ships were bound today for Chinese Red ports. They will pick up the first batch of 30,000 Japanese nationals which China has offered to repatriate. In all, the Japanese government figures 50,000 civilian nationals have been stranded on the China mainland since World War II.

Why did the Red rulers suddenly agree to let thousands of Japanese go home?

The answer seems to be to win friends in the island empire, for long China's worst enemy. Japan long had sought repatriation but Peiping turned a deaf ear until late last year.

Trade may be the key explanation, some authorities believe. As the U. S. and Britain tighten their economic blockade of the mainland, Red China flirts more and more for commerce with Japan. The Communists dangle the prospect of a perfect trade balance—huge China with raw materials and few technicians; industrial Japan with hungry mouths and idle machinery.

Birds In Gilded Cages

HOBE SOUND, Fla.—Notwithstanding the fact the Democrats were in power for 20 years and the Republicans have just taken over, a lot of pretty fancy looking, stylish yachts come in here and tie up to the club dock. We walked down to inspect a couple of them the other day, and the inmates seemed to be living in a gold fish bowl, or like birds in gilded cages. We saw a gentleman and lady, presumably man and wife, eating breakfast. They were middle-aged. In the forward cabin was exposed the depris from the night before—three or four half-empty liquor bottles, glasses, some salted nuts and other dainties.

John Wheeler

Now I am not an authority on the subject but these overgrown skiffs always seemed to me to be as ostentatious as a jeweled fly swatter and about as useful. There is a woman in New York who makes them, and she must be friendly with the flies, since only one side is serviceable. There is no chance for a double with a backhand shot. The fancy, ornate decorations wash out the prospect.

Based on my sketchy seafaring experience, the ceilings are too low, the cabins too small, and the plumbing is usually hand pumped. Once a distinguished gent, who was smart enough to know better and rich enough to buy a bigger boat, invited Bruce Barton, Grantland Rice and me to take a cruise on his schooner or yawl, I forget which. He is a teetotaller and firm in his convictions.

"If you fellows want anything to drink, bring your own," he warned when he invited us. "I will supply the ice and water."

During the boon days of 1929 when everybody thought he was rich, I got a disagreeable disease called shingles which hung on persistently. The doctor said I should absorb a lot of sunshine and breathe more fresh air as well as get a reasonable amount of exercise. I must have also had a blind spot, for I bought a schooner named the "Hajada," for which I paid $8,500 in the late spring. I then hired a Capt. Penney. He immediately purchased a lot of flags we never used and uniforms he never wore. He stuck to a sweater and khaki trousers all summer. The bill was $250. When I told Irvin Cobb about it, he remarked:

"His name will be Pretty Penney before the season is over."

How right he was. The captain must have thought he was on J. P. Morgan's yacht, the Corsair, the way he spent my money. The experiment didn't do my shingles any good, and in the fall I had a relapse. Nobody wanted to ride on the boat because the guests frequently got seasick, as it was before the days of dramamine. I finally sold it in September for $5,100, and Capt. Penney and his surplus gold braid went with it. I gradually recovered.

There was a newspaper publisher who had a pretty good-sized yacht. He sent it ahead to Miami with only the crew one winter, and, so as not to waste any time, he flew South. It seems there was a mushroom anchor which got stuck in the Biscayne Bay mud, and it took three days and a couple of derricks to pull it up while the owner paced the deck and his guests ate his food and drank his liquor.

In 1927, I was in the French resort of Deauville where I met a rich friend, who had a large craft which had sailed across the Atlantic manned by its sailors while he used the Aquitania. He invited me and some companions, including Mr. and Mrs. Montague Glass, to dine on his yacht.

"Let me know at the hotel, whether you can come," he said. "I am staying there."

We accepted. The seagoing skiff was tied up at the dock. He wasn't even living on it. "Bugs" Baer got seasick while it was standing still. On the way home, Mr. Glass, the humorist, remarked:

"That is nothing but a boarding house for Swedes." He was referring to the crew, the members of which were of Scandinavian origin.

NEW YORK, March 17. (AP)—A 16-year-old boy was sentenced to the reformatory yesterday after admitting he had stolen more than 400 cars just to go joy-riding.

Brooklyn County Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz told the boy, Robert Maher:

"You are the champion auto thief in America. That's a great distinction, isn't it? Here you stand before me ready to go to jail, when you should be studying the box scores of the Dodgers."

Replied Robert: "I don't know what comes over me—I just can't stay away from automobiles. It's not that I want to do it—I just do."

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 17 (INS)—No retiring for Clarence Brown, who has bowed out of MGM after many many years. Clarence, in conjunction with Charles K. Feldman, has acquired "Bernardine," authored by Mary Chase, who wrote "Harvey."

This story of teen-agers, a delightful comedy, will be directed by Clarence after his vacation in Europe.

In telling me about this purchase, Feldman said that this is a further example that "Bernardine" is in line with his policy of acquiring hits suitable for the clients of his agency, famous artists. This he wants for Irene Dunne and Robert Wagner.

Hollywood won't be seeing Joan Bennett this spring. As soon as she closes her show, "Bell, Book and Candle," she'll leave immediately for Egypt and Italy where she'll star in "Storm Over the Nile" for Marion Gering.

Gering traveled to Philadelphia when Joan was playing there and was so delighted with the way she acted and looked, that he made a deal with her agent, Louis Shurr.

For her own sake and because her reconciliation with Walter Wanger is still very much in the air, I am happy that Joan is not coming back here. I think the longer she stays away the better she'll feel.

George Jessel swears by the great horn spoon and a few other things that Jimmy Durante will star in "Rip Van Winkle, Jr." in July before he appears in "I Gotta Million of 'Em." Seems the script of "I Gotta Million of 'Em" needs a complete rewrite.

George was very excited when he told me that Jimmy will be starred in "Rip Van Winkle, Jr." and that the film will have an RKO release.

"I just talked to Jimmy at the Desert Inn in Las Vegas," said the enthusiastic young man, "and we're all set to go with the script all ready."

I say "young" advisedly because George has more pep and energy than most men half his age.

At the Hernando Courtright cocktail party I said au revoir to Robert Hardy Andrews, the author, who goes to New Delhi to film "The Life of Buddha," which is a most interesting assignment. He said he's going to take his camera staff and use native actors.

"I can't tell you who will release it," said Robert, "but we have a major release."

I asked Robert's pretty wife if she will go with him, and she said she has to stay home and look after the children.

The Courtrights had a house warming in their beautiful new home.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Dorothy and Robert Mitchum had dinner together at Ciro's. They remained for both Pearl Bailey shows, danced together, and it looked like it's a reconciliation.

I saw Lana Turner and Lex Barker at the early show, and Doris Duke, with Joe Castro.

I've never seen such an array of drums in my life as Louis Bellson uses—seven of them. As for Pearl Bailey, she had to take encore after encore.

At mass Sunday William O'Dwyer, former Mexican ambassador, and one time mayor of New York, told me he was here to see his doctor and that he was going to breakfast at the Richard Englishes and take a look at his godchild.

The Gene Markeys gave their first big party since their marriage. Lucille says that she and Gene are going to the Kentucky Derby, but she doesn't expect to have any winners from the famed Calumet Farms.

Among the guests who stayed on and on (they had such a good time) were Neil McCarthy who was with Mrs. Jeff Parsons.

Mary Pickford, who looks sensational these days, and Buddy Rogers, Princess Conchita Pignatelli, Jimmy McHugh, the Victor Ford Collins all remained on way past invitation time.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Protruding hip bones can be masked with the right skirt detail. But the right exercise corrects them!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

The slimness that is such an asset in wearing the new skirts actually becomes a liability when it reaches such a degree that the hip bone sticks out like two eye-catching protuberances.

In lieu of natural padding, you can resort to camouflage techniques that are immediately effective. The first one is the acquisition of a light-weight, elasticized girdle with emphasis on the horizontal stretch. This contributes a rounder look pronto and over a period of time actually coaxes real curves into existence.

Camouflaging Boniness

The next step is to select skirts that are cleverly fashioned to screen off the problem. Designed especially for this purpose are those with large patch pockets, drapes, peplums and gathers that fall over the hip bones. On occasions when the style is appropriate, the full, petticoat-supported skirt is, of course, ideal.

At all times, be strict with yourself about your posture. Be sure that your hips are tucked in and your pelvis tilted upward. Basically, posture is often the secondary cause of protruding hip bones. For the most exact instructions on achieving a correct and graceful stance, send for our booklet, "Your Posture." (For directions, see below).

For More Rounded Lines

The lasting cure for your problem is proper exercise. Here is a routine that will build up your abdominal wall so that eventually the now empty cavities around your tuberosities will fill in and be flush with the abdomen. Ready for the try? Let's go:

Lie on your back on the floor. Raise both legs so that they are perpendicular to the floor, knees straight. Now, slowly and rythmically criss-cross your legs, keeping the movement within a two-foot span. Repeat ten times and increase gradually to thirty times daily.

Be faithful as a boy scout to this regimen and three months from now you'll be wearing slickly fitted clothes with new aplomb—even the plastered-to-the-figure swim suits that fashion has in store!

YOUR POSTURE

To achieve grace of the highest degree—to make yours the posture ideal — to improve stance, figure, health and the appearance of your clothes as well, read the informative, easy-to-follow booklet "YOUR POSTURE". For a copy write to Secrets of Charm in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10c (in coin).

Bout Is Postponed

PHILADELPHIA, March 17 (AP)—The scheduled 10 rounder between Welterweights Gil Turner and Joey Giardello has been postponed from March 24 to April 7, Promoter Herman Taylor announced today.

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—I had a brief talk the other morning with a tired little girl who at 20 has put girlhood and privacy behind her. Girls at 20 still should be allowed to goof off occasionally or laze around during the summers or date the boy next door. You know, be aimless and farefree for a while longer.

The tired little girl's name was Joanne Gilbert, whose name shortly will be familiar to one and all because a big studio has signed her to make movies. Sophisticates in Manhattan and Hollywood know her already, because in a few swift months she has become a supper club headliner, but when she is starred in her first film, "The Red Garters," and later when she becomes Donald O'Connor's partner in a few pictures, as is planned, the dry cleaner in Dubuque and the butcher in Goose Creek will know her, too.

Joanne's a slim, dark child whose song style is sharply reminiscent of Lena Horne's (she even does one of Lena's pet songs) and whose father, a courteous bearded gent named Ray Gilbert, is one of America's top songwriters ("Zip-a-dee Doo Dah," which won him a movie Oscar) and singing coaches. What she and I were talking about was the contrast between this trip to New York and her first trip, a year or so ago.

She was one of the top California models. "I was at the point where I didn't have to call the photographers; they called me," she said. However, she also was one of those restless, intelligent souls who knows that you have to make New York sit up and notice you before you can claim to be successful. Pop bought a plane ticket and sent her east with his blessing.

She was here two and a half months. During that time she confirmed one of her suspicions—that a pretty girl in New York is like a glass of beer in Milwaukee. There are so many of them here, some of them naturally pretty and others made fascinating with the help of pancake make-up and eyebrow tweezers, that trying to make it here on your looks alone is almost a hopeless cause.

Joanne Gilbert didn't know New York—but more to the point, New York didn't know Joanne Gilbert was alive. A top model from California has the prestige here of a man who can open clams with one hand. Virtually none, that is. No red carpets were unrolled, no newspapermen turned up breathlessly to interview her.

Joanne wasn't an out-and-out flop, but she did have to start all over again as a model. She got work—but after a couple of months of bucking the waves, she got homesick. She got back on a plane and returned to California and it looked as if Manhattan had pinned back the ears of one more ambitious girl.

When she came back, a couple of weeks ago, she could have been pardoned for thumbing her nose at New York, which she isn't the kind of a girl to do. There were red carpets everywhere. Every press agent in America seemed to be thumping the tubs for her. For last summer and autumn she and Pop dreamed up a night club act for her (she had just 14 hours' work on it before she opened at the Mocambo) and the studio signed her to a contract. Disciplining A Chimp

Today we're back on chimps who — if Milton Berle keeps getting more expensive — may replace humans altogether on television. The only regularly employed chimpanzee on television is J. Frank Muggs on "Today." Well, J. Frank has been getting above himself. (He's a very young chimp and, after all, a network show is likely to go to anyone's head.)

John Crosby

For one thing J. Frank Muggs has been getting more fan mail than Dave Garroway. For another he insists on attending all the meetings. He got pretty unbearable. Finally, somebody on the show called the zoo and asked what you do about chimps who got to thinking they were superior to everyone. The zoo man said that somebody has to belt him — but hard. Garroway couldn't wait. He cuffed him roundly at the first opportunity. J. Frank crawled under a chair at the meeting; eventually he came out and climbed penitently into Garroway's arms, accepting defeat and Garroway's mastery. He's been a lamb ever since.

One of the best ways to remain consistently interesting is to remain consistently unsponsored. Sponsorship makes some people terribly nervous, notably Henry Morgan. Morgan is now an after-midnight commentator on WMGM in New York. As a matter of fact, he has got a couple of sponsors but they don't bother him unduly and he operates more or less under the theory that not many people are listening anyhow. The result is one of the most amusing, challenging and genuinely intelligent programs on the after-midnight air.

Frankly, my note-taking hand breaks down after 11:30 p. m. so my recollections of Morgan may be a little hazy. (I get a little hazy after 11:30, too.) It has always baffled me how anyone can talk for three hours. Morgan, of course, doesn't really talk all that time. He interviews people. He talks on the telephone and sometimes listens on the telephone for long periods. He occasionally insults the customers at the restaurant from which the broadcast emanates.

But the talk is frankly good talk which is to say it sounds like the sort of thing you and I would say to one another over a couple of drinks. Somehow you never hear this sort of thing except after midnight on radio. The pre-midnight talk is scrubbed up and, as it were, emasculated. Morgan, for instance, started a feud with taxi-drivers by saying they were getting increasingly foul of disposition and hopelessly garrulous. Well, that happens to be a sound observation. But you can't say anything deleterious about cab drivers any more than you can about motherhood. Except after midnight.

Television, like radio, seeks the non-controversial; the objective is to be as innocuous as possible. But after 12, conceivably because the executives go to bed, the conversation opens up not only on Morgan's program but on everyone else's. These programs are getting more and more popular. It's just possible there is a great hunger among the citizenry for observations which cut into someone, even cab drivers.

Another guy who remains terribly unsponsored is Ernie Kovacs. Kovacs is not CBS's answer to Milton Berle; he might more properly be called CBS's surrender to Berle, sort of a declaration of no competition. Having no sponsor, Kovacs invents his own. The last

THE RAMPARTS WE WATCH! That entire shaded area is the air defense perimeter of the continental United States. Any part of the United States is vulnerable right now to air attack, if hostile planes are not detected by people like yourself.

RADAR STANDS GUARD ceaselessly... manned by the U. S. Air Force. But hostile planes could still swoop in through low-altitude loopholes between radar scanners. Total defense requires eyes and ears, too!

Card of Thanks

The family of Herbert W. Dye wish to thank all our friends and relatives for their floral tributes, cars and expressions of sympathy at the death of our Husband and Father. For the services conducted by Rev. Louis Emerick and for the co-operation received from the Improved Order of Red Men, Tioga Tribe 126, Midland, Md.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our daughter, Jounetia E. Wilson, who died two years ago, March 18th.

God has taken you home, my dear,
Away from sorrow, pain and fear;
Left us all with broken hearts,
From our loved ones, we must part,
But we'll meet again some day
In that land of endless day.
Sadly missed by mother and father,
Mr. & Mrs. L. C. Phillips.
Your children, Ray & Ruth Ann Wilson.

Card of Thanks

The family of Herbert W. Dye wish to thank all our friends and relatives for their floral tributes, cars and expressions of sympathy at the death of our Husband and Father. For the services conducted by Rev. Louis Emerick and for the co-operation received from the Improved Order of Red Men, Tioga Tribe 126, Midland, Md.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our daughter, Jounetia E. Wilson, who died two years ago, March 18th.
God has taken you home, my dear,
Away from sorrow, pain and fear;
Left us all with broken hearts,
From our loved ones, we must part,
But we'll meet again some day
In that land of endless day.
Sadly missed by mother and father,
Mr. & Mrs. L. C. Phillips.
Your children, Ray & Ruth Ann Wilson.

Gov. McKeldin Rapped For Failure To Reappoint Dr. Nathan B. Herman

BALTIMORE, March 16 (AP) — The Council of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland yesterday criticized Gov. McKeldin for failing to reappoint Dr. Nathan B. Herman to the Medical Board for Occupational Diseases.

In a letter to Chairman Sybert (D-Howard) of the State Senate Committee on Executive Nominations the council said, "Under previous governors the qualifications of Dr. Herman have twice been recognized by reappointment."

McKeldin named Dr. James Frenkil to the post.

The faculty letter, written by four physicians who make up the executive committee of the group, said McKeldin had violated the "intent of the law, though not its wording" by leaving Herman off the list of appointments.

"The Council of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty regrets that in the present instance Gov. McKeldin has chosen to ignore its recommendations and those of the deans of the Schools of Medicine of the University of Maryland and the Johns Hopkins University," the letter added.

A spokesman for the governor noted that Dr. C. Boyd Wylie, dean of the Maryland medical school, had recommended Frenkil in a telegram to McKeldin after submitting an earlier list which did not include the name. Wylie said in the telegram he would send a letter supporting his recommendation of Frenkil.

Herman's six-year term expires this spring.

Sen. Dippel (D-Balto-3rd) said last week he would ask that Wylie, Dr. Alan M. Chesney, dean of the Hopkins medical school, and council members of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty to appear before the nominations committee.

Ruffner Gives Up Korea Command

WITH U. S. 45th DIVISION, Korea, March 17. (AP)—Maj. Gen. David L. Ruffner of Charleston, W. Va., relinquished command of the U. S. 45th Infantry Division Sunday in the first major change of combat commanders since Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor took over the Eighth Army.

The 56-year-old Ruffner is returning home for retirement.

An Eighth Army spokesman said Ruffner was being retired under the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 because he had been a permanent brigadier general in grade for five years and had more than 30 years of Army service. His major general's rank was temporary.

Brig. Gen. P. D. Gender of New York City took over temporarily as commanding officer until Ruffner's successor is named by the Far East Command.

Ruffner took command of the former Oklahoma National Guard outfit on the Western Front in May and a month later credited the Thunderbird Division with upsetting Chinese Red plans to smash through Allied lines. He said that in 10 days of violent fighting the 45th inflicted 3,500 casualties on the Reds.

Bratton Wants Shot At Gavilan's Title

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—Welterweight Contender Johnny Bratton of Chicago today offered to donate his entire purse to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund if Champion Kid Gavilan would meet him in a title fight.

Bratton, former NBA 147-pound champion, lost his crown to Gavilan in a 15-rounder in New York May 18, 1951.

Daily Bridge Lesson
by Shepard Barclay

MAJORITY VS. MINORITY

ANY PLAY which has majority odds in its favor—such as 4 to 3—is obviously a wiser try than one with the odds against it in the same proportion. That principle is violated not infrequently by players who are much better than the general run. By just a very slight alteration in their modus operandi in playing for a contract, they could enhance the chance that their attempt would succeed. If they took an interminable length of time to study all of the alternatives, they would note the difference. But consideration of others often prevents such thorough analysis.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♦
2 ♥	Pass	6 ♥

North's direct bid to slam was in line with probabilities that South had at least one of the missing aces, probably just as sound as Blackwooding to find out about it. The other was laid down by West to launch the play, followed by the club 3, the K picking off the Q. If that felled honor could have been counted upon as not a false-card, the club finesse could have assured the contract.

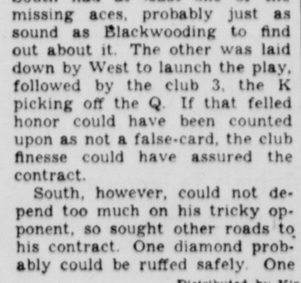

South, however, could not depend too much on his tricky opponent, so sought other roads to his contract. One diamond probably could be ruffed safely. One could be put on a spade honor. The doubtful low club could be discarded on the spade J if the finesse would work, but that was too big a chance to take. Maybe a spade could be set by a ruff, if the Q was in a hand containing three or fewer of the suit. Anyway the club finesse could wait.

Pursuing that idea, South on the third trick ruffed the diamond 4, scored three top trumps, took the spade A and K, discarding the last diamond, and ruffed the spade 4. The Q not appearing on that trick, the club finesse was required. When it worked, the contract was in.

Phil Wade, New York duplicate and rubber enthusiast, who reported the hand, pointed out how the odds to catch the spade Q could have been increased, by a goodly proportion. The third trick should have been a lead to the spade A, next a ruff of the spade 4, then a ruff of the diamond 4 and a ruff of the spade 6. When both defenders played spades, two of the suit would be set up for discards of the last diamond and a club, rendering the risk of the club finesse unnecessary.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

After a good start with an original club lead, what defensive principle will render South's 3-No Trumps impossible?

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to obtain a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII of the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill of Complaint filed in this cause states that the plaintiff and defendant were married in Winchester, Virginia, on July 9, 1940, and thereafter they lived in Allegany County, Maryland, until October, 1949; that since then the plaintiff has resided in Allegany County, Maryland, and Washington County, Maryland; that the defendant's last known address in Allegany County, Maryland, was 535 Columbia Avenue, Cumberland, Maryland, but plaintiff is informed that defendant is now residing in Cleveland, Ohio, but her exact address is unknown; that three children named in the Bill of Complaint were born of said marriage; that in October, 1949, the defendant committed adultery in the City of Cumberland, Maryland, with a person or persons whose names will be disclosed at the hearing of this cause; that thereafter the defendant left plaintiff's domicile; that although plaintiff asked defendant to return several times she refused to do so; that plaintiff has not lived or resided with his wife since he learned of said adultery, and also since the time she deserted and abandoned said plaintiff; that the separation of the parties hereto has been final since October, 1949, and is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

Gov. McKeldin Rapped For Failure To Reappoint Dr. Nathan B. Herman

BALTIMORE, March 16 (AP) — The Council of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland yesterday criticized Gov. McKeldin for failing to reappoint Dr. Nathan B. Herman to the Medical Board for Occupational Diseases.

In a letter to Chairman Sybert (D-Howard) of the State Senate Committee on Executive Nominations the council said, "Under previous governors the qualifications of Dr. Herman have twice been recognized by reappointment."

McKeldin named Dr. James Frenkil to the post.

The faculty letter, written by four physicians who make up the executive committee of the group, said McKeldin had violated the "intent of the law, though not its wording" by leaving Herman off the list of appointments.

"The Council of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty regrets that in the present instance Gov. McKeldin has chosen to ignore its recommendations and those of the deans of the Schools of Medicine of the University of Maryland and the Johns Hopkins University," the letter added.

A spokesman for the governor noted that Dr. C. Boyd Wylie, dean of the Maryland medical school, had recommended Frenkil in a telegram to McKeldin after submitting an earlier list which did not include the name. Wylie said in the telegram he would send a letter supporting his recommendation of Frenkil.

Herman's six-year term expires this spring.

Sen. Dippel (D-Balto-3rd) said last week he would ask that Wylie, Dr. Alan M. Chesney, dean of the Hopkins medical school, and council members of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty to appear before the nominations committee.

MAJORITY VS. MINORITY

ANY PLAY which has majority odds in its favor—such as 4 to 3—is obviously a wiser try than one with the odds against it in the same proportion. That principle is violated not infrequently by players who are much better than the general run. By just a very slight alteration in their modus operandi in playing for a contract, they could enhance the chance that their attempt would succeed. If they took an interminable length of time to study all of the alternatives, they would note the difference. But consideration of others often prevents such thorough analysis.

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♦
2 ♥	Pass	6 ♥

North's direct bid to slam was in line with probabilities that South had at least one of the missing aces, probably just as sound as Blackwooding to find out about it. The other was laid down by West to launch the play, followed by the club 3, the K picking off the Q. If that felled honor could have been counted upon as not a false-card, the club finesse could have assured the contract.

South, however, could not depend too much on his tricky opponent, so sought other roads to his contract. One diamond probably could be ruffed safely. One could be put on a spade honor. The doubtful low club could be discarded on the spade J if the finesse would work, but that was too big a chance to take. Maybe a spade could be set by a ruff, if the Q was in a hand containing three or fewer of the suit. Anyway the club finesse could wait.

Pursuing that idea, South on the third trick ruffed the diamond 4, scored three top trumps, took the spade A and K, discarding the last diamond, and ruffed the spade 4. The Q not appearing on that trick, the club finesse was required. When it worked, the contract was in.

Phil Wade, New York duplicate and rubber enthusiast, who reported the hand, pointed out how the odds to catch the spade Q could have been increased, by a goodly proportion. The third trick should have been a lead to the spade A, next a ruff of the spade 4, then a ruff of the diamond 4 and a ruff of the spade 6. When both defenders played spades, two of the suit would be set up for discards of the last diamond and a club, rendering the risk of the club finesse unnecessary.

It was as vile a looking concoction as anything I've ever laid eyes on but Kovacs ran his hands through the awful stuff looking for the free prize that goes with every package. It took quite a while but he finally found it.

"Look at these dandy brass knuckles, kids," he declared jovially. "There'll be no more of that 'Go to bed, son' stuff after you get your brass knuckles. See your father cower in the corner. Comes in handy at children's parties when the host refuses to serve ice cream after 12 p. m. Handy vial of poison in each knuckle."

President Eisenhower is understood to have called a further group of expert consultants to the White House last week. It is hard to see, however, how any other expert group can decisively refute the findings of such a body of leaders of American science as composed Project Lincoln and the Summer Study Group. And if the refutation is not decisive, the gamble with the American

5-Day Week For Police, Firemen Will Be Aired

Department Members, Chiefs To Meet

Top officials of the Police and Fire Departments will meet with the Police and Firemen's Welfare Association to discuss the five-day week program asked by workers of the departments.

An attempt will be made at the conference to work out a program which would retain the present efficiency of the departments under the reduced work week without too heavy a drain upon the taxpayer's pocketbook.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long suggested the plan at a meeting of the Mayor and Council yesterday afternoon and will arrange the conference to be attended by Long, the Police and Fire chiefs and the Legislative Committee of the association.

Would Raise Taxes

He said the 6½ cent figure was based on the cost of eight additional policemen, $25,899, and six more firemen, $19,404, for a total additional cost of $45,303.

An alternate estimate of $22,638 was submitted if four extra policemen and three more firemen were hired to compensate for the shorter work week. This alternate plan, he said, would cost 4¼ cents on the tax rate.

The finance commissioner also pointed out that if the present tax levy, which included an $88,000 surplus, is all used up, the present $1.28 tax rate would have to be boosted 12 cents next year to compensate for the surplus.

Salary Hike To Cost

Meeting the full 10 per cent salary boost, which is paid on 10 months of the current fiscal year, will also cost several cents more on the next levy, he pointed out.

Servicing the $350,000 traffic improvement bond issue and $400,000 in Flood Control bonds which may be issued within the next year will add another 10 cents on the tax rate, he added.

Commissioner Long emphatically rejected the plan which would add four policemen and three firemen under the new work schedule, saying he refused to compromise on present protection offered the city by the departments.

He based his program upon the estimate of Police Chief R. E. Flynn that eight additional policemen would be needed, and the statement of Fire Chief Virgil Parker that his department would need six more men if the additional day off were granted. He stressed he would back up the chiefs on the issue.

Pay Rank High

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, saying the Mayor and Council primarily want to know where the money is coming from, quoted figures to show that Cumberland's rates of $3,334 for police and firemen are slightly higher than in other cities of its size.

About 20 per cent of the cities reported police on a 40-hour week.

Mayor Roy W. Eves pointed out the group seemed to be divided into two groups, one trying to find a way to give the men five-day work weeks and the other trying to find reasons why the city could not do so.

Mrs. Roeder said the primary purpose of the meeting was to "get the facts."

Thomas N. Berry, attorney for the association, said if the Mayor and Council wants to offer to sponsor the plan it will be OK, but that he believed the only place the men could get a hearing is in Annapolis.

Cost Is Only Obstacle

Commissioner Long replied the men have already taken the plan to Annapolis in their Civil Service Billl.

Mayor Eves summed up by saying the city wants to give a standard work week to its employes, and that the only problem is how much the program will cost. He said police and firemen are good citizens and deserve all consideration officials can give.

The mayor suggested that another meeting be called to try to iron out the problem.

Commissioner Long said the only point is how the city can find the 6½ cents needed. He said he is in favor of the shorter hours but that the question is where the money is to come from.

Berry said the only question is whether the Council is willing to face a 6½-cent tax increase. He said the men believe the change can be made with fewer than 14 new men, and said the efficiency of the departments might increase with a smaller staff.

Mayor Eves said he did not believe it has been proved all of the extra men would be needed, quoting, "Small armies have won many battles."

Suggests Delay

Commissioner Long insisted he did not know where the money was coming from at present, and suggested that the issue be ironed out when the 1953-54 budget is set. Then, he said, all concerned can sit down and work out the program.

Officer Joseph Stitcher, representing the Association, pointed out the men had hoped for a decision.

Berry pointed out that if the talks were put off until July, the men could not go to the Legislature for redress for two years.

Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, said he doubted if the Legislature would grant the work week unless funds were available, since the Delegation would have to bear the

Funds Switched To Pay Cost Of Airport Truck

$1000 Transferred From Smoke Fund

The Mayor and Council, with one dissenting vote, yesterday transferred funds from six accounts to pay for snow removing equipment at the Cumberland Municipal Airport.

The order directing the City Auditor to transfer $5,500 from other funds to pay for the heavy duty truck, equipped with snow blade, was presented by Finance Commissioner William V. Keegan.

The sum is to be obtained by transferring $1,000 from Accident Awards, $1,500 from the Civil Defense account, $1,000 from the Garbage Removal account, $1,000 from Smoke Abatement, $500 from Insurance and $500 from elections.

Commissioner Keegan commented the transfers from funds which are not likely to be needed offer the only way to pay for the equipment. The truck and snow removing equipment cost about $6,000.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long questioned taking money from the Accident Awards fund, saying settlement on one accident case in the Police Department has not been made.

There are actually two cases pending, Thomas B. Finan, city attorney said, but explained the fund was not expected to meet lump sum payments, which are usually taken care of by the contingent fund or in the next year's budget.

The transfers were approved, with Commissioner Long dissenting.

Schute Submits Low Bid For Annex Repairs

Alex J. Schute, local roofing contractor, yesterday submitted a low bid of $950 for removing the stone balustrade from the top of the Public Safety Building.

Other bids, opened at a special meeting of the Mayor and Council, were:

John S. Cook, $1,600; George Construction Company, $2,115 and George F. Hazelwood Company, $3,475.

The bids were referred to the City Engineer and the Street Commissioner for tabulation and report.

After hearing the bids, C. R. Nuzum, city engineer, said he wants to question Schute as to whether he has the men to do the stone work required, and has the machinery needed to handle the heavy stones which must be removed.

The work includes the removal of the stone balustrades and base from the top of the building, removal of all stone and intermediate parts of the balustrade, resetting the baluster rail, installing copper flashing to protect the top of the stones and replacing mortar in joints.

The city asked emergency bids on the work Monday after an inspection disclosed more than half of the ornamental concrete balustrades were damaged, and constitute a danger to pedestrians.

The building, also known as the City Hall Annex, houses the Cumberland Police Department and the City and County Health Departments.

Canadian Natives Get License Here

The office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court, took on an international flavor yesterday when two natives of Canada obtained a marriage license.

The license was issued to LaVerne Hugh Schertzberg of Brantford, Ontario, and Gladys Evelyn Latimer, who gave her present address as Reno, Nevada. They must be married by a clergyman somewhere in Allegany County.

However, there will be regular Lenten study classes in the parish house at 7:30 o'clock tonight and at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Escapees Admit Safe Theft At Romney Garage

Locey, Malcum Waive Hearings

Two escaped convicts who were recaptured Monday night in Winchester, Va., yesterday waived preliminary hearings on charges that they stole a safe during their flight from the law.

Justice of the Peace A. L. Russell of Romney, W. Va., ordered Leroy Locey, 25, and Robert A. Malcum, 22, held for action of the July grand jury in Hampshire County.

Locey and Malcum waived hearings on charges of breaking and entering and grand larceny resulting from the theft of a safe from the Henry Powell Garage at Romney. The safe contained $245.

Admit Theft Of Safe

West Virginia State Police Trooper D. E. Adams said both had admitted breaking into the garage last Tuesday night, the same day they drove away from Hopemont Tuberculosis Sanitarium, where they had been working as prison trusties, in a state-owned truck.

The carryall truck was found abandoned yesterday in Martinsburg, W. Va., where Locey and Malcum said they had "ditched" it to take a cab to Winchester.

They took another taxi to Baltimore, bought a 1941 automobile for $100 and returned to Winchester, where alert city police spotted them early Monday evening and picked them up.

"Rolled" Sailor

Trooper Adams said Locey and Malcum also admitted stealing about $220 from a West Virginia sailor with whom they had spent Saturday evening in Winchester.

Authorities last night said it has not been decided whether Locey and Malcum will be returned immediately to the Medium Security Prison at Huttonsville, where they had been serving before being sent to Hopemont as trusties, or whether they would remain in Hampshire County Jail until the grand jury convenes next summer.

Both had been serving one-to-ten-year terms for breaking and entering. Locey is from Charleston, W. Va., and Malcum's home is in Points, W. Va.

School Board Still Favors Bond Bill

Conference Arranged In Annapolis Today

The Allegany County Board of Education yesterday afternoon reiterated its stand in support of House Bill 441, which would authorize and direct the county commissioners to issue $6,000,000 in bonds for school construction in the next six years, as its representatives prepared to attend a conference on the bill at 2 p. m. today in Annapolis.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster said that one board member, Attorney Edward J. Ryan, and the board's attorney, William J. Gunter, will go with him to the conference in Annapolis.

They will meet the County Delegation and the Board of County Commissioners in an effort to settle their differences.

All three commissioners, William H. Lemmert, James Holmes and James Orr, plan to attend the Annapolis session along with their attorney, Gorman E. Getty.

The commissioners appreciate the need for additional school facilities but oppose the mandatory nature of House Bill 441 and the total amount of the bond issue. They want an enabling act with no more than $3,000,000 in bonds to be issued in the next two years. They fear that a heavier issue would harm the county's credit rating. They hope that Federal and state funds may be found to augment the county total.

Walk Lights Are Installed On Corners

To Be In Use In Two Weeks

Workmen began putting up the new auxiliary neon "Walk" lights at two downtown intersections this week.

The new lights are the first of a dozen which will be attached to traffic light poles at the three principal Baltimore Street intersections.

Potomac Edison Company crewmen put up a light at one corner of the Baltimore-Mechanic street intersection and another at Baltimore and Centre streets.

When the job is completed, probably in about two weeks, each intersection will have four of the neon signs, which read "Walk" and "Don't Walk."

But none of the lights will be turned on for several days, because the present cable to the traffic signals is too small to handle the extra attachment. PE crewmen will switch cables before wiring in the new lights.

The lights, which recently were tried out at the George Street intersection, will be installed as an added safety measure following the elimination two years ago of Cumberland's former "walk" signals.

Instead of allowing pedestrians to move in all directions at the same time while all traffic stops, the present system lets pedestrians move in the same direction as traffic.

The neon lights are designed not only to remind pedestrians when it is unsafe to walk, but to remind motorists that people will be crossing when traffic starts.

Butler Endorses Alcoa Plant Site For Cumberland

Sen. John Marshall Butler (R-Md), in voicing his approval of Cumberland as an alternate site for the proposed new plant of the Aluminum Company of America, indicated he would give wholeheartedly his efforts to obtain the multi-million dollar industry for Allegany County.

Albert Hargreaves, industrial promotion consultant for the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, has been in touch with Alcoa officials for some time in efforts to bring the huge forging presses here.

Butler, in his statement, said: "Recent announcements in the public press have emphasized present difficulties which surround the proposed Aluminum Company of America plant at Cuyahoga Heights, Ohio, which would house two of the world's largest forging presses. These presses would be used to process structural aluminum and magnesium for high-speed aircraft for the Air Force.

Council Doesn't Agree

"The Cuyahoga Heights councilmen have failed to agree on the issuance of a building permit, since it is contemplated that the facility would be tax free to the community. This obstacle has led many to characterize the situation as a multi-million dollar "snafu." Considerable quantities of building materials accumulate at the plant site in the absence of authority to proceed with construction, and there is no indication of an early agreement on the part of the Cuyahoga Heights councilmen.

"It is generally conceded that this plant is vital to the Nation's defense program, and I have therefore invited Defense Department and Alcoa officials to consider the Cumberland, Maryland area as an alternate location."

Sends Telegrams

The complete text of Sen. Butler's telegram to Charles E. Wilson, Secretary of Defense, and Irving W. Wilson, president of the Aluminum Company of America, is as follows:

"Noting the existing situation surrounding the proposed Alcoa plant at Cuyahoga Heights, Ohio, I respectively invite your consideration of Cumberland, Maryland, as an alternate location. This section of Maryland is available for the location of such a facility, the early functioning of which is essential to the defense program. This area is also accessible for immediate development, and the Maryland Congressional Delegation will be happy to cooperate with you in any way that it can."

Oakland Soldier Killed In Crash

FT. CAMPBELL, Ky., March 17 (AP)—Six soldiers were killed and 38 injured late last night when an Army truck plunged into a creek.

The dead and injured all were in basic training at this big military post near the Kentucky-Tennessee border.

The dead on arrival at the Army hospital here included:

Pvt. Jack D. Armentrout, 20, son of Mrs. Orma Armentrout, Oakland, Md.

The two and one half ton truck in which they were riding first hit a railroad abutment, then tumbled into the creek.

Equity Suits Filed

Two equity suits were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Helen J. Bishop vs. Earl J. Bishop and Shirley R. Miller vs. Robert L. Miller.

Citizens Debate Name Of School At Lonaconing

Board Holds Up Action In Matter

Should it be Central High School, Valley High School, George's Creek High School or Hodgson High School?

That question over the name of the new junior-senior high school at the southern edge of Lonaconing was argued before the Allegany County Board of Education by boosters from Lonaconing and Barton for some time yesterday afternoon.

When the dozen or so representatives from the two communities finished explaining their arguments, the Board of Education decided to hold the matter in abeyance until all five board members can be present to express their views. At yesterday's meeting only Kenneth R. Malcolm, Mrs. Albert C. Cook and Edward J. Ryan were present. Illness kept Wilbur V. Wilson and Mrs. Stanley Buckley away.

Mrs. George J. Miller led the Lonaconing delegation who argued that Central High School, the name of the present school in Lonaconing, should be transferred to the new school. She said that 90 per cent of the Central student body voted to retain the name in the new building. Their second choice was Valley and third was Hodgson, in memory of Dr. Henry Hodgson, who for many years coached girls' sports at Lonaconing.

David E. Kirk led the Barton boosters in the discussion. When the new school opens the present Barton High School will close. The Bartonites want a "neutral" name for the school instead of Central, which for years has been identified with the Lonaconing school. First choice among the Barton student body was Valley, with George's Creek second and Hodgson third.

Although the name is uncertain, children living in the area beyond Lonaconing are assured of transportation to the new school when it opens in September. The board yesterday accepted the bid of Blaine E. Willets, Midlothian, who will provide three buses to transport children to and from school. His bid for the three buses was $38.75 per school day, which figures to $7,207.50 for the school year, according to Superintendent Ralph R. Webster. This was the lowest of seven bids submitted last month.

Outdoor Club Will Sponsor Fishing Rodeo

Group Also Elects New Officers

Again this summer, on Saturday, August 29, the Outdoor Club will join with other interested groups in sponsoring the annual fishing rodeo. It will be held in the old C&O Canal at Oldtown.

As a new promotion, the club will sponsor a special fishing treat for crippled children in the area who probably would not be able to compete in the fishing rodeo.

Firemen Save Old Land Mark

More than 30 firemen yesterday afternoon battled a stubborn fire for over one and a half hours to save one of Springfield, W. Va.'s oldest land marks.

Members of Fort Ashby and Romney Volunteer Fire Companies were called to the scene about 3:30 p. m. arriving to find flames threatening several nearby buildings.

Firemen said the fire apparently started in the rear of a six-room log frame building in the center of the town. The log structure, owned by John Blue, Fort Ashby, is one of the first buildings constructed in the town and is believed to be over 100 years old.

Fire damaged four rooms, the attic and a portion of the roof by the time it was extinguished. The house is occupied by Mrs. Mary Coleman, and one room of the building was rented by Charles Walker. Nobody was injured in the blaze.

Firemen said the blaze was of "undetermined origin."

SRC To Cut Program Into Three Parts

ANNAPOLIS, March 17 (AP)—The State Roads Commission agreed today to cut its 12-year highway program into three pieces and allow the Legislature to call a halt each four years.

Asst. Atty.-Gen. Joseph D. Buscher told a Senate committee that kind of program would be "acceptable to the commission."

He declared the retreat from a previously pushed long-range project should meet "a substantial amount of objection" voiced by members of the legislature and others.

Buscher, who is the commission's official lawyer, acknowledged considerable opposition based on feelings a 12-year program looked too far ahead and transferred too much control from the Legislature to the three-member commission.

Former Gov. Lane had expressed such an objection last week. Many lawmakers have announced the same opinion.

Buscher said amendments restricting operation of the 568-million-dollar program had been drawn at the request of House Majority Leader Logan (D-Caroline).

He explained them to the Senate Finance Committee, where they were received without comment.

As presented by Buscher, the revisions would shape this procedure:

1. If legislation authorizing the program is approved this session, copies of building and improvement plans throughout the state, including secondary roads in the counties, would be filed with the Court of Appeals and the Department of Legislative Reference.

2. For the first four years bonds would be issued only to finance work contemplated in that period.

3. At the end of that time, the commission would detail its outlays and work for the governor and Legislature. The Legislature would then have power to prohibit the sale of any more bonds.

Project Is Seen Gaining Approval Later In Week

Show Of Strength Encourages Cause

ANNAPOLIS, March 17 (AP) — Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) successfully beat down a curbing amendment to the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Parkway plan today. His show of strength virtually assured the parkway's approval by the Senate before the week's end.

Sen. Barton (D-Balto 2nd) offered an amendment which would require the federal government to give back the canal property from Hancock to the District of Columbia line before the parkway was started on the old canal right-of-way between Hancock and Cumberland.

Same Amendment

It was virtually the same amendment Sen. Lofstrand (R-Montgomery) prepared but didn't offer.

"The federal government has been encroaching on Maryland for a number of years," Barton declared. "If Allegany County has some nice project, that's perfectly all right.

"But the federal government already has 215,000 acres in Maryland. We're a small state, but we're a fine state. And if this keeps up, we'll eventually become a reservation of the federal government instead of a state with sovereign rights."

Kimble said that Barton's amendment would "kill Senate Bill 211 (the parkway bill)."

"Means Everything"

"I could submit 1,001 reasons why the parkway is important, but let this suffice: Senate Bill 211 means everything to Western Maryland. If there were ever a piece of legislation that could be called non-partisan, this is it. Democrats and Republicans alike support it.

"I am asking you Democrats and Republicans here to stand shoulder to shoulder to help defeat this amendment."

Kimble went on to accuse Barton of trying to "kill this bill by subterfuge" and sabotage.

"If you want to kill the bill," Kimble declared, "go ahead and vote against it. But don't try to defeat it by stabbing a knife in its back."

Barton's amendment was defeated by a voice vote. The committee's favorable report was adopted, and the bill moved on for final Senate passage within the next couple of days.

Would Buy Land

The bill would authorize the State Roads Commission to buy 4,100 acres of land along the C&O Canal for a right-of-way for a 57-mile parkway to be constructed by the federal government at a cost of 8 to 10 million dollars.

The House for the third year approved higher pensions for retired judges, but the outlook was little different from the past in the Senate. Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) has successfully opposed increases for former judges in previous sessions.

Del. Robinson (D-Balto 4th), sponsor of the House measure, said Gov. McKeldin was prepared to include enough money in a supplemental budget to boost the maximum pension from $6,000 to $9,000. The top for judges of the Court of Appeals would be $11,000.

Robinson estimated the cost of a raise for 17 judges now living in retirement would be some $25,000.

Del. Nowakowski (D-Balto 1st) objected that judges need not contribute to their retirement pay, as do other public officials and workers in private industry.

"Judges give up the most productive years of their lives," Robinson replied. He added Maryland had been pensioning judges without asking contributions since 1904.

Favors Jurists

The vote easily favored the jurists, 73-32.

When the parkway bill was first mentioned in the Senate today, Sen. McLaughlin (R-Washington) took the floor for his longest floor speech of the session.

McLaughlin acknowledged that most of the objections to the parkway plan had been withdrawn now that the parkway would not extend south of Hancock.

But he added that he felt the bill still affected Montgomery, Frederick and Washington Counties, even though it wouldn't extend directly into them.

"We in the counties affected have knowledge of the economic plight of Allegany County and don't want to try to impede it from getting back to the economic situation it happily enjoyed some years ago," McLaughlin said.

"This bill had a good bit of the sting removed on the promise of Kimble and Sen. Beall that one of the recreation areas would be established in Washington County.

"But the apprehension we've had is the possible extension of the parkway south to Washington. We don't want our beautiful homes along the Potomac desecreated by a lot of people from Washington who would use the parkway.

"We're disturbed."

McLaughlin added that he realize Kimble apparently had suffi-

Scouts To Aid Associated Charities In Yule Toy Drive

Over 600 Cubs, Scouts and Explorers of Cumberland District, Boy Scouts of America, will assist the Associated Charities Saturday, March 28, in a city-wide drive to collect used toys which will be given to underprivileged children at Christmas time.

William T. Allee, district commissioner, said the city will be divided into 20 sections, and each of the 20 units in the Cumberland District will be assigned to each territory.

He pointed out that collections will take place from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. March 28. Each section will have a central gathering point where toys of each individual territory will be taken. The Scouts will make a house-to-house canvass and then report to the central point with the toys.

To Be Repaired By Helpers

Pieces too large to be handled by the boys may be taken to the central place by residents of each section. Then in the afternoon trucks will gather the toys from each section's central point and transport them to a warehouse.

Miss Jeanette Bonig, executive secretary for the Associated Charities, said this is the first time collections have been made so early in the year and is the first large collective city-wide drive for toys conducted by the organization.

Miss Bonig explained that by collecting the toys early, civic clubs and organizations will have time to repair and paint the toys in time for Christmas.

Housewives Asked To Aid

Each year, club members and other individuals volunteer their services to repair toys for boys and girls who are underprivileged in the community. The gifts are painted, missing parts are supplied and the toys are made practically new to make some boy or girl happy on Christmas.

This time of year is when residents begin house cleaning, Miss Bonig explained, and will be gathering used toys from attics, cellars and unoccupied rooms. Residents are urged to save such toys for Saturday's collection.

Jaycees Plan To Sponsor Teenage "Road-E-O" In April

The Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce will sponsor a teenage "road-e-o" the weekend of April 25 to promote safe driving among high school students. The "road-e-o" will name Cumberland's most skillful teenage driver.

J. Kenneth Morgan, Jaycee president, said last night that the top winner of the "road-e-o" will compete in a state-wide contest in Annapolis in the late spring. A national contest will be held in Washington August 11-16. Five scholarships totaling $3,100 will be awarded to the top national winners.

Safety Contest

Morgan explained that the competition will include contests in parking, driving in traffic, knowledge of traffic laws and several other points for safe driving. All teenage boys and girls who have drivers' licenses and have not been guilty of a moving violation during the past six months will be allowed to enter.

Entry blanks will be distributed to the principals of the seven public and Catholic high schools today. Included are Fort Hill, Allegany, Carver, LaSalle, Girls' Central, St. Mary's and Ursuline Academy.

Teenagers no longer in school may obtain entry blanks at the Jaycee office on the fifth floor of the Liberty Trust Building or at Spoerl's Garage, 205 North Mechanic Street.

Entries Due April 3

Entries must be returned to the Jaycee office not later than 5 p. m. Friday, April 3. A written examination will be conducted before Wednesday, April 15, to reduce the number of entrants to a maximum of five for each school. Then the skill driving contest will conclude the competition.

Dennis L. McIntyre is general chairman for the "road-e-o." Others working with him are James Hines, assistant chairman; Albert D. Darby Jr., publicity and securing of entries; Hines, location, course and equipment; Henry Sauer, judging and scoring; Richard Growden, eligibility and screening; Robert Barnard, prizes, and Floyd V. Cozad, teenage traffic conference.

Prizes will be awarded here to the three best drivers.

Weather

The Queen City continued to experience spring-like weather yesterday as a bright cheerful sun spread its warmth over the area. And incidentally, spring begins Saturday, so residents may look for favorable weather, that is if Old Man Weather is in a good mood. High temperature yesterday was 61 according to Constitution Park weather station; low was 36 and at 9 p. m. thermometers stood at 45 degrees. Outlook for today is increased cloudiness and mild.

5-Day Week For Police, Firemen Will Be Aired

Department Members, Chiefs To Meet

Top officials of the Police and Fire Departments will meet with the Police and Firemen's Welfare Association to discuss the five-day week program asked by workers of the departments.

An attempt will be made at the conference to work out a program which would retain the present efficiency of the departments under the reduced work week without too heavy a drain upon the taxpayer's pocketbook.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long suggested the plan at a meeting of the Mayor and Council yesterday afternoon and will arrange the conference to be attended by Long, the Police and Fire chiefs and the Legislative Committee of the association.

The program can be financed, Finance Commissioner William V. Keegan reported, by increasing the tax rate 6½ cents.

Would Raise Taxes

He said the 6½ cent figure was based on the cost of eight additional policemen, $25,899, and six more firemen, $19,404, for a total additional cost of $45,303.

An alternate estimate of $22,638 was submitted if four extra policemen and three more firemen were hired to compensate for the shorter work week. This alternate plan, he said, would cost 4¼ cents on the tax rate.

The finance commissioner also pointed out that if the present tax levy, which included an $88,000 surplus, is all used up, the present $1.28 tax rate would have to be boosted 12 cents next year to compensate for the surplus.

Salary Hike To Cost

Meeting the full 10 per cent salary boost, which is paid on 10 months of the current fiscal year, will also cost several cents more on the next levy, he pointed out.

Servicing the $350,000 traffic improvement bond issue and $400,000 in Flood Control bonds which may be issued within the next year will add another 10 cents on the tax rate, he added.

Commissioner Long emphatically rejected the plan which would add four policemen and three firemen under the new work schedule, saying he refused to compromise on present protection offered the city by the departments.

He based his program upon the estimate of Police Chief R. E. Flynn that eight additional policemen would be needed, and the statement of Fire Chief Virgil Parker that his department would need six more men if the additional day off were granted. He stressed he would back up the chiefs on the issue.

Pay Rank High

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, saying the Mayor and Council primarily want to know where the money is coming from, quoted figures to show that Cumberland's rates of $3,334 for police and firemen are slightly higher than in other cities of its size.

About 20 per cent of the cities reported police on a 40-hour week.

Mayor Roy W. Eves pointed out the group seemed to be divided into two groups, one trying to find a way to give the men five-day work weeks and the other trying to find reasons why the city could not do so.

Mrs. Roeder said the primary purpose of the meeting was to "get the facts."

Thomas N. Berry, attorney for the association, said if the Mayor and Council wants to offer to sponsor the plan it will be OK, but that he believed the only place the men could get a hearing is in Annapolis.

Cost Is Only Obstacle

Commissioner Long replied the men have already taken the plan to Annapolis in their Civil Service Billl.

Mayor Eves summed up by saying the city wants to give a standard work week to its employes, and that the only problem is how much the program will cost. He said police and firemen are good citizens and deserve all consideration officials can give.

The mayor suggested that another meeting be called to try to iron out the problem.

Commissioner Long said the only point is how the city can find the 6½ cents needed. He said he is in favor of the shorter hours but that the question is where the money is to come from.

Berry said the only question is whether the Council is willing to face a 6½-cent tax increase. He said the men believe the change can be made with fewer than 14 new men, and said the efficiency of the departments might increase with a smaller staff.

Mayor Eves said he did not believe it has been proved all of the extra men would be needed, quoting, "Small armies have won many battles."

Suggests Delay

Commissioner Long insisted he did not know where the money was coming from at present, and suggested that the issue be ironed out when the 1953-54 budget is set. Then, he said, all concerned can sit down and work out the program.

Officer Joseph Stitcher, representing the Association, pointed out the men had hoped for a decision.

Berry pointed out that if the talks were put off until July, the men could not go to the Legislature for redress for two years.

Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, said he doubted if the Legislature would grant the work week unless funds were available, since the Delegation would have to bear the

Funds Switched To Pay Cost Of Airport Truck

$1000 Transferred From Smoke Fund

The Mayor and Council, with one dissenting vote, yesterday transferred funds from six accounts to pay for snow removing equipment at the Cumberland Municipal Airport.

The order directing the City Auditor to transfer $5,500 from other funds to pay for the heavy duty truck, equipped with snow blade, was presented by Finance Commissioner William V. Keegan.

The sum is to be obtained by transferring $1,000 from Accident Awards, $1,500 from the Civil Defense account, $1,000 from the Garbage Removal account, $1,000 from Smoke Abatement, $500 from Insurance and $500 from elections.

Commissioner Keegan commented the transfers from funds which are not likely to be needed offer the only way to pay for the equipment. The truck and snow removing equipment cost about $6,000.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long questioned taking money from the Accident Awards fund, saying settlement on one accident case in the Police Department has not been made.

There are actually two cases pending, Thomas B. Finan, city attorney said, but explained the fund was not expected to meet lump sum payments, which are usually taken care of by the contingent fund or in the next year's budget.

The transfers were approved, with Commissioner Long dissenting.

Schute Submits Low Bid For Annex Repairs

Alex J. Schute, local roofing contractor, yesterday submitted a low bid of $950 for removing the stone balustrade from the top of the Public Safety Building.

Other bids, opened at a special meeting of the Mayor and Council, were:

John S. Cook, $1,600; George Construction Company, $2,115 and George F. Hazelwood Company, $3,475.

The bids were referred to the City Engineer and the Street Commissioner for tabulation and report.

After hearing the bids, C. R. Nuzum, city engineer, said he wants to question Schute as to whether he has the men to do the stone work required, and has the machinery needed to handle the heavy stones which must be removed.

The work includes the removal of the stone balustrades and base from the top of the building, removal of all stone and intermediate parts of the balustrade, resetting the baluster rail, installing copper flashing to protect the top of the stones and replacing mortar in joints.

The city asked emergency bids on the work Monday after an inspection disclosed more than half of the ornamental concrete balustrades were damaged, and constitute a danger to pedestrians.

The building, also known as the City Hall Annex, houses the Cumberland Police Department and the City and County Health Departments.

Canadian Natives Get License Here

The office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court, took on an international flavor yesterday when two natives of Canada obtained a marriage license.

The license was issued to LaVerne Hugh Schertzberg of Brantford, Ontario, and Gladys Evelyn Latimer, who gave her present address as Reno, Nevada. They must be married by a clergyman somewhere in Allegany County.

However, there will be regular Lenten study classes in the parish house at 7:30 o'clock tonight and at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Escapees Admit Safe Theft At Romney Garage

Locey, Malcum Waive Hearings

Two escaped convicts who were recaptured Monday night in Winchester, Va., yesterday waived preliminary hearings on charges that they stole a safe during their flight from the law.

Justice of the Peace A. L. Russell of Romney, W. Va., ordered Leroy Locey, 25, and Robert A. Malcum, 22, held for action of the July grand jury in Hampshire County.

Locey and Malcum waived hearings on charges of breaking and entering and grand larceny resulting from the theft of a safe from the Henry Powell Garage at Romney. The safe contained $245.

Admit Theft Of Safe

West Virginia State Police Trooper D. E. Adams said both had admitted breaking into the garage last Tuesday night, the same day they drove away from Hopemont Tuberculosis Sanitarium, where they had been working as prison trusties, in a state-owned truck.

The carryall truck was found abandoned yesterday in Martinsburg, W. Va., where Locey and Malcum said they had "ditched" it to take a cab to Winchester.

They took another taxi to Baltimore, bought a 1941 automobile for $100 and returned to Winchester, where alert city police spotted them early Monday evening and picked them up.

"Rolled" Sailor

Trooper Adams said Locey and Malcum also admitted stealing about $220 from a West Virginia sailor with whom they had spent Saturday evening in Winchester.

Authorities last night said it has not been decided whether Locey and Malcum will be returned immediately to the Medium Security Prison at Huttonsville, where they had been serving before being sent to Hopemont as trusties, or whether they would remain in Hampshire County Jail until the grand jury convenes next summer.

Both had been serving one-to-ten-year terms for breaking and entering. Locey is from Charleston, W. Va., and Malcum's home is in Points, W. Va.

Conference Arranged In Annapolis Today

The Allegany County Board of Education yesterday afternoon reiterated its stand in support of House Bill 441, which would authorize and direct the county commissioners to issue $6,000,000 in bonds for school construction in the next six years, as its representatives prepared to attend a conference on the bill at 2 p. m. today in Annapolis.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster said that one board member, Attorney Edward J. Ryan, and the board's attorney, William J. Gunter, will go with him to the conference in Annapolis.

They will meet the County Delegation and the Board of County Commissioners in an effort to settle their differences.

All three commissioners, William H. Lemmert, James Holmes and James Orr, plan to attend the Annapolis session along with their attorney, Gorman E. Getty.

The commissioners appreciate the need for additional school facilities but oppose the mandatory nature of House Bill 441 and the total amount of the bond issue. They want an enabling act with no more than $3,000,000 in bonds to be issued in the next two years. They fear that a heavier issue would harm the county's credit rating. They hope that Federal and state funds may be found to augment the county total.

Walk Lights Are Installed On Corners

To Be In Use In Two Weeks

Workmen began putting up the new auxiliary neon "Walk" lights at two downtown intersections this week.

The new lights are the first of a dozen which will be attached to traffic light poles at the three principal Baltimore Street intersections.

Potomac Edison Company crewmen put up a light at one corner of the Baltimore-Mechanic street intersection and another at Baltimore and Centre streets.

When the job is completed, probably in about two weeks, each intersection will have four of the neon signs, which read "Walk" and "Don't Walk."

But none of the lights will be turned on for several days, because the present cable to the traffic signals is too small to handle the extra attachment. PE crewmen will switch cables before wiring in the new lights.

The lights, which recently were tried out at the George Street intersection, will be installed as an added safety measure following the elimination two years ago of Cumberland's former "walk" signals.

Instead of allowing pedestrians to move in all directions at the same time while all traffic stops, the present system lets pedestrians move in the same direction as traffic.

The neon lights are designed not only to remind pedestrians when it is unsafe to walk, but to remind motorists that people will be crossing when traffic starts.

Butler Endorses Alcoa Plant Site For Cumberland

Sen. John Marshall Butler (R-Md), in voicing his approval of Cumberland as an alternate site for the proposed new plant of the Aluminum Company of America, indicated he would give wholeheartedly his efforts to obtain the multi-million dollar industry for Allegany County.

Albert Hargreaves, industrial promotion consultant for the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, has been in touch with Alcoa officials for some time in efforts to bring the huge forging presses here.

Butler, in his statement, said: "Recent announcements in the public press have emphasized present difficulties which surround the proposed Aluminum Company of America plant at Cuyahoga Heights, Ohio, which would house two of the world's largest forging presses. These presses would be used to process structural aluminum and magnesium for high-speed aircraft for the Air Force.

Council Doesn't Agree

"The Cuyahoga Heights councilmen have failed to agree on the issuance of a building permit, since it is contemplated that the facility would be tax free to the community. This obstacle has led many to characterize the situation as a multi-million dollar "snafu." Considerable quantities of building materials accumulate at the plant site in the absence of authority to proceed with construction, and there is no indication of an early agreement on the part of the Cuyahoga Heights councilmen.

"It is generally conceded that this plant is vital to the Nation's defense program, and I have therefore invited Defense Department and Alcoa officials to consider the Cumberland, Maryland area as an alternate location."

Sends Telegrams

The complete text of Sen. Butler's telegram to Charles E. Wilson, Secretary of Defense, and Irving W. Wilson, president of the Aluminum Company of America, is as follows:

"Noting the existing situation surrounding the proposed Alcoa plant at Cuyahoga Heights, Ohio, I respectively invite your consideration of Cumberland, Maryland, as an alternate location. This section of Maryland is available for the location of such a facility, the early functioning of which is essential to the defense program. This area is also accessible for immediate development, and the Maryland Congressional Delegation will be happy to cooperate with you in any way that it can."

Oakland Soldier Killed In Crash

FT. CAMPBELL, Ky., March 17 (AP)—Six soldiers were killed and 38 injured late last night when an Army truck plunged into a creek.

The dead and injured all were in basic training at this big military post near the Kentucky-Tennessee border.

The dead on arrival at the Army hospital here included:

Pvt. Jack D. Armentrout, 20, son of Mrs. Orma Armentrout, Oakland, Md.

The two and one half ton truck in which they were riding first hit a railroad abutment, then tumbled into the creek.

Equity Suits Filed

Two equity suits were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Helen J. Bishop vs. Earl J. Bishop and Shirley R. Miller vs. Robert L. Miller.

Citizens Debate Name Of School At Lonaconing

Should it be Central High School, Valley High School, George's Creek High School or Hodgson High School?

That question over the name of the new junior-senior high school at the southern edge of Lonaconing was argued before the Allegany County Board of Education by boosters from Lonaconing and Barton for some time yesterday afternoon.

When the dozen or so representatives from the two communities finished explaining their arguments, the Board of Education decided to hold the matter in abeyance until all five board members can be present to express their views. At yesterday's meeting only Kenneth R. Malcolm, Mrs. Albert C. Cook and Edward J. Ryan were present. Illness kept Wilbur V. Wilson and Mrs. Stanley Buckley away.

Mrs. George J. Miller led the Lonaconing delegation who argued that Central High School, the name of the present school in Lonaconing, should be transferred to the new school. She said that 90 per cent of the Central student body voted to retain the name in the new building. Their second choice was Valley and third was Hodgson, in memory of Dr. Henry Hodgson, who for many years coached girls' sports at Lonaconing.

David E. Kirk led the Barton boosters in the discussion. When the new school opens the present Barton High School will close. The Bartonites want a "neutral" name for the school instead of Central, which for years has been identified with the Lonaconing school. First choice among the Barton student body was Valley, with George's Creek second and Hodgson third.

Although the name is uncertain, children living in the area beyond Lonaconing are assured of transportation to the new school when it opens in September. The board yesterday accepted the bid of Blaine E. Willets, Midlothian, who will provide three buses to transport children to and from school. His bid for the three buses was $38.75 per school day, which figures to $7,207.50 for the school year, according to Superintendent Ralph R. Webster. This was the lowest of seven bids submitted last month.

Outdoor Club Will Sponsor Fishing Rodeo

Group Also Elects New Officers

The Cumberland Outdoor Club voted Monday night to sponsor two fishing events next summer for children in the area.

Again this summer, on Saturday, August 29, the Outdoor Club will join with other interested groups in sponsoring the annual fishing rodeo. It will be held in the old C&O Canal at Oldtown.

As a new promotion, the club will sponsor a special fishing treat for crippled children in the area who probably would not be able to compete in the fishing rodeo.

Fuller presented trophies to four members who made outstanding fish catches in 1952.

Firemen Save Old Land Mark

More than 30 firemen yesterday afternoon battled a stubborn fire for over one and a half hours to save one of Springfield, W. Va.'s oldest land marks.

Members of Fort Ashby and Romney Volunteer Fire Companies were called to the scene about 3:30 p. m. arriving to find flames threatening several nearby buildings.

Firemen said the fire apparently started in the rear of a six-room log frame building in the center of the town. The log structure, owned by John Blue, Fort Ashby, is one of the first buildings constructed in the town and is believed to be over 100 years old.

Fire damaged four rooms, the attic and a portion of the roof by the time it was extinguished. The house is occupied by Mrs. Mary Coleman, and one room of the building was rented by Charles Walker. Nobody was injured in the blaze.

Firemen said the blaze was of "undetermined origin."

SRC To Cut Program Into Three Parts

ANNAPOLIS, March 17 (AP)—The State Roads Commission agreed today to cut its 12-year highway program into three pieces and allow the Legislature to call a halt each four years.

Asst. Atty.-Gen. Joseph D. Buscher told a Senate committee that kind of program would be "acceptable to the commission."

He declared the retreat from a previously pushed long-range project should meet "a substantial amount of objection" voiced by members of the legislature and others.

Buscher, who is the commission's official lawyer, acknowledged considerable opposition based on feelings a 12-year program looked too far ahead and transferred too much control from the Legislature to the three-member commission.

Former Gov. Lane had expressed such an objection last week. Many lawmakers have announced the same opinion.

Buscher said amendments restricting operation of the 568-million-dollar program had been drawn at the request of House Majority Leader Logan (D-Caroline).

He explained them to the Senate Finance Committee, where they were received without comment.

As presented by Buscher, the revisions would shape this procedure:

1. If legislation authorizing the program is approved this session, copies of building and improvement plans throughout the state, including secondary roads in the counties, would be filed with the Court of Appeals and the Department of Legislative Reference.

2. For the first four years bonds would be issued only to finance work contemplated in that period.

3. At the end of that time, the commission would detail its outlays and work for the governor and Legislature. The Legislature would then have power to prohibit the sale of any more bonds.

Project Is Seen Gaining Approval Later In Week

Show Of Strength Encourages Cause

ANNAPOLIS, March 17 (AP)—Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) successfully beat down a curbing amendment to the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Parkway plan today. His show of strength virtually assured the parkway's approval by the Senate before the week's end.

Sen. Barton (D-Balto 2nd) offered an amendment which would require the federal government to give back the canal property from Hancock to the District of Columbia line before the parkway was started on the old canal right-of-way between Hancock and Cumberland.

Same Amendment

It was virtually the same amendment Sen. Lofstrand (R-Montgomery) prepared but didn't offer.

"The federal government has been encroaching on Maryland for a number of years," Barton declared. "If Allegany County has some nice project, that's perfectly all right.

"But the federal government already has 215,000 acres in Maryland. We're a small state, but we're a fine state. And if this keeps up, we'll eventually become a reservation of the federal government instead of a state with sovereign rights."

Kimble said that Barton's amendment would "kill Senate Bill 211 (the parkway bill)."

"Means Everything"

"I could submit 1,001 reasons why the parkway is important, but let this suffice: Senate Bill 211 means everything to Western Maryland. If there were ever a piece of legislation that could be called non-partisan, this is it. Democrats and Republicans alike support it.

"I am asking you Democrats and Republicans here to stand shoulder to shoulder to help defeat this amendment."

Kimble went on to accuse Barton of trying to "kill this bill by subterfuge" and sabotage.

"If you want to kill the bill," Kimble declared, "go ahead and vote against it. But don't try to defeat it by stabbing a knife in its back."

Barton's amendment was defeated by a voice vote. The committee's favorable report was adopted, and the bill moved on for final Senate passage within the next couple of days.

Would Buy Land

The bill would authorize the State Roads Commission to buy 4,100 acres of land along the C&O Canal for a right-of-way for a 57-mile parkway to be constructed by the federal government at a cost of 8 to 10 million dollars.

The House for the third year approved higher pensions for retired judges, but the outlook was little different from the past in the Senate. Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) has successfully opposed increases for former judges in previous sessions.

Del. Robinson (D-Balto 4th), sponsor of the House measure, said Gov. McKeldin was prepared to include enough money in a supplemental budget to boost the maximum pension from $6,000 to $9,000. The top for judges of the Court of Appeals would be $11,000.

Robinson estimated the cost of a raise for 17 judges now living in retirement would be some $25,000.

Del. Nowakowski (D-Balto 1st) objected that judges need not contribute to their retirement pay, as do other public officials and workers in private industry.

"Judges give up the most productive years of their lives," Robinson replied. He added Maryland had been pensioning judges without asking contributions since 1904.

Favors Jurists

The vote easily favored the jurists, 73-32.

When the parkway bill was first mentioned in the Senate today, Sen. McLaughlin (R-Washington) took the floor for his longest floor speech of the session.

McLaughlin acknowledged that most of the objections to the parkway plan had been withdrawn now that the parkway would not extend south of Hancock.

But he added that he felt the bill still affected Montgomery, Frederick and Washington Counties, even though it wouldn't extend directly into them.

"We in the counties affected have knowledge of the economic plight of Allegany County and don't want to try to impede it from getting back to the economic situation it happily enjoyed some years ago," McLaughlin said.

"This bill had a good bit of the sting removed on the promise of Kimble and Sen. Beall that one of the recreation areas would be established in Washington County.

"But the apprehension we've had is the possible extension of the parkway south to Washington. We don't want our beautiful homes along the Potomac desecrated by a lot of people from Washington who would use the parkway.

"We're disturbed."

McLaughlin added that he realize Kimble apparently had sufficient

Scouts To Aid Associated Charities In Yule Toy Drive

Over 600 Cubs, Scouts and Explorers of Cumberland District, Boy Scouts of America, will assist the Associated Charities Saturday, March 28, in a city-wide drive to collect used toys which will be given to underprivileged children at Christmas time.

William T. Allee, district commissioner, said the city will be divided into 20 sections, and each of the 20 units in the Cumberland District will be assigned to each territory.

He pointed out that collections will take place from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. March 28. Each section will have a central gathering point where toys of each individual territory will be taken. The Scouts will make a house-to-house canvass and then report to the central point with the toys.

To Be Repaired By Helpers

Pieces too large to be handled by the boys may be taken to the central place by residents of each section. Then in the afternoon trucks will gather the toys from each section's central point and transport them to a warehouse.

Miss Jeanette Bonig, executive secretary for the Associated Charities, said this is the first time collections have been made so early in the year and is the first large collective city-wide drive for toys conducted by the organization.

Miss Bonig explained that by collecting the toys early, civic clubs and organizations will have time to repair and paint the toys in time for Christmas.

Housewives Asked To Aid

Each year, club members and other individuals volunteer their services to repair toys for boys and girls who are underprivileged in the community. The gifts are painted, missing parts are supplied and the toys are made practically new to make some boy or girl happy on Christmas.

This time of year is when residents begin house cleaning, Miss Bonig explained, and will be gathering used toys from attics, cellars and unoccupied rooms. Residents are urged to save such toys for Saturday's collection.

Jaycees Plan To Sponsor Teenage "Road-E-O" In April

The Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce will sponsor a teenage "road-e-o" the weekend of April 25 to promote safe driving among high school students. The "road-e-o" will name Cumberland's most skillful teenage driver.

J. Kenneth Morgan, Jaycee president, said last night that the top winner of the "road-e-o" will compete in a state-wide contest in Annapolis in the late spring. A national contest will be held in Washington August 11-16. Five scholarships totaling $3,100 will be awarded to the top national winners.

Safety Contest

Morgan explained that the competition will include contests in parking, driving in traffic, knowledge of traffic laws and several other points for safe driving. All teenage boys and girls who have drivers' licenses and have not been guilty of a moving violation during the past six months will be allowed to enter.

Entry blanks will be distributed to the principals of the seven public and Catholic high schools today. Included are Fort Hill, Allegany, Carver, LaSalle, Girls' Central, St. Mary's and Ursuline Academy.

Teenagers no longer in school may obtain entry blanks at the Jaycee office on the fifth floor of the Liberty Trust Building or at Spoerl's Garage, 205 North Mechanic Street.

Entries Due April 3

Entries must be returned to the Jaycee office not later than 5 p. m. Friday, April 3. A written examination will be conducted before Wednesday, April 15, to reduce the number of entrants to a maximum of five for each school. Then the skill driving contest will conclude the competition.

Dennis L. McIntyre is general chairman for the "road-e-o." Others working with him are James Hines, assistant chairman; Albert D. Darby Jr., publicity and securing of entries; Hines, location, course and equipment; Henry Sauer, judging and scoring; Richard Growden, eligibility and screening; Robert Barnard, prizes, and Floyd V. Cozad, teenage traffic conference.

Prizes will be awarded here to the three best drivers.

Weather

The Queen City continued to experience spring-like weather yesterday as a bright cheerful sun spread its warmth over the area. And incidentally, spring begins Saturday, so residents may look for favorable weather, that is if Old Man Weather is in a good mood. High temperature yesterday was 61 according to Constitution Park weather station; low was 36 and at 9 p. m. thermometers stood at 45 degrees. Outlook for today is increased cloudiness and mild.
